McGill students organize to protest council—paper conflict

MONTREAL (CUPI) — Students at McGill University are organizing to oppose student council's decision to reject the unanimous choice of this year's McGill Daily staff for editor of next year's paper.

In a five-hour marathon session March 15, council elected law student Timothy Denton over the Daily's choice Nesar Ahmad by a one-vote margin in the second of two secret ballots.

Earlier the council had passed a 14-point "contract" laying down rules by which next year's Daily editor must abide. Student Society president Gabor Zinner who had drafted the document, defended it to the meeting.

Claiming that his remarks were not meant to prejudice the council against the Daily's choice for editor, Zinner launched into a detailed criticism of this year's Daily saying that it had neglected the coverage of campus events and had promoted a "monolithic" political position.

Ahmad voiced the concern that "certain ethics in journalism are involved here, such as the right of any newspaper to autonomy."

However Denton — who has no newspaper experience — came out strongly in favor of the contract.

After four hours of heated debate including an unsuccessful attempt to reject both candidates and re-open applications for the editorship, a motion for the ratification of Ahmad was proposed. A motion to vote by secret ballot was passed.

The first ballot ended in a tie, the second gave Denton an 8 to 7 vote.

The students in the audience then shouted for an open vote but were ignored by council. The meeting was hastily adjourned after a call came from the audience to convene a meeting of those wishing a "free and open Daily." About 125 people gathered in an adjoining room and began planning resistance to the council decision.

At this meeting Ahmad called for all students to mobilize support for a free and open Daily and charged that the council meeting was characterized by "red-baiting."

Sociology professor Marlene Dixon who supported Ahmad's candidacy described a meeting that she and other faculty had had earlier with Zinner, "at which he made it clear that he supported Denton and wanted the Daily to 'help him fulfill his mission of keeping the Students' Society from falling apart.'"

Earlier Denton had told council that "The process of dissolution of the McGill community is being perpetrated by people with an interest in destroying this community. The role of the Daily editor next year will be to restore some kind of belonging to this place."

A student at the organizational meeting said, "We played by their rules and we lost. It's been useful because now we know the enemy."

Gateway represented on editor investigation

EDMONTON (CUP) — The student newspaper at the University of Alberta The Gateway will be represented on the commission investigating the method for selection of its editor.

At a U of A student council meeting on March 6 Council agreed to place two members of the Gateway staff on the commission.

Engineering rep Howard Christenson who made the motion explained that since two people who had voted in favor of the personnel board's choice of editor had been put on the commission, some attempt should be made to balance it.

Gateway editor Bob Beal said, "We are faced with a dispute between the newspaper and the student council and it is necessary that either both sides be represented or neither be represented on any body formed to solve the dispute."

Council passed the motion unamended.

The commission was created to look into the method of appointment of future Gateway editors and the last dispute of a Gateway editor who had no support among the staff.
