Miss Edith Cavell, in her uniform as a nurse.

Ottawa, Oct. 27-A New York man in a letter to Sir Sam Hughes today seclares that the Cavell murder should be avenged by every Briton in the world The writer states that though he cannot go to the front he is willing to pay or a substitute and offers to place $100 per month in the minister's hands for this purpose so long as the war continues.

He asks that the minister make use of the money "in a way that will dam age the Huns."

REPARATION WILL BE EXACTED.

London, Oct. 27—In reply to a question whether the British government intended to notify General Von Bissing, the German governor of Belgium, that he will be held personally responsible for the quasi-judicial assassination of Miss Cavell, Lord Robert Cecil, parliamentary under-secretary for foreign affairs, said that it would serve no purpose to convey such a resolve to any particular German officer, who was not necessarily responsible. Lord Robert recalled the words of Premier Asquith last May that reparation would be exacted for any mistreatment of English prisoners. The under-secretary added:

"That pledge still holds good, and it applies with two-fold force to the sav-

Gagetown, Oct. 27—A bad fire, which be resulted in heavy loss to George McDermott, occurred on his property early to Tuesday morning, when four barns, with practically all their contents, were de-

The fire was first noticed by John McDermott, Mr. McDermott's brother, about 4 o'clock, when he was awakened by the noise made by the cattle imprisoned in one of the burning buildings. A number of members of the fire brigade arrived about this time, but it was too late to save any of the barns, which were then a mass of flames. The two barns, the carriage house and ashed were reduced to ashes, with nearly all their contents, including between twenty-five and thirty tons of hay, five cows, a hay rake, express wagon, sleds, 'sleighs, and other valuable machinery and vehicles.

Through the heroic efforts of those as

Through the heroic efforts of those assisting, two horses, a seeding machine, and some ploughs were saved. It was with great difficulty that the brigade kept the cinders from setting fire to the main house and an adjoining house, now used as a shed. The latter is of considerable historic interest, and is said to be the first frame house put up in Gagetown Nearly one hundred years ago it was being used to store military supplies.

Although Mr. McDermott's property is situated a quarter of a mile from the main part of the village, sparks flew into the town and set fire in a number of places, and, had there been a heavy wind, nothing would have saved the greater part of the town. Several of those who assisted at the fire were badly burned.

The origin of the blaze is not definitely known, but it is thought that tramps passing through the village, used the barn for a sleeping place, as one of the doors was found open when Mr. McDermott went out. The loss is estimated at over $2,000, only a portion of which was covered by insurance. The barns had but recently been shingled and put in repair.

Mrs. Babbitt has received from her son, E. Percy Babbitt, who has been at the front with the Divisional Ammunition Column for many months, an interesting card, a souvenir of the region in France where he is now situated. The card is an example of the artistic work done by the French peasant women, even in the battle zone, and also displays their byad interest in the Allies. Embroidered on gauze, which is mounted on a card, are the Allied flags, surrounded by a laurel wreath, and having in the centre a bright green four-leaved clover, while undermearth is the motto "Until the End."
