BATTLEFORD

The conditions governing Battleford's prosperity are daily increasing in number and influence. The keystone of Battleford's present commercial activity and solid foundation was laid when Canada's great transcontinental line The Grand Trunk Pacific decided to tap this beautiful centre with three most important lines, namely Biggar-Battleford line, Battleford-Saskatoon line and the Battleford-Tosfield-Edmonton line, some of which lines will be in operation by the first of September next (see Transportation Facilities on page 9). The Canadian Pacific Railway are not slow to grasp the situation as to Battleford immediately becoming a great railway centre and are therefore building from Asquith into this centre. The Canadian Northern Railway are further recognizing Battleford's importance and wonderful resources and desiring to be able to increase this company's business and retain a fair share of the developing traffic, will construct a line in the very near future now known as the Battleford-Kindersley-Medicine Hat-Calgary line, and for which line Charters are granted and much right of way is already approved. These various lines with those radiating to the north are the making of the Town of Battleford as one of the most important railway centres in Western Canada, enjoying as this Town will in the immediate future, transportation facilities by rail and water that will surely make her a mighty active rival of the largest Cities in the Canadian West.

Battleford's greatness is assured, and the Citizens—British and American—have firm confidence in its future prosperity and in its industrial and social progress.
