On The "Wet" Aroostook Line

General Winfield Scott held the forts on the Aroostook county line in Maine in 1839, when the boundary between Canada and the United States became at that Point a matter of international menace. It is a coincidence in history, as aided by national prohibition, that now, fourscore years after the original disturbance, another "Aroostook trouble" looms on the same old border. By the way of Bangor comes an estimate that such a standing army as will afford at least one soldier for every twenty five feet of the line, day and night, will be required to bring to an irreducible minimum the invasion of the Pine Tree State by hard stuff from New Brunswick.

At the moment a war-time dry spell is presumed still to have its grip on our Canadian neighbors up there. The grip is wholly presumptive. The man from Maine with a thirst in his being and money in his pocket has no trouble with either if he is strong enough to cross the border. And if he chooses to bring back by bottle what he has not drunk over the bar it is a rare customs man who stops him. The Volstead law can change neither the distance over the line nor the disposition of customs men.

New Brunswick enterprise is said to be directing itself merrily toward a material appreciation of the fresh trade opportunity indicated for an opening in 1920. Provincial dry bonds are expected to dissolve themselves early in the coming year. The problem of putting things across for Maine and her visitors will then, barring the raising of that standing army—which must be a host with three eight-horse reliefs—be extremely simple.

From the Bangor point of view, it is confessed that no way is apparent to dodge this new Aroostook

HOW THIS NERVOUS WOMAN GOT WELL

Told by Herself. Her Sincerity Should Convince Others.

Christopher, Ill.—"For four years I suffered from irregularities, weakness, nervousness, and was in a run down condition. Two of our best doctors failed to do me any good. I found no touch about what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done for others, I tried it and was cured. I am no longer nervous, am regular, and in excellent health. I believe the Compound will cure any female trouble."—Mrs. ALICE HIXLER, Christopher, Ill.

Nervousness is often a symptom of weakness or some functional derangement, which may be overcome by this famous root and herb remedy, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as thousands of women have found by experience.

If complications exist, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for suggestions in regard to your ailment. The result of its long experience is at your service.

took trouble. The emergency is of a kind not to be met by bulldozing a legislature or raising funds for a lobby. The Pussycat contingent may have to spend its Christmas holidays in drawing up conscription plans for the new army.—(New York World.)

Yankees Wonder Why Grand Falls Runs to Waste

We are still wondering why the immense powers of the Grand falls, St. John river, are not turned to account these times. With wood getting scarcer and coal also scarcer and poorer and higher, the power from this cataract should be worth millions and millions of money. Northwestern New Brunswick is indeed a home of water power, the falls from many smaller streams being very considerable and being able to produce a large amount of power. Why not get after them and get them to producing? The power ought to be useful, and the heat that they might give us certainly could be worth much.—Fort Fairfield Review.

Rheumatic Pains

Are relieved in a few days by taking 30 drops of Mother Seigel's Syrup after meals and on retiring. It dissolves the lime and acid accumulation in the muscles and joints so these deposits can be expelled, thus relieving pain and soreness. Seigel's Syrup, also known as "Extract of Roots," contains no opium or other strong drugs to kill or mask the pain of rheumatism or lumbago, it removes the cause. 50c. a bottle at druggists.

Why are Peps best for children? Because they contain absolutely no harmful drugs. Because, when dissolved in the mouth, they are breathed down to the air passages and lungs—not swallowed to the child's delicate stomach, which is so easily upset; and because they are so pleasant to take that children never refuse them. Peps provide health-giving pine-forest fumes in pastille form. When these pastilles are dissolved in the mouth they throw off pine vapor, such as is breathed by dwellers in pine forests, and which is so highly recommended by the medical profession as being without equal for all ailments of the throat, breathing passages and lungs. These pine vapors released when Peps are taken, penetrate to all parts of the breathing organs, bringing relief and healing to the sore and inflamed membranes, ending that tight feeling in the chest, making breathing easy and stopping any cough. Keep Peps handy this winter and use them freely. Give them to the children when the first symptom of a cough or a cold appears. Just as suitable for adults. All dealers 50c. box.
