ODDS AND ENDS.

FIZZICAL WEAKNESS.—Love of champagne.

AN honest man is none the worse because a dog barks at him.

THOUGH an honest merchant is a plain dealer a carpenter is a deal planer.

Incredible as it may seem, many of the richest planters in Jamaica live on coffee grounds.

If you want to get all the music out of your piano, play on it with a steam fire-engine for a few moments.

A man, writing poetically of the weather, says, "The backbone of Winter is broken, but the tail wags yet occasionally."

"ERIN-GO-BRAGH.—Weary Traveller—"How far is it to Ballinaclee, my friend?" "Raw Native—"Shure, sor, av ye walk smart it's not more than three moiles."

"You can't do too much for your employer, man,' said somebody to a big-fisted, strong-backed, man-of-all-work, on the wharf. "Arrah," replied Pat, with great emphasis, "neither will I."

The well-known artist, George Cruikshank, is thus referred to in a German biographical dictionary: "A famous caricaturist and artist in London, whose real name is Simon Pure."

"Six feet in his boots!" exclaimed Mrs. Beeswax. "What will the impudence of this world come to, I wonder? Why, they might as well tell me that the man had six heads in his hat."

SUM marry for love without a cent in their pocket, nor a friend in the world, nor a drop ov pedigree. This looks desperate, but it iz the strength ov the game. If marrying for love ain't a success, then matrimony iz a ded beet.—Billings.

A FAMILIAR COMPLAINT.—Vet. (who has been inspecting old Miss Twitter's new nag): Well, all I can say, m'm, is that he's got spavins.—Mary: Lor! shall I go and get 'im somethink 'ot, mum, the same as you takes for em? (To think she should have mistaked "spavins" for "spassims!")

A QUAKER gentleman, riding in a carriage with a fashionable lady decked with a profusion of jewellery, heard her complain of the cold. Shivering in her lace bonnet and shawl as light as a cobweb, she exclaimed, "What shall I do to get warm?" "I really don't know," replied the Quaker, solemnly, "unless thee should put on another breast-pin!"

LOST HIS BALANCE.—Who is he?" inquired some one of a policeman who was endeavoring to raise a drunkard from the ground. "I do not know; he can't give an account of himself." Of course not! How could you expect an "account" from a man who has lost his "balance?"

RATIOCINATION.

"Mamma! don't forget to ask Papa about going to Brighton for a fortnight!"

"Hush, dear! I'm afraid it won't do! You know how dreadfully the seaside upsets Papa for the first week always!"

"Yes; but Papa needn't come down till the second week, you know!"

The heart of a deacon who officiated with the contribution box at a recent meeting for foreign missions in Boston, was gladdened by observing among its contents a neatly-rolled package. On hastily investigating, his former belief in the depravity of human nature was changed to a certainty by discovering one dollar and a cent, and upon the paper the following: "The cent is for the heathen, and the dollar to get it to them."

AFFECTING RHYMES.—The obituarian who jerks sweet poetry for the Philadelphia Ledger had a rough time in making a rhyme for the too prevalent disease of the season, but finally produced the following:

Our little Sallie did to heaven go
Baby life so sweet is:
She was afflicted with the cerebro—
Spinal meningit's.

'Tis hard to lose our little Sallie so,
But the reflection sweet is,
That she has gone where there's no cerebro—
Spinal meningit's,

The enfant terrible of a Washington family, whose sister Eliza is a shining belle in society, was allowed a seat near one of the distinguished guests at a dinner-party given by his father, the other day, and, in the midst of the merriment he startled the company by propounding the conundum, 'Why is father like the devil?' A painful pause ensued, and, as no one ventured to answer, he shouted out, 'Because he's the father of Lize!' Probably no boy in the country was ever put to bed quicker than he on this occasion.

A young couple were sitting together in a romantic spot, with birds and flowers about them, when the following dialogue ensued.

'My dear, if the sacrifice of my life would please thee, most gladly would I lay it at thy feet.'

'Oh, sir, you are too kind! But it just reminds me that I wish you'd leave off using tobacco.'

'Can't think of it. It's a habit to which I am wedded.'

'Very well, sir; since this is the way you lay down your life for me, and as you are already wedded to tobacco, I'll take good care you are never wedded to me, as it would be bigamy.'

A Kentuckian and a Yankee were once riding through the woods, the latter on an inferior animal. The Yank wanted to make a "swap," but he did not see how he was going to do it. At last he thought of a plan. His horse had been taught to sit down like a dog whenever he was touched with the spurs. Seeing a turkey the Yankee made his horse perform this trick, and asserted that he was pointing game, as was his custom. The Kentuckian rode in the direction indicated by the horse's nose, and up rose a turkey. This settled the matter; the trade was made and saddle and horses exchanged. Shortly they came to a deep, rapid stream, over which the black horse carried his rider with ease. But the Kentuckian, with the Yankee's old beast, found great difficulty in getting over, and when he reached the middle of the stream, he was afraid the horse would allow himself to be carried away, and endeavored to spur him up to a more vigorous action. Down sat the horse on his haunches. "Look here," shouted the enraged Kentuckian on the other side of the stream, "what does all this mean?" "I want you to know, stranger," cried the Yankee, preparing to ride away, "that horse will point fish just as well as he will fowl."

The Colorado Potato Beetle.

This scourge has undoubtedly now obtained a strong foothold in Canada, and the probabilities are that we shall have to contend with it this year. In digging our own potatoes last fall, we came across swarms of the beetles, which had already burrowed in the soil, and there had taken up warm quarters in which, in a torpid state, to put in a snug winter. In spots we turned up fifteen and twenty of the full-grown beetles; and our observation was corroborated by nearly all our neighbours. We hope that in time the natural insect enemies or parasites of the "potato bug" will increase in such numbers as to destroy the root-growers' foe, but there can be little doubt that in the season about to open their ravages will be repeated.

It is not necessary here to explain the appearance of the true Colorado potato beetle, as nearly all farmers have seen the little pest, and are not apt again to take any other lined beetle for the Colorado. Suffice in to say that the potato beetle has ten black stripes upon its back five on each wing. The eggs are laid in clusters of a bright yellow, of from thirty to fifty in a bunch, and always upon the under side of the potato leaf. The larvæ when first hatched are very small, of a bright orange colour, and as they increase in size the head becomes larger and black, while the body assumes a brighter orange until it assimilates to the bright yellow, which is the characteristic colour of the full grown beetle. The body of the grub is also much arched up as it increases in size. It has been said by some authorities that a single pair of these beetles are capable of producing from twenty-five to forty millions a year. Now, while we dare not give credence to such an astounding statement, yet there can be no question that its increase is enormous, and that if unchecked it is capable of destroying every potato plant in Canada.

We would now offer a few remarks as to the best preventatives. First. Do not have a larger acerage of potatoes than you can thoroughly attend to. It has been proposed, and the idea appears to us practicable, to plant a patch of early potatoes as soon as possible in the season. By this means, it is believed, the beetle can be easily destroyed by the deadly remedies of which we shall presently speak. It has also been supposed that a plot of potatoes surrounded by a bush or even by Indian corn, will be safe from attack, as it is contended that the beetle will not find its way across land covered with woods, or with a thick rank growth such as that formed by a crop of Indian corn. This may have been true when the beetle first appeared in Canada, but we are inclined to doubt its efficacy now that the Colorado has taken up such a very strong position amongst us. It has been found also that some kinds of potatoes are less subject to attack than others, this has been notably the case with the early rose and peach blows, but in the coming season we look for no delicacy of taste on the part of our enemy.

Remedies—The following is condensed from the report to the Hon. Jno. Carling, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario in 1871, by Messrs. W. Saunders and E. B. Reed, both eminent Canadian entomologists.

Arsenious acid, (arsenic): the quantity sufficient to destroy the insect was more or less destructive to the leaf, still the gentlemen were of opinion that when Paris green could not be obtained, the above might be used in the proportion of one ounce to one pound of flour, to be coloured with charcoal or some black powder, so as to lessen the risk of accident from its use. Powdered cobalt, (fly poison), was used in the same proportion as the mixture above named, and with about the same results, but is an expensive drug. Bichromate of potash, used by the experimenters in the proportion of two ounces dissolved in three gallons of water, killed the insects effectually, but also destroyed the plant. The experiment was not however tried with a greater dilution in water, and therefore it may yet, in a weakened form, be practicable. Slight experiment is needed to test this. Carbolate of lime: the experimenters tried first an article known as Dougall's but without success; subsequently an article obtained from Lyman Bros., Toronto, a black powder manufactured from coal tar, was found effectual on the larvæ. This was more expensive than Paris Green, but there is in its favour the fact that it is less poisonous to the user than the latter article Ashes and air-slacked lime in combination was not satisfactorily tried, though used by many farmers. We may, however, say that reports on the subject, contained in American papers, have spoken highly of this mixture as a remedy applied by dredging when the dew was on the plant. We may also mention that sulphate of copper (bluestone), and hellebore were pronounced useless.

The most effectual remedy is, doubtless that of hand-picking, which must be persevered in daily, but, of course, is only practicable on comparatively small plots. Take a stick and knock the insects off the plant into a dish of some sort.

Amongst the natural enemies of the plant are all the Lady birds (the dearest friends of insect nature that the farmer possesses); also the rapacious, soldier-bug, reduvius raptatorius, of a light brown colour, which attacks the larvæ, in its the carabi, or carnivorous ground beetle; the calosoma calidum, a beetle very active in its movements, with shining black wing cases, and with six rows of sunken coppery spots—found under stones and logs in damp weather in May and June; the Harpalus caliginosus, or the murky ground beetle, of a dull, dark colour—and many other kinds of which Messrs. Saunders and Reed entertain no doubt about discovering in the character of parasites to our enemy. Whether the colorado has actually proved injurious to poultry that have attacked and eaten them, the gentlemen above named, from the conflicting evidence obtained, were unable to decide. The best and most effectual remedy yet tried is

PARIS GREEN (arsenite of copper.) This is a deadly poison, and from its pulverized condition is very insidious, and may be inhaled by the person using it, if not handled with great care. To apply it, mix one part of commercial Paris Green by weight with ten or twelve parts of flour, and with a flour dredger reversed and attached to a long slanting handle, and early in the morning, when the dew is on the potato plant, go down the rows sprinkling your mixture on the vines—but remember when you are dusting, so to walk that the wind shall always blow from your person towards the vine which you are sprinkling.

CARELESSNESS.—Many persons neglect their horses' health and condition until it is too late, when at a trifling expence and no trouble the horse might have saved if attended to in time.—To all who may have occasion to use an article of the kind we would confidently recommend "Darley's Condition Powders and Arabian Heave Remedy;" it is without doubt the best preparation in use, as thousands who have used it testify. Remember the name, and see that the signature of Herd & Co. is on each package. Northrop & Lyman, Newcastle, Ont., proprietors for Canada. Sold by all medicine dealers.

A CALL SOLICITED.

Goderich, 15 Aug 1870

"A Large Soul in a Small Body."

The above cut represents our $70 Organs.

WHILE thanking our former agents and customers for their liberal patronage and confidence for the past year [and which we still hope to retain,] we would respectfully call their attention to our style No. 61. This Organ being a 6 octave, Double Reed [C Scale] is a very desirable instrument for advanced players, Pianists or parties educating themselves for the pianoforte; and as a parlor Instrument, it meets every requirement.—Our No. 50 is the same as 61, but different style, and more expensive. Our No. 32 is pronounced by all who have seen it to be the finest Instrument in the world for the price; this organ has two complete setts same as No 30. with two additional half setts, viz, Hautboy and Vox Celeste, making four setts from middle C up and also 1½ octaves of Bass Profundo. We are the first and only parties who make this line of Instruments, and the universal satisfaction they have given, and the immense sale of these Organs, show that they are appreciated and encourages us to make them a speciality.

Applications for agencies, where we have no agents, at all times confidentially solicited.

Sole Proprietors and Manufacturers of the
