

MC2465 POOR DOCUMENT

THE GRANITE TOWN GREETINGS

Scaled Tenders addressed to the undersigned and endorsed "Tender for Public Building, Hillsboro, N. R." will be received at this office until 4:30 p.m., on Monday, July 16th, 1911, for the construction of a public Building at the place mentioned.

Plans, specification and form of contract can be seen and forms of tender obtained at the office of Mr. D. H. Waterbury, Sup't. of Public Buildings, St. John, N. R., at the Post Office, Hillsboro, N. R., and at this Department.

Persons tendering are notified that tenders will not be considered unless made on the printed forms supplied, and signed with their actual signatures, stating their occupation and place of residence. In the case of firms, the actual signature, the nature of the occupation, and place of residence of each member of the firm must be given.

Each tender must be accompanied by an accepted cheque on a chartered bank, payable to the order of the Honorable the Minister of Public Works, equal to ten per cent. of the tender, which will be forfeit if the person tendering declines to enter into a contract when called upon to do so, or fail to complete the work contracted for. If the tender is not accepted the cheque will be returned.

The Department does not bind itself to accept the lowest or any tender.

By order,
R. C. DESROCHERS,
Secretary.

Department of Public Works,
Ottawa, June 16, 1911.

Newspapers will not be paid for this advertisement if they insert it without authority from the Department.

King's Greeting to South Africa

In the twelve months that have elapsed since the Proclamation of the Union of South Africa, the high hopes surrounding its birth have been amply justified. The first anniversary of the historic event was made the occasion of the despatch of congratulatory messages from the King, the Government and the Imperial Conference.

The following is the text of the telegram:

Mr. Harcourt to Lord Gladstone: "The King commands me to request you to convey to the government and people of the Union of South Africa his cordial congratulations upon the anniversary of the establishment of Union, the day which also commemorates the peace of Vereeniging. His Majesty is confident that the work so well begun by the help of the co-operation of both races will be crowned with increasing and abiding success, and desires to assure all classes of the population of his unabated interest in their welfare."

The Colonial Secretary also despatched to the Governor General the subjoined telegram on behalf of His Majesty's government:

"His Majesty's government wish to convey to your government and to the people of South Africa their sincere congratulations upon the first anniversary of the Union."

"They join with South Africa in the confident assurance that the edifice of her Constitution which has been raised by the efforts of a united people, rests upon a sure foundation, and will ensure the well-being and contentment of her people.—(Signed) Harcourt."

The following message was sent to Viscount Gladstone by the Prime Minister on behalf of the Imperial Conference:

"I am asked to communicate to you the following message for your government. The Imperial Conference desires to congratulate South Africa on the occasion of the celebration of the first anniversary of her political Union, sharing most warmly the feelings of thanksgiving and high hope which animate her people today and which find a hearty response in all parts of the Empire.—(Signed) Asquith."

CAMEO KIRBY

By Booth Tarkington
AND
Harry Leon Wilson
Adapted From the Play of the Same Name by
W. B. M. Ferguson

Copyright 1908 in the American Magazine Company

CHAPTER I
"You can't play this game on me," cried Moreau, jumping to his feet. "You come in on my bill and then try to do me out of the south. That don't go, Kirby. I'm too old a hand. Keep that line of talk for sap-heads. The Randall punishment is sent under the hammer, and I get two-thirds off."

"Or what?" loudly demanded Kirby, carefully pocketing the deed. "You know me, Mr. Moreau, so don't try to pull a derring-do. It's considerably safer to wait until my back is turned. I say Mr. Randall himself will destroy this deed and that his punishment will not be sent, and you may believe it or not, just as you like. That ten thousand you virtually stole I cannot, unfortunately, refund, but, believe me, that is the entire extent of your stolen money. For once in your life you are going to release a victim before he has been completely snatched away, for once in your life you are going to be half-way decent."

"Doesn't?" belittled the other. "That's a complaint from one of your standing?"

"Like yourself, I came for a living at Mr. Moreau's office. I understand Kirby, but, unlike yourself, I endeavor to do so honestly, and I have never yet stooped to the methods which you exclusively employ. Although you are the son, however, Moreau, looking toward the door and keeping a wary eye on the florid-faced Yankee. "Mr. Kirby insulted me, sir, and his paid job it with his life. I shot him in the back and honorable combat."

"Fair and honorable combat?" snarled Moreau, looking to his feet. "Shot him in the back, you sneak—your soul fair and honorable combat? You haven't the nerve to stand up and face a crippled beggar."

"Stand back, sir," warned the other, drawing his Derringer. "You are naturally excited, and so I choose to over-look your words, which I will not do in the future. But don't push me too far, for I don't push me too far, for I even a gentleman has his limits."

"No man ever double-banked Gene Kirby twice," said Larkin, Moreau's associate, "and it'll be a good thing for you, Moreau, if he is just speaking which I guess, looks the case. If he happens to pull the trigger you can gamble he'll fix your case himself, but if he doesn't, use the old bucko, I'll settle your honorable hush. You've snuck up this close just about along enough."

"It will affect me considerably, please, sir," replied the pseudo colonel in his best manner. "To place you in the same position which you friend Mr. Kirby will shortly occupy. I refer, sir, to a front seat in the grill room of his most sumptuous agency. You service, sir, and a very good evening." Bowing the flower of southern civility backed himself through the door and disappeared.

"Now, Kirby, you can't play this game on me," cried Moreau, jumping to his feet. "You come in on my bill and then try to do me out of the south. That don't go, Kirby. I'm too old a hand. Keep that line of talk for sap-heads. The Randall punishment is sent under the hammer, and I get two-thirds off."

"Or what?" loudly demanded Kirby, carefully pocketing the deed. "You know me, Mr. Moreau, so don't try to pull a derring-do. It's considerably safer to wait until my back is turned. I say Mr. Randall himself will destroy this deed and that his punishment will not be sent, and you may believe it or not, just as you like. That ten thousand you virtually stole I cannot, unfortunately, refund, but, believe me, that is the entire extent of your stolen money. For once in your life you are going to release a victim before he has been completely snatched away, for once in your life you are going to be half-way decent."

"Doesn't?" belittled the other. "That's a complaint from one of your standing?"

"Like yourself, I came for a living at Mr. Moreau's office. I understand Kirby, but, unlike yourself, I endeavor to do so honestly, and I have never yet stooped to the methods which you exclusively employ. Although you are the son, however, Moreau, looking toward the door and keeping a wary eye on the florid-faced Yankee. "Mr. Kirby insulted me, sir, and his paid job it with his life. I shot him in the back and honorable combat."

"Fair and honorable combat?" snarled Moreau, looking to his feet. "Shot him in the back, you sneak—your soul fair and honorable combat? You haven't the nerve to stand up and face a crippled beggar."

"Stand back, sir," warned the other, drawing his Derringer. "You are naturally excited, and so I choose to over-look your words, which I will not do in the future. But don't push me too far, for I don't push me too far, for I even a gentleman has his limits."

"No man ever double-banked Gene Kirby twice," said Larkin, Moreau's associate, "and it'll be a good thing for you, Moreau, if he is just speaking which I guess, looks the case. If he happens to pull the trigger you can gamble he'll fix your case himself, but if he doesn't, use the old bucko, I'll settle your honorable hush. You've snuck up this close just about along enough."

"It will affect me considerably, please, sir," replied the pseudo colonel in his best manner. "To place you in the same position which you friend Mr. Kirby will shortly occupy. I refer, sir, to a front seat in the grill room of his most sumptuous agency. You service, sir, and a very good evening." Bowing the flower of southern civility backed himself through the door and disappeared.

"Now, Kirby, you can't play this game on me," cried Moreau, jumping to his feet. "You come in on my bill and then try to do me out of the south. That don't go, Kirby. I'm too old a hand. Keep that line of talk for sap-heads. The Randall punishment is sent under the hammer, and I get two-thirds off."

"Or what?" loudly demanded Kirby, carefully pocketing the deed. "You know me, Mr. Moreau, so don't try to pull a derring-do. It's considerably safer to wait until my back is turned. I say Mr. Randall himself will destroy this deed and that his punishment will not be sent, and you may believe it or not, just as you like. That ten thousand you virtually stole I cannot, unfortunately, refund, but, believe me, that is the entire extent of your stolen money. For once in your life you are going to release a victim before he has been completely snatched away, for once in your life you are going to be half-way decent."

"Doesn't?" belittled the other. "That's a complaint from one of your standing?"

"Like yourself, I came for a living at Mr. Moreau's office. I understand Kirby, but, unlike yourself, I endeavor to do so honestly, and I have never yet stooped to the methods which you exclusively employ. Although you are the son, however, Moreau, looking toward the door and keeping a wary eye on the florid-faced Yankee. "Mr. Kirby insulted me, sir, and his paid job it with his life. I shot him in the back and honorable combat."

"Fair and honorable combat?" snarled Moreau, looking to his feet. "Shot him in the back, you sneak—your soul fair and honorable combat? You haven't the nerve to stand up and face a crippled beggar."

"Stand back, sir," warned the other, drawing his Derringer. "You are naturally excited, and so I choose to over-look your words, which I will not do in the future. But don't push me too far, for I don't push me too far, for I even a gentleman has his limits."

"No man ever double-banked Gene Kirby twice," said Larkin, Moreau's associate, "and it'll be a good thing for you, Moreau, if he is just speaking which I guess, looks the case. If he happens to pull the trigger you can gamble he'll fix your case himself, but if he doesn't, use the old bucko, I'll settle your honorable hush. You've snuck up this close just about along enough."

"It will affect me considerably, please, sir," replied the pseudo colonel in his best manner. "To place you in the same position which you friend Mr. Kirby will shortly occupy. I refer, sir, to a front seat in the grill room of his most sumptuous agency. You service, sir, and a very good evening." Bowing the flower of southern civility backed himself through the door and disappeared.

"Now, Kirby, you can't play this game on me," cried Moreau, jumping to his feet. "You come in on my bill and then try to do me out of the south. That don't go, Kirby. I'm too old a hand. Keep that line of talk for sap-heads. The Randall punishment is sent under the hammer, and I get two-thirds off."

"Or what?" loudly demanded Kirby, carefully pocketing the deed. "You know me, Mr. Moreau, so don't try to pull a derring-do. It's considerably safer to wait until my back is turned. I say Mr. Randall himself will destroy this deed and that his punishment will not be sent, and you may believe it or not, just as you like. That ten thousand you virtually stole I cannot, unfortunately, refund, but, believe me, that is the entire extent of your stolen money. For once in your life you are going to release a victim before he has been completely snatched away, for once in your life you are going to be half-way decent."

"Doesn't?" belittled the other. "That's a complaint from one of your standing?"

Servant Problem Solved in Berlin

London, June 11.—The eternal servant problem seems to be nearing a solution in Berlin, and it is a very simple one, namely the substitution of men for women.

Of recent years a vast increase in the immigration from the country to the city has taken place, with the result that a capable man servant can now be hired for between $8 and $10 with board.

The Berlin Hausfrau testifies that the new servant is infinitely superior to the old, besides lending a social glory to the household, as hitherto men servants have been employed almost solely by noble and aristocratic or very wealthy families. Experience shows that they can do better all that the woman servants do, dusting, cleaning, brushing, attending at table, even cooking and ironing, against which the manly soul still rebels.

They are far more easily satisfied, far more obliging and far less capricious, and their sense of duty is illustrated by the fact that they will actually clean and put away the silver and china after a party before they go to bed. They are a source of economy, too, for when in their charge china cups and saucers do not acquire the habit of automatically sliding off the silver to the ground or valuable vases and ornaments that of suddenly jumping from their places in the dead watches of the night and being smashed.

Nor does this exhaust the list of their superior qualities, for they rarely give notice in a fit of temper and become more readily attached to their employers. Still no man is perfect, and the master where a man servant is employed must be prepared for a mysterious fading away of color in his whiskey and a high rate of mortality among his cigars.

Germany's Attitude Towards France.

Berlin, June 10.—Germany's aggressive attitude in the Moroccan situation, manifested in a plainly worded official announcement in a German Gazette that the empire would consider itself released from the obligations of the Algeiras agreement to full liberty of action in case of an occupation of Fez by the French, has been received with coldness in two unexpected quarters, Austro-Hungary and Russia having given unmistakable intimations that they will not countenance attempts to embarrass France in her present activity.

When James Clark, son of Thomas Clark, of Lockport, N. Y., Thursday called at the City Clerk's office to get a certificate of birth that he might go to work he found that the record's show that he is a girl and that his name is Carrie. The City Clerk dug into the records of the day of James's birth and found that Carrie, a daughter, had been born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clark. The mistake was evidently caused by the physician in filing the certificate. James must, therefore, continue to be a girl on the records until he finds the medical man.

Father Was Routed

"I need some help with my household duties," announced a Maiden woman, when her husband came home the other night.

"What's the matter with our daughter?" the husband wanted to know.

"Our daughter. The idea! Why, Jim, you know she's delicate, and she would die, if she had to do any household work. She has her school, and—"

"And what? Her teacher's report shows that she isn't doing a bit of school work."

"But she is the star member of her basketball team, and you know she is eager to take the prize at the gymnasium contest, but that's just like a man—wanting a delicate girl to engage in rough hard labor. Be ashamed of yourself, Jim Jenkins! you have no feeling."

You Breathe It

By the simple act of breathing, we inhale life and death. You breathe air crowded with disease germs. These lodge in the membrane and at once commence their deadly work. In a night you develop a cold and before long you are in a grip of Canada's deadliest enemy—Catarrh.

You also breathe Hyomei (pronounced Hy-o-mei) and by so doing breathe in life—Hyomei is medicated and vaporized air. In its journey through the breathing organs it arrests and kills catarrh and cold germs, soothes the inflamed membrane and commences the work of healing. Ask druggist J. Sutton Clark what he knows about Hyomei. You will find that he not only sells it but guarantees it. A complete outfit will cost you $1.00 from your druggist or post-paid from the R. T. Booth Co. Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. You will find it invaluable for coughs, colds, catarrh and all kindred diseases. Money refunded if it fails.

Job Printing at The Greetings Office.

Advertise in Greetings.

ELMCROFT.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Kinney called on friends at Tower Hill on Tuesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Brockway and family spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Doherty.

Daniel Kinney who has been working for E. Sherwood has returned to his home.

Thomas Fenny and Granville Kinney who are working on Magalloway river for M. Phillips, captured two large bear on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Nichols have returned to their home in France, Minn., being called here by the sickness of their mother.

Many people of this place are much pleased to learn that Rev. E. V. Buchanan will preach here on Sunday July 2nd, at ten o'clock.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

Servant Problem Solved in Berlin

London, June 11.—The eternal servant problem seems to be nearing a solution in Berlin, and it is a very simple one, namely the substitution of men for women.

Of recent years a vast increase in the immigration from the country to the city has taken place, with the result that a capable man servant can now be hired for between $8 and $10 with board.

The Berlin Hausfrau testifies that the new servant is infinitely superior to the old, besides lending a social glory to the household, as hitherto men servants have been employed almost solely by noble and aristocratic or very wealthy families. Experience shows that they can do better all that the woman servants do, dusting, cleaning, brushing, attending at table, even cooking and ironing, against which the manly soul still rebels.

They are far more easily satisfied, far more obliging and far less capricious, and their sense of duty is illustrated by the fact that they will actually clean and put away the silver and china after a party before they go to bed. They are a source of economy, too, for when in their charge china cups and saucers do not acquire the habit of automatically sliding off the silver to the ground or valuable vases and ornaments that of suddenly jumping from their places in the dead watches of the night and being smashed.

Nor does this exhaust the list of their superior qualities, for they rarely give notice in a fit of temper and become more readily attached to their employers. Still no man is perfect, and the master where a man servant is employed must be prepared for a mysterious fading away of color in his whiskey and a high rate of mortality among his cigars.

Germany's Attitude Towards France.

Berlin, June 10.—Germany's aggressive attitude in the Moroccan situation, manifested in a plainly worded official announcement in a German Gazette that the empire would consider itself released from the obligations of the Algeiras agreement to full liberty of action in case of an occupation of Fez by the French, has been received with coldness in two unexpected quarters, Austro-Hungary and Russia having given unmistakable intimations that they will not countenance attempts to embarrass France in her present activity.

When James Clark, son of Thomas Clark, of Lockport, N. Y., Thursday called at the City Clerk's office to get a certificate of birth that he might go to work he found that the record's show that he is a girl and that his name is Carrie. The City Clerk dug into the records of the day of James's birth and found that Carrie, a daughter, had been born to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clark. The mistake was evidently caused by the physician in filing the certificate. James must, therefore, continue to be a girl on the records until he finds the medical man.

Father Was Routed

"I need some help with my household duties," announced a Maiden woman, when her husband came home the other night.

"What's the matter with our daughter?" the husband wanted to know.

"Our daughter. The idea! Why, Jim, you know she's delicate, and she would die, if she had to do any household work. She has her school, and—"

"And what? Her teacher's report shows that she isn't doing a bit of school work."

"But she is the star member of her basketball team, and you know she is eager to take the prize at the gymnasium contest, but that's just like a man—wanting a delicate girl to engage in rough hard labor. Be ashamed of yourself, Jim Jenkins! you have no feeling."

You Breathe It

By the simple act of breathing, we inhale life and death. You breathe air crowded with disease germs. These lodge in the membrane and at once commence their deadly work. In a night you develop a cold and before long you are in a grip of Canada's deadliest enemy—Catarrh.

You also breathe Hyomei (pronounced Hy-o-mei) and by so doing breathe in life—Hyomei is medicated and vaporized air. In its journey through the breathing organs it arrests and kills catarrh and cold germs, soothes the inflamed membrane and commences the work of healing. Ask druggist J. Sutton Clark what he knows about Hyomei. You will find that he not only sells it but guarantees it. A complete outfit will cost you $1.00 from your druggist or post-paid from the R. T. Booth Co. Ltd., Fort Erie, Ont. You will find it invaluable for coughs, colds, catarrh and all kindred diseases. Money refunded if it fails.

Job Printing at The Greetings Office.

Advertise in Greetings.

ELMCROFT.

Mr. and Mrs. Jas. Kinney called on friends at Tower Hill on Tuesday last.

Mr. and Mrs. Sydney Brockway and family spent Sunday with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Doherty.

Daniel Kinney who has been working for E. Sherwood has returned to his home.

Thomas Fenny and Granville Kinney who are working on Magalloway river for M. Phillips, captured two large bear on Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Nichols have returned to their home in France, Minn., being called here by the sickness of their mother.

Many people of this place are much pleased to learn that Rev. E. V. Buchanan will preach here on Sunday July 2nd, at ten o'clock.

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]

[TO BE CONTINUED.]