BOARD OF TRADE. The monthly meeting of the Board of Trade, was held yesterday afternoon, and adjourned to the Tuesday a fortnight hence. A letter from A. T. Welton, of the Halifax Board of Trade, was read, inquiring whether the St. John board had taken any action respecting a resolution passed at the meeting of the maritime board in Halifax, urging the government to apply the preferential rebate only to goods coming in through Canadian ports. Action in regard to the letter was deferred. Eben Perkins was elected a member. The board will continue subscriptions to all leading periodicals.

POLICING THE WORLD. An eminent Russian sociologist, Mr. Novikov, has formulated a scheme for establishing order on the face of the earth. His idea is that "the seven civilized powers, the United States, Great Britain, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, and Russia (it is interesting to note that he does not include Japan), should enter upon a common defensive and offensive alliance by which they could guarantee the integrity of all the territory belonging to all. Then, says Mr. Novikov, these powers should "keep order on the face of the earth, taking in hand at once every peace-breaker." For instance, he says, if, when difficulties arose between Japan and Russia, the aggressor had known that, immediately upon the declaration of war, the fleets of Europe would blockade his ports, no hostilities would have occurred. The history of Europe has a turning point, this writer believes. Since 1871, all the leading powers have been neutralized, and every hope of destroying or changing any of the existing states must be abandoned. As to the obstacles placed in the way of a seven-power alliance, these are not at all insurmountable, because, says this writer, they exist "only in the brains of the diplomats of the old regime. The day when the seven-power alliance is concluded, nothing becomes easier than securing order on the face of the whole earth." Instead of being a formless mass of states and nationalities, which fight against and injure one another, without aim, and cause anarchy, humanity will become an organized community, having a rational d'etre following definite purposes.

The idea is by no means ridiculous, and the belief that something of this kind will evolve from the growing disgust of modern mankind at the useless horrors of war has been held by many great men. The twentieth century is above all things reasonable, and compared with its predecessors, it is refined. War is illogical and brutal. It is the cave-dweller's method of settling disputes and has no place in a world where men have intelligence and moral senses. It proves nothing save that one disputant is stronger than another; with the right and wrong of the dispute it has nothing to do. From the standpoint of Christ's teaching, it is, under any provocation, murder—nothing less. In modern civilization it is an incongruity as absurd as it is gruesome, unless civilization would retrograde to the level of the inconspicuous element, that element must be eliminated. The method of elimination is, of course, a matter for much pondering and parleying. But whether it came by a treaty such as proposed above or by a scheme of international compulsory arbitration or by some process not yet enumerated, we must believe that the coming of the time when there shall be no more war is as certain as that man's evolution is upward—if that is certain.

LEWIS MUST GO. It is said that Mr. E. M. Lewis, conservative member of parliament for West Huron, is disqualified because two years ago he became bondman for a mail carrier. If the seat had been stolen from Mr. Lewis by stuffing the ballot box, as it was in a former West Huron election, for the candidate whom he defeated in November, the member-elect might have held the seat according to precedent. Or if Mr. Lewis had made a joint stock company of himself and received tens of thousands in government patronage, he would have been safe. But it seems that he guaranteed that his neighbor would properly perform a twenty or thirty dollar contract to carry the mails, and forgot about it when he became a candidate. He must be a bold, bad man—Sun.

THE TIMES is the best evening newspaper published east of Montreal; the latter quite a sweeping statement by the way, as there are several fairly readable papers published in England, for instance. If these modest assertions are correct, it is astonishing how persistently the people of St. John continue to purchase inferior papers. Of the "Little Star" alone they buy daily over twice as many copies as they buy of "the best evening newspaper published east of Montreal."

That new job of Mr. Blair's must be a pretty nice one. He has held it for nearly a week and there is no sign of a resignation yet.

FERRY EXPENSES LESS. Supt. H. Adam Glasgow, of the ferry, is making out his annual report, and the reports from the ferry collectors show that 5,228 more people crossed on the ferry steamers during 1904 than during the previous year. The total travel during 1904 was 1,575,891 and 1904 the total figures are 1,576,983. In 1903 there were 797,760 passengers east, 798,110 west. In 1904 there were 797,774 east and 798,115 west. The year just closed would have undoubtedly shown a large increase of travel had the street car line not been extended to Seaview Park. It is thought the expenditure for the past year will likely be $3,000 or $4,000 less than the previous year and the receipts about the same.

For that tight feeling in your chest There is a remedy over 60 years old—Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Of course you have heard of it, probably have used it. Once in the family, it stays; the one household remedy for coughs and hard colds on the chest. Ask your doctor about it.

TO HAPPINESS. It ain't so far to happiness—it's lyin' all around; It twines in dewdrops, brings blooms to barren ground, It sings in all the breezes; it ripples in the rills; It's written on green banners that wave from all the hills. It ain't so far to happiness; we rob our lives of rest To find it o'er broad oceans as far as east from west; From all the dear home places in sorrow we depart, And dream a not that its dwelling place is ever in the heart. It ain't so far to happiness; it's shining all along; It's in the lowliest violet, it's in the thrush's song, And hold it—ye that find it, forever to your breast. Till you sleep and dream forever in the roses of God's rest. —Frank L. Stanton.

PROTECT THE FISHERMEN. Harbor Rights Should Be Held For Those Who Make Their Living Out of Them. At yesterday's sale of the harbor fishing rights the question was raised in conversation—should not the fishermen be accorded the exclusive privilege of bidding for and exercising those rights. At present the acquisition of the fishing rights is open to anyone and there is grave danger of persons of means coming in and crowding the fishermen out of their living. As a matter of fact one of the most valuable and productive of the fishing rights is and has been for a number of years, owned by a merchant. He doubtless saw that it was a good money investment and as there was nothing to prevent him he was at perfect liberty to acquire it, but should other men of financial ability follow his example it would not be long before the fishermen, whose resources are limited, would be deprived of their occupation. This is happening greatly to be deplored. The fishermen are a thrifty lot and they constitute a most desirable portion of the citizenship. It is much in purchasing the fishing rights, whose productiveness is uncertain, and often the anticipated supply of fish falls and as a consequence the fishermen are heavy losers. An elderly fisherman, in speaking to the Star yesterday, said: "We have to pay dearly for our right to fish in the harbor, and I think we alone should enjoy that privilege. It would be easy enough for any rich man to come in and outbid us, and today you have seen the instance of it. Surely there is need of legislation here to protect us. Some thoughtful alderman should come out in the behalf and try to prevail upon the common council to secure us proper legislative protection."

ARREST GIRLS OUT AT NIGHT!!! No Decent Girl Should Be on the Street After Nine!!! To the Editor of the Star: Sir,—It was with mingled feelings of regret and amusement, and very much concern that I read your article in last night's issue, headed "Arresting the girls who come out at night." It has, indeed, more than startled me, and I wish you could assist me in forming some idea as to the result of this old-time-but-not-of-driving people indoors after a certain hour at night. Mr. Magistrate Ritchie ought to have lived in the middle ages, and should give the matter a more thorough thought and consider there are others besides the class of girls he alludes to who are compelled to be on the streets after the hour mentioned. It seems to me worse than ridiculous in this age to talk such nonsense as the arrest of girls who dare to be on the streets after nine o'clock at night. The number of all our church meetings in every part of the city if you abstract everyone under 18 years of age simply because the meeting will not be a time for them to reach home at nine? I must admit it is a very serious matter to see a young girl of the tender age of 16 or 17, in a dark street, at night, walking dark or even walking up King street; but, sir, may I ask where is this going to end, and what would many of our own friends do if such a thing were to happen? Can you picture a long string of cars worn, motherly faces trucking through the snow on the streets of nine to twelve o'clock at night, waiting for lost daughters. Many of my own friends, I am not ashamed to admit, are often compelled through force of circumstances to send their girls out after nine o'clock at night. What will become of these? I am haunted with the thought of their capture and incarceration in prison for having to disobey his worship. Of course, Mr. Editor, I am aware there is a certain class of ladies who are a nuisance and a curse on our streets at night, though personally I have never been stopped and asked such questions as stated in your article, but are we going to persecute the whole sex on their account? Since for goose is sauce for gander,—i. e., remove the young men who are the attraction and the girls will soon disappear. Yours, RUSTICUS.

$1,000 FOR NEWS OF OWEN KELLY. Wealthy Philadelphian Has Been Missing For Two Months and Relatives Offer Reward. NEW YORK, Jan. 2.—One thousand dollars reward will be paid for information leading to the discovery of Owen Kelly, living or dead, who disappeared from Philadelphia, October 25. The reward is offered by Patrick Kelly, of No. 2233 North Second street, Philadelphia. Owen Kelly is a well-to-do Philadelphia grocer and woolen manufacturer and a prominent member of several Irish societies. His relatives believe he is in New York, and in the hope of getting news of him have inserted a notice of the reward in the Herald. From circumstances attending his disappearance, of which they have learned during the last few days, this belief has been strengthened, and the police department have been asked to assist in the search for the missing man. Mr. Kelly is one of the foremost members of the Clan-Na-Gael of Philadelphia, one of the greatest champions of freedom for Ireland. Their fight has been for freedom by force, and Mr. Kelly was until recently one of the strongest advocates of this plan. On the coming of John E. Redmond, an Irish leader in parliament, to America, Mr. Kelly was converted to his land projects and parliamentary ideas and came out for Mr. Redmond. His change of sentiment is said to have caused much bitter feeling toward Mr. Kelly. By his own efforts he won over a sufficient number of the society to elect anti-Penian officers, and then he carried the fight into the Ancient Order of Hibernians, where he won success for the Redmond idea. It was at the height of these fights that, October 25, Mr. Kelly attended a meeting of the directors of the Continental Trust Company, of Philadelphia, of whom he was one. Nothing unusual happened at the meeting, and Mr. Kelly left in company with several other directors, from whom he parted on reaching the street. He has not been seen or heard from since. Mr. Kelly's brother-in-law and sisters have been constant in their search, in which they have been aided by the Philadelphia police. From a letter received in this city yesterday from Patrick Kelly, brother of the missing man, it was learned that immediately after the disappearance of Owen Kelly, his committee had been formed to devise plans and prosecute a search for Mr. Kelly. The missing man's brother-in-law now alleges that the committee has done nothing. Patrick Kelly said in his letter that the committee had conducted secret meetings, but he alleges that when relatives applied at each meeting for admission they were told that they could not enter. He charges further that when the missing man's trunks were left at the meeting, everything which would have been of value in the search was missing and the contents of the trunks were in confusion. Since Mr. Kelly's disappearance his brother-in-law and sisters have conducted a search for him which so far has cost thousands of dollars. Mr. Kelly's disappearance has quietly been the talk of the news columns in Philadelphia. At first it became public until two weeks ago. At that time Irish societies throughout the east were asked to assist. The chief of police is a close friend of the family, and he turned all of his available force to the search, finally giving it as his opinion that Mr. Kelly was in New York. Francis Mulgrew, a brother-in-law of the missing man, called at police headquarters yesterday, where he learned that the New York police had done nothing on the case, it having merely come to their attention through the newspapers. Inspector McCluskey promised to make it most thorough. Mr. Kelly is fifty-three years old, five feet ten inches in height and weighs about 150 lbs. He is a native of Philadelphia. He is sturdy and wiry, with a dark complexion and smooth shaven face.

"Poverty is a bully if you are afraid of her, or truckle to her," but a wise use of the want ads. will often enable you to cut her acquaintance altogether.
