BONNET ROUGE. Quebec, 16th Decr. 1841.

Computations and Castings-as "Auditers of Accounts" use the terms among the technicalities of their vocation—seem, in one's ordinary acquaintance with them, as trivial indeed, compared with the spe

It this numbering up of letters, words, &c. really and truly (query by ourselves, notwithstanding?) took up the computer's time at the rate of twelve working hours per diem, for the space of three long years; the individual who performed the feat is contained to the computer's time at the rate of twelve working hours per diem, for the space of three long years; the individual who performed the feat is contained to the contained years; the individual who performed the feat is cer-tainly more to be admired for the patience displayed, than emulated in such a profitless and wanton waste than emulated in such a profitless and wanton waste of precious time.

In regard to the correctness of certain of his calculations, however, he has almost the positive advantage of a non-verification; as the "fearful job" of a similar tedious count, will almost amount to a certain preclusion from the detection of error, if such exists. On this point, one is reminded of the story of Harry the Eighth and the mock Abbot; who, when he gave the King, according to his command, the quantity of water in the sea even to the fraction of a pint, told His Majesty, if he doubted his correctness, to go and measure it himself!

The stack market is dull and inactive, without material variation in prices.

Who could have anticipated the total overthrow of an institution so powerful in capital, so unli nited in credit, has the United States Bank? Who believed that the securities of our states would sell at less than one third of their nominal value?—A price which the interest accruing in five years is sufficient to extinguish.

We have read the remarks of the message on the currency question with much interest, and when the report of the Secretary referred to is presented, shall take occasion to examine it fully so far as the plan is developed we cannot but think it may be adapted to our necessities, and aid in a great measure in the restoration of a sound the fraction of a pint, told His Majesty, if he doubted his correctness, to go and measure it himself!

A SUBSCRIBER has been received.

DISCIPULUS is in a serious error at the outset of his statement of which act we have certain satisfactory evidence in our possession at the present moment, which we shall be happy, to place before him if he wishes it,

A PEDESTRIAN in our next.

A TRADESMAN we are constrained to decline, for the very reason set so the in his own communication, as a question of policy relating to the matters touched upon by him. The accompanying enclosure has been handed over to our Printer as the person more immediately interested in the same; and whose province it is to grant the proper acquittance.

We fear that press of other communications on hand will prevent the lines by ARABELIA LETITIA FLIRT from appearing at present; besides we deem her some what too severe upon our highly respected and long established friends the Old Madis.
