APPLE SCAB KILLS LARGE PART OF CROP

Expert Advice From Department of Agriculture on Methods to be Used in Preventing Scalding Spotting... Apple Scab It is estimated that in Ontario the average yearly loss amounts to about 25 per cent. of the crop. No definite figures are available as to the losses due to the rot of apples in storage, but it is at least 10 per cent. and perhaps reaches 20 per cent. on the average. The losses from rot are of greater importance economically than those from scab, since they involve the loss of a considerable amount of direct human labor—that is, the apple is lost after it has been picked, handled several times, and stored away.

When the storage cellar is emptied in the spring, it should be thoroughly cleaned, and if possible whitewashed or treated with disinfectant to destroy all spores of the rot fungi. The musty smell which is present in many cellars is produced by the Blue Mold fungus, consequently if the characteristic moldy odour remains in the cellar this fungus is certainly somewhere about, and every effort should be made to get rid of it before the next season's crop is stored there.

Spotting and Scalding... In addition to the above notes on fungus rot attention should also be called to the spotting and scalding of apples in storage, which is not due to fungi, but which is the direct result of improper storage conditions.

Prevention... In the first place the storage room should be clean. The Blue Mold fungus will grow on various kinds of litter and produce its spores very plentifully on rotten straw. If the cellar is kept free from dirt and refuse, and no rotten fruits are allowed to remain there, the chances for rot infection are greatly lessened.

The cellar should also be kept reasonably dry. The spores of these rot fungi, like seeds, will not start to grow unless they have sufficient water. A reasonably dry cellar will therefore keep the spores from germinating, even if there are some of them present.

The temperature of the cellar should be kept as low as possible. The rot fungi like other plants grow best in warm conditions, and will be able to make very little progress if the temperature is kept within a few degrees of freezing. Rot fungi get into the apple usually at some wound or bruise. The less injury that apples receive in handling the less rot they will develop afterwards.

Some Hints... It is recommended, (1) that apples should be stored in small lots rather than in large close piles or bins. They should preferably be kept in open slatted boxes or other similar containers which will allow all the fruit to have free access to air. (2) That the temperature be kept as low as is consistent with protection from frost and (3) that plenty of ventilation be provided. If the air is changed frequently the incoming oxygen supply will not only renew the oxygen but will drive out the old, stagnant air which is laden with moisture and over-charged with carbon dioxide.

The method of ventilation can best be determined by conditions; in some instances air shafts can be used, while in others the opening of doors and windows on mild days will be possible. In almost all cases some simple means of securing frequent changes of air can be readily adopted and the fruit thus kept free from scald and spot troubles.

POLISH CONTROL OF THE BALTIC RECOMMENDED

Commission Brings in Important Report Dealing With Eastern Boundry—Plebiscite Proposed.

Paris, March 17.—The report of the Polish commission on the eastern boundary, which is in today's business before the council, proposes to give Germany direct land communication across the corridor to the Baltic, planned to be accorded to Poland, and which cuts off part of East Prussia from the rest of Germany. The report suggests that for Poland's security the corridor territory to the east of the Baltic should be demilitarized. It is also proposed by the commission that the 600,000 Protestant Poles in the Masurian lake region be allowed to determine by plebiscite whether they shall remain Catholic Poland or remain German.

DISMISSED SOLDIERS ASSISTED (By Italian-American News Bureau) Rome, March 18.—The government has appropriated 200,000,000 lire to assist discharged soldiers and officers and their families in going abroad. It is estimated that Argentina, the United States and Brazil will absorb fully 150,000 persons.

At a meeting in the commissariat of emigration, attended by the representative of the minister of war, provisions were adopted for the repatriation of dismissed soldiers who are going to foreign countries to rejoin their families. The persons departing will be assembled in the ports of embarkation and provided with food and lodgings. At the time of taking ship they will receive a suit of clothes, underwear, indemnity, a helmet, and a testimonial of character.

DR. ARTHUR B. COBB Dentistry.

AS A LAST RESORT ONLY do we use plates in our Dentistry.

In nine cases out of ten where plates have been used our Crown and Bridge Work Specialists could have accomplished the work without the necessity of a plate.

Just as bridge engineers build great spans across seemingly impossible chasms, demanding only TWO SECURE POINTS for their foundations, so do our bridge work Specialists set in place rows of nearly natural teeth that do everything as well as natural teeth could.

These Dental operations are nothing short of marvelous. They bespeak the skill for which this Office is noted.

AND it is gratifying to know that this skilled Dental service can be yours at extremely reasonable cost. As an example $5 for a crown of excellent quality and Bridge work at same rate.

The courtesy of an interview and a thorough examination are offered entirely without charge.
