Town Vs. City Life

Many city people imagine that life in the country is too lone-some for anything. This is a mistake. It is not crowds of people that dissipate loneliness but people you know—friends and neighbors ready with a helping hand when help is needed. The loneliest place in this world is to be one of an immense concourse of strangers. There is no farmer in the country of normal disposition and character, who has not more neighbors than the average dweller in a crowded city. He knows personally every person worth knowing for miles around. The city dweller rarely knows those who live just across the street on the other side of the block.

NEW ASSESSMENT ACT

REAL PROPERTY
The Municipal World for January has an extended reference to the act. With the exception of mineral lands, it states, all real property is to be assessed at its actual value in the municipality in which it lies, and in the case of cities and towns in the ward in which it lies. In assessing land having any buildings thereon, the value of the land and buildings is to be ascertained separately and so entered into the assessment roll; the value of the land is increased. In making an assessment of land and buildings the assessor should first value the land and afterwards determine the value of the whole property, the difference between the value of the buildings for assessment purposes. This has no reference to the cost of the buildings and can be easily understood when the prices paid for farms with and without buildings are considered. Special provision is made for the valuation of farm lands or blocks of more than five acres in towns, villages and cities. In townships, land is to be assessed against the owners and occupiers. Non resident owners who have given the necessary notice are to be assessed as resident. In cities, towns and villages, resident and non-resident owners are to be assessed in the same way. The sections relating to this are new, as are also those referring to married women, whose husbands are to be entered on the roll, and trustees, executors and guardians, who are in the same position as owners. A tenant now includes occupants and persons in possession other than the owner.

BUSINESS ASSESSMENT
The assessment of personal property has been abolished, and every person occupying or using land, for the purpose of any business is hereafter to be assessed for a sum called business assessment, to be computed by reference to the assessed value of the land so occupied or used for the purpose of his business. This is a personal assessment, the tax on which is to be paid by the person engaged in the business. The rate of business assessment is fixed one, varying from 25 to 150 per cent of the land value. This is the most important feature of the new law.

Very few butter factories have been operating this winter, owing to the poor flow of milk.

Brockville Times (Jan. 18): A writ was issued today in the high court here by Rev. Francis Chisholm of Philipville, prohibition candidate for Leeds in Ontario election asking unstated damages from Albert Bradley, a Westport cheesemaker, whom he charges with slander. It is alleged by the plaintiff that Mr. Bradley, during the campaign just closing, circulated statements reflecting on his temperate habits. M. M. Brown is acting for Mr. Chisholm. The writ was served on Mr. Bradley this afternoon.

Dargavel's majority in Leeds was 1,010. There may be lots of glory but there's never any majority in being a Prohibition candidate. This case and many of a similar nature lead to the conclusion that Ontario doesn't really want prohibition. A lot of people think they do, and a substantial majority have said so, but when the real testing time comes Party knocks out Prohibition every time. In New Ontario, where the Liberal government had promised that no new liquor licenses should be issued, not a single government supporter was returned. The Prohibitionists have assisted in defeating the Ross government, and the public will await with interest the result of the first temperance deputation's interview with the Whitney government.
