

The Gleaner.

JAS. H. OROCKETT, Proprietor.

FREDERICTON, SATURDAY, APRIL 24, 1886.

VOL. II, NO. 142

Professional Cards.

JAS. T. SHARKEY,
BARRISTER AND ATTORNEY
NOTARY PUBLIC, &c.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton, N. B.

J. E. BARRY,
BARRISTER-AT-LAW,
CONVEYANCER, &c.
Office: FINE'S BUILDING, Upper St. John Street, Fredericton.

William Wilson,
BARRISTER
ATTORNEY-AT-LAW,
CONVEYANCER, &c.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

G. D. CARTER,
SURGEON DENTIST.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

H. D. CURRIE, D.D.S.,
SURGEON DENTIST.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

Dr. McLEARN,
Physician & Surgeon,
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN B. ORR,
Proprietor,
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

LOOK HERE!!
Celluloid Collars & Cuffs.

C. H. THOMAS & CO.,
Custom Shirt Makers,
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

Business Cards.

Kelly & Murphy,
Manufacturers of CARRIAGES
SLEIGH-
REPAIRING NEATLY DONE.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

F. J. McCausland,
A Very Large Assortment of
New, Thick
Watch Crystals
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

T. W. GREGORY,
ENGRAVER, &c.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

R. C. MACREDIE,
PLUMBER, GAS-FITTER
and TIN-SMITH.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

John McGoldrick & Co.,
Importers and Dealers in Ingot Copper, Pig Iron, Scrap
Iron, Old Metals, Paper Stock,
Woolen Mill Supplies, Etc.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

A. LIMERICK & CO.,
Gas Fitters and Plumbers.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

AMERICAN
HOT AIR REGISTERS
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

Chimney Cowl
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

BOUGIES, BRUSHES,
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

Z. R. EVERETT,
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

TEA. TEA. TEA.

COFFEE. COFFEE. COFFEE.

If you want a good cup of Tea or Coffee you can get the right article at a reasonable price, at

YERXA & YERXA'S.

Price of our Black English Teas, from 20 cts to 45 cts per lb.; Best Formosa Oolong 50 cts, Best Japan, 60 cts.

Coffee, from 15 cts up to 35. We sell Chase & Sanborn's Standard Java.

We are still selling Molasses at the old price, 35 cts per gal. FISH—We have a fine lot of Bay Herring at $1.50 per half Bbl.

YERXA & YERXA, Two Doors Above People's Bank.

Feb. 16, 1886.

Auction Sales.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOY'S BLOCK, Queen St.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

JOHN WOODWARD,
Auctioneer.
Office: 11, Queen Street, Fredericton.

IMPORTANCE OF MANNERS.

Profoundness of a Man—The Necessity of Goodness—Parental Responsibility.

(Continued from page 141.)

The precociousness, amounting almost to impudence, of American children by no means a new subject to call to the attention of parents, yet this very precociousness is the bane of many a career.

Children with a certain amount of attractive brightness win so much applause in the family circle and among its intimates that early in life a feeling of pride and self-sufficiency is developed that is apt to crowd out better tendencies.

A child whose sayings are quoted in his presence, who is made to feel that his doings are of paramount importance in the household, soon learns to look upon teachers, schools, and parental restraint and authority as superfluous where he is concerned; he is a law unto himself, infinitely more capable of making laws than of being controlled by them.

And there is a greater annoyance to be met in society than one of these untrained people? Having from childhood been accorded the first place, they have no perspective of human rights, and see themselves always in the foreground.

How hard it is to realize that from the first conscious act of a child the undeliberate force in individual life that we call manner is being developed!

WHAT IS IT THAT ATTRACTS OR REPELS us when we meet a stranger? Manner. He may be rascally through and through, but if he has been trained in the little arts that make life agreeable we can tolerate and endure for the time that society forces us into the same gathering.

If he is a moral king and has the manner of a king, we refuse to tolerate him, and are glad that the merest conventionalities suffice for the necessary intercourse, and worship the moral hero at a distance. What is the reason of this?

Manner is the invisible card presented by each individual on introduction, unless reputation has preceded the personal encounter.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

TO PASS WITHOUT TRAINING. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

After the true character is understood, intolerable manners are positively endured, but how much is pleasure curtailed by the absence of the little refinements that make up so much of the pleasure in friendly intercourse, and how much of a man's power is diminished by his ignorance of these little details!

When it is realized that the time to impart those habits that constitute manner is early childhood, it seems strange that an intelligent parent should allow

his children to grow up without training. It is easy to help a child to form polite habits at so early an age that long before a respectable age is reached the habits are simply an expression of nature. A boy who is kindly and polite always to his mother does not make an effort to do a polite or kindly act for another woman, and if an effort is required he is so habituated to the thought that kindly and polite actions are due a woman, that it would require more effort to refrain from the action than to do it.

If a girl has been taught to regard others before herself, she will never be accused of self assertion. If she has been taught to observe the laws of good breeding in her own home in childhood, girlhood will find her prepared to meet any of society's demands in conventionalities. Nothing betrays the character so quickly as the unconscious act. When the mind is off guard, then habit comes to the front, and society mentally puts on the ticket which stamps one

THE HOUSEHOLD.

Practical and Useful Hints.

WASHING LACE.—Make a lather of good white soap; have it just lukewarm; lay the lace in over night. In the morning squeeze out and put in fresh water, a little soap. Rinse and blue slightly, pin on a cloth and hang out. When dry dip it in sweet milk, squeeze out and lay on the cloth, pick out and pull in shape, lay cloth and all between the leaves of a large book, like a geography, and put a weight on it until dry.

A SIMPLE PUDDING.—A simple, wholesome pudding, relished by the children, is made after this recipe:—Heat a generous pint of milk to boiling point. Stir into the milk one tablespoonful of corn starch which has been smoothly mixed with a little cold milk, two well-beaten eggs, a tablespoonful of butter and sugar, a tablespoonful of lemon juice as flavoring. Let all this boil up, once, and then add one cupful of stewed prunes that have been seeded. Pour the mixture into a buttered baking dish and bake for twenty minutes. Serve with cream or sauce of your choice.