ST. JOHN, N. B., OCTOBER 20, 1902.

BORDEN AND LAURIER.

One of the most notable political meetings that has ever been held in the great west will take place in the Alhambra Hall, Winnipeg, this evening. A banquet will be tendered Mr. R. L. Borden and other conservative members of parliament who are with him on his tour. Covers will be laid for five hundred persons. Besides Mr. Borden, Hon. Geo. E. Foster and F. D. Monk, M. P., will be among the speakers. Hon. Mr. Foster has been in British Columbia on a business trip, and was asked by the committee to so time his return that he could be present at the banquet. Mr. Monk has gone west by special invitation, as the people are anxious to hear the eloquent and able leader of the conservatives of Quebec.

Naturally one contrasts the western demonstration in honor of Mr. Borden with that in the east in honor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The two events bring into sharp relief the representatives of the passing and coming regime in Canada. In the heart of that great new country which owes its magnificent development to the conservative policy, and which today thrills with the inspiration of triumphant progress, Mr. Borden is welcomed as the leader of a strong and united party, having one policy for the whole country, and having today the same unflinching faith in the future of Canada that characterized the founders of the National Policy and the builders of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, on the other hand, though warmly welcomed as the man who by virtue of his office represented Canada at the coronation, returns to find his party divided and his leaders discredited, because they are utterly at variance with regard to vital measures of policy. The liberal party is reaping the inevitable harvest of vacillation and insincerity. Sir Wilfrid himself could go to the west and preach the doctrine of free trade, in the same city of Winnipeg, and then come east and write a letter to a manufacturer assuring him that the tariff would not be materially altered. The people of Canada have given the liberals a fair and full opportunity to demonstrate their ability to govern, and have been disappointed. Whether in tariff or transportation matters the best leaders have been able to do has been to experiment and temporize and finally quarrel among themselves. That is not the kind of government which accords with the spirit of the Canadian people. They see that the liberals came into power at a time of great national growth and prosperity, with no need to worry about sources of revenue to carry on the public services of the country; and that they have not risen to the height of their great opportunities. They see today the spectacle of a cabinet minister hurling defiance at his colleagues, and a state of affairs which is nothing short of a public scandal. It is for these reasons they note with ever growing interest and satisfaction the course of Mr. Borden, who goes into the west and with absolute candor sets forth the same policy that he proclaimed in the east.

It has pleased the St. John Telegraph to affirm that Mr. Borden shrives up by comparison with Sir Wilfrid Laurier. That interesting journal appears to forget that Mr. Borden is a young man, who has not been long in public life in comparison with Sir Wilfrid; that he has never been a cabinet minister, and never sought, until unanimously chosen leader of the opposition, to do more than attend to his parliamentary duties. Now that he is the leader he has gone over the country, has been everywhere welcomed; and while he has revealed excellent judgment and a complete grasp of public affairs, has also displayed a tact not surpassed by Sir Wilfrid himself. Mr. Borden's tour in the west has been a series of triumphs. He went there comparatively unknown, and the other he has spoken the more enthusiasm he has aroused. The newspapers have devoted an unusual amount of space to reports of his meetings, and not only the ability but the fine sincerity of the man has impressed itself very strongly upon even those who are politically opposed to him.

In relation to the future of Canada, the Winnipeg demonstration to the conservative leader today is far more significant than that at Ottawa in honor of Sir Wilfrid Laurier.

The Telegraph is not quite down to its usual standard this morning. There is no reference to Dare Devil Dug. Neither does it condemn an opera house show in the editorial and praise it in the local columns. It does, however, make an offensive and uncalled for reference to a family whose members have already cause enough for grief.

ST. JOHN PULPITS.

TRIBUTE TO LATE MONSIGNOR CONNOLLY.

At the Church of St. John the Baptist yesterday the death of the Very Rev. Monsignor Connolly, the late rector of the church, was referred to in feeling terms at both masses by his assistant, the Rev. W. G. Gaynor.

Father Gaynor thought he might advance the assertion that while Monsignor Connolly had been over thirteen years amongst them, yet he was not well known to them. This was, in a measure, due to the fact that the monsignor was already an old man when he came to St. John the Baptist parish; that his age and position removed him from close intimacy with the people; that his life's work of active missionary labor was practically over; that, in consequence, some younger priest in attending to the active ministrations of the parish would naturally be brought into closer contact with the people of the parish than Monsignor Connolly was. In a measure, too, it was due to a natural reserve of manner which, nevertheless, covered a warm heart. Few were admitted to the deeper intimacies with him. The preacher said he had known "Father" Connolly, none had known him more intimately, for 25 years; he was a man and a gentleman in the full significance of these words. The rev. speaker here established a contrast between the late Bishop Sweeney and Monsignor Connolly. He said they were supplementary to each other, one might be said to be the antithesis of the other, thus contributing jointly to an excellence of administration which is historical in ecclesiastical circles.

Father Gaynor, continuing, said Monsignor Connolly's outlook and personal relations with others, if the speaker's experience was of any value, was thoughtful, kindly and considerate. To get a standpoint from which to view his character in a proper sense of proportion, one should have to visit the immense area of country in which he labored as a young man. Even here the older generation who knew him best were fast dying out. Yet his name is still a household word amongst these people.

The preacher adverted to Monsignor Connolly's work in the settlement of Johnville, for which too much credit could not be given him; nor could too much stress be laid upon the fact that everywhere throughout that district he had established the church not only with the greatest forethought in regard to its religious and moral side, but with a perfection of system in matters of administration that was still in vogue and helped to make the labors of the priests today in the same district much easier.

Father Gaynor referred to Monsignor Connolly's work of organization along various lines, his efforts in the temperance cause, etc.

SIXTEEN YEARS WITH SAINT ANDREWS.

Rev. L. G. McNeill, minister in St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, celebrated yesterday the seventeenth anniversary of the opening of his service there. His morning sermon was a brief and comprehensive history of the church since its beginning. From the story of its early struggle and gradual growth, he drew lessons of inspiration and encouragement for the future, and urged upon its present congregation to cling to the watchword of its founders: "Earnest prayer and honest work," and to devote their energies more faithfully toward the furthering of the work of God in their section of his field.

In the course of his address he mentioned that one lady of the congregation had been in uninterrupted connection with the church since its first pastorate, and had clear recollections of its history and of every minister who had served there since Dr. Burns down to the present incumbent. The reference was made to Mrs. G. E. Plimpton of Brittain street, who celebrated her 73rd birthday yesterday. Mrs. Plimpton was baptised by Dr. Burns, the first pastor of St. Andrew's, and has sat under every one of his successors. Her memory is keen and to those interested, she delights to recount incidents of the early history of the church, and to describe personal characteristics of its various ministers.

AT ZION CHURCH.

Two very interesting services were held at Zion Church yesterday, the pastor, Rev. Dr. Wilson, conducting both. In the morning a customary thanksgiving sermon was preached, Dr. Wilson taking for his text Leviticus 23rd chapter and 10th verse: "Speak unto the children of Israel, and say unto them, when ye come into the land which I give unto you, and shall reap the harvest, bring a sheaf of the first fruits of your harvest unto the priest."

In the evening a special song service was held. Previous to the formal opening exercises a number of sacred songs were sung by the congregation, the choir leading. Mrs. H. A. Adams presiding at the organ. After the regular opening exercises, Dr. Wilson spoke for a few minutes on the value of the hymnology in promoting the devotional spirit of the church. He then referred to the hymnal as the product of many minds, referring to Wm. Cowper and Isaac Watts, giving a short sketch of the life of each. The choir then sang some of the hymns of which Cowper and Watts were the authors, which served to illustrate, as Dr. Wilson remarked, not only the type of the personal piety of the two men, but of the age in which they lived. The particular hymns sung were Cowper's "God Moves in a Mysterious Way," and Watts' "There is a Land of Pure Delight," considered by many to be his most beautiful hymn and to have been composed one beautiful May morning near Southampton, England, the Isle of Wight in the distance, with the "Little strip of Silver Sea" separating it from the mainland. The choir sang several other pieces that added much to the interest of the service.

THANKSGIVING, AND ST. ANDREW'S BROTHERHOOD.

For many years past the second Sunday in October has been observed in most of the Episcopal churches as a service of Harvest Thanksgiving. The service was postponed at St. Mary's church until yesterday in consequence of the absence of the rector, Rev. Dr. Raymond.

The church was beautifully adorned with grain, fruit, autumn leaves, ferns and flowers, and the music and service were in keeping with the festival. At the morning service the Rev. Mr. Raymond spoke in his sermon of the lessons of the harvest. In the evening the church was filled by a very large congregation, and the singing and responding were as usual of the heartiest character. A beautiful harvest anthem was sung, in which the leading parts, by Miss Edna Godfrey and Ernest Job, were taken with much taste and feeling.

In the course of the service the rector spoke of the loss sustained by the church in the death of three valued members, the late Mrs. Honeywill, Mrs. Donohoe and Mrs. Alexander. The funeral of the latter will be held from her residence to St. Mary's church today. During the offertory J. N. Riva sang a very effectively solo, "He Giveth His Beloved Sleep."

Rev. Dr. Raymond gave a graphic and stirring description of the great convention of the Brotherhood of St. Andrew held in the city of Boston a week since. In olden days in Scotland when the clansmen were called forth in their country's service, a fiery cross was carried by swift runners from clan to clan, and woe betide the man who declined to respond at the call of duty. It should be his endeavor, the preacher said, to hand on to them something of the help and inspiration he had himself received. There are probably 15,000 natives of St. John and Kings county in the city of Boston today. They are everywhere found to furnish many of the best workers in the church and Brotherhood of St. Andrew. A brotherhood man, who hails from the vicinity of this city, a rising young lawyer, on being asked by a Boston friend why he gave so much time to church-going and Christian work, replied, "Oh, I was brought up to it and never knew any better; I suppose I shall keep on that way to the end of the chapter."

Rev. Mr. Raymond proceeded to review in glowing terms the salient features of the convention and was attentively listened to by his hearers. He said in conclusion that to have heard such men on such an occasion was the opportunity of a lifetime. Eleven hundred men from Alaska to Texas and from Cape Breton to San Francisco were at the convention. At one of the meetings in Symphony hall in Boston $10,000 was raised for the work of the brotherhood. One of the most notable meetings was that at Sanders Theatre in Cambridge, where 2,000 Harvard under-graduates and visitors assembled to hear John R. Mott and Dr. W. S. Rainsford of New York. The farewell sermon at Emmanuel Church by Bishop Dudley of Kentucky was particularly eloquent and impressive, and the subsequent meeting under the presidency of James L. Houghteling of Chicago the founder of the society, was of a character never to be forgotten.

After service Mr. Raymond stated to a Sun reporter that Canada was represented at the convention by about 20 delegates from the maritime provinces, most of the upper province men preparing to attend the Canadian convention at Brantford. Among the New Brunswick delegates were H. C. Tilley, Dr. J. H. Scammell, Rev. H. Montgomery and Thomas Simpson. The kindness of the people of Boston and particularly of the old residents of St. John to their visiting friends would never be forgotten. They were received with open arms and every attention was paid to their comfort and enjoyment.

REV. MR. GORDON IN ST. ANDREW'S.

Rev. Alexander Gordon, B. D., son of Rev. Dr. Gordon of Halifax, has recently returned from an extended course of theological study in Scotland and on the Continent, and will enter the ministry of the Presbyterian church in his own land with a splendid equipment for good work. He preached last night in St. Andrew's church, where his earnest and powerful address made a most favorable impression upon all who heard him. Rev. Mr. Gordon is a young man with a fine reputation as a student. As a speaker he is strong and convincing.

MISSIONARY ADDRESS.

Miss L. E. Gaunce, returned missionary from India, gave an address descriptive of the difficulties and work in that great field, in Victoria street Free Baptist church last evening, before an audience that filled every seat in the building.

In the course of her address, which was heard with deep interest, Miss Gaunce described the religion of Hinduism, discussing its different teachings, Brahminism and caste, and quoting some of its errors, such as the doctrine of transmigration of souls and the belief that the union of the soul with the body was a necessary evil, which naturally gave rise to fatalism. She described graphically the Bible work and the labors in Zenas and orphanages in Balasore, where her field is located.

SALVATION ARMY ACCOUNTS.

Assets of $4,500,000 in International Headquarters; $1,249,345 Here.

(New York Sun.)

The Salvation Army, in answer to a criticism in the Sun relating to the large sums of money believed to pass through the hands of Gen. Booth and his subordinate officers, sent to this office copies of its printed statements of its account and balance sheets for the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1901.

The pamphlet shows excellent book-keeping, which is attested by Knox, Cooper & Co., chartered accountants of Finsbury Circus, for the London headquarters of the Army, and by J. E. Bliss, expert accountant, sworn by M. J. H. Ferris, notary public, for the New York headquarters.

Mr. Bliss's sworn statement is interesting in its phraseology. He deposes "that he has verified the footings in said books of the Army and finds a voucher for expenditure of money; and he finds all the entries, footings and postings to be true and correct."

The statement of the general income and expenditure account of the international headquarters, London, shows nearly $300,000 handled during the year there. The balance sheets carried credit to assets to the amount of more than $4,500,000.

MORAL SUASION AND A STRAP.

(New York Mail and Express.)

"She seems to have abandoned her moral suasion ideas relative to the training of children."

"How did it happen?"

"Well, I was largely instrumental in bringing about the change. You see, she has no children of her own, and I grew weary of her constant preaching and theorizing, so I loaned her our Willie."

"Loaned her your boy?"

"Precisely. She was to have him a week on her solemn promise to confine herself entirely to moral suasion."

"Did she keep her promise?"

"She did, but at the expiration of the week she came to me with tears in her eyes and pleaded for permission to whale him just once."
