Hysterical Ravings.

Our onetime well balanced Duckworth Street evening contemporary begins its literary contribution to the week—we had almost written weak—by indulging in a series of hysterical ravings against all the bold bad, paper and pulp companies of Canada, who according to our e.c., have entered into a conspiracy to deprive Newfoundland of all the benefits likely to accrue from the passage of the Humber Deal. These Canadian interests, to quote the scare-heads in Monday's Advocate are fighting Imperial concessions being granted for the industrial development of Newfoundland. "Would Canada Keep Newfoundland Resources Locked up for Ever" is the wailing query of the Coaker organ. Funny isn't it that this country cannot do a thing without treading on Canadian corns and thus causing all the bigfooted fellows up that way to enter into a compact to deprive us of our rights. Fancy Canadians being jealous of the Humber Scheme? Who can imagine it? The ponderous brain which generated such an idea could only have been trained within the precincts of the Advocate office, and perfected at a surgery not far away from that delectable spot. The mountain in labor brought forth a mouse. The Advocate in the throes of gestation brings forth a plot to destroy Newfoundland and its prospective industries; particularly that mysterious one on the Humber, and in its parturition, is assisted by a well known physician-politician, to whom all things in the way of preferment have come since his advent to this colony less than a quarter century ago. He cries Wolf! The Advocate also cries Wolf! Ware Canada is their warning. 'Ware Humber would be the real warning and that which the people should heed. There has been too much boasting and advertising this so far nebulous proposition by Government members, hangers on and partisans, but nothing has been told the people excepting that the Humber deal—or steal if you prefer—must go through, otherwise the future of Newfoundland hangs in the balance. The acceptance of the Humber Proposition is necessary if the country is to be saved the Advocate pathetically announces, and in the next breath it frantically shrieks that Canadian interests are determined to block the scheme. No explanation is given; no arguments advanced just to show why the Canadians are opposed to the present pet project and only hope of the Squires-Coaker administration and following. The people no longer fall for journalistic hysterics. They have to be shown from whence the benefits will come. Ever since this Humber thing was mooted the Advocate has been dilating on the wonderful advantages that must accrue to Newfoundland, once it is in operation. But our contemporary has either neglected or forgotten to enter into details. Information has been asked of it but has been withheld, because the Advocate knows no more about the particulars of the Humber scheme as it applies to this colony than the man in the street, and will not know them until the agreement has been finalised and ready for submission either to the people or the Legislature. We would not for a moment suggest that all the cry about an Imperial Government guarantee is mainly piffle, but if some person would call the bluff, it would expose a valueless hand. Hence the shrieks, fearing this might be done.

Notable Events in History.

BATTLE OF THE ALMA.

On the steep banks of the river Alma (Crimea) on Sept. 20, 1854, a brilliant victory was won by the Allied British and French armies, under General Lord Raglan and Marshal St. Arnaud, over the Russian army commanded by Prince Menschikov. The Allies completed their disembarkation on Sept. 16, and four days later opened the attack with victory at the Alma, and forthwith commenced the siege of Sebastopol.

THE FALL OF DELHI.

Delhi, the capital of the Mogul Empire, was the headquarters of the rebellious Sepoys during the stirring days of the Indian Mutiny, having been captured by the mutineers from Merut, who overran the remainder of the British garrison, after Willoughby had exploded the powder magazine rather than let it fall into the hands of the Indian soldiery. The assault on the city was made under the command of General Nicholson, who was killed during the operation, and on September 20, 1857, the rebels surrendered.

KITCHENER AT FASHODA.

On Sept. 20, 1898, the British flag was raised over Fashoda (Soudan) by the late Lord Kitchener, then Sirdar of the Anglo-Egyptian army. This post was occupied by French soldiers under Major Marchand, but Kitchener informed the commandant that he could not tolerate any interference, and Marchand abandoned the post. The episode almost precipitated war between Britain and France.

War Aid From Newfoundland.

LOBELIA SHOULD BE REFITTED. A correspondent suggests that in view of the statement of the Prime Minister to the Imperial Government that if there is a row, Newfoundland wants to be in it, the Lobelia should be at once refitted and placed at the disposal of the Admiralty, for service in Aegean Waters. We regret to have to inform our correspondent that the Lobelia has been sold to private parties and is now meeting her end at the hands of the shipbreakers. Had the ship remained with the Government, doubtless she could have been put into commission, with the Minister of Marine and Fisheries as Admiral, and the Prime Minister, who has such a taste for fighting, Major of Marines.

Hand Shaking.

A VERY ANCIENT CUSTOM.

The salutation of English speaking races by shaking hands is of very ancient origin. It is mentioned in the writings of the Greek authors Homer and Aristophanes and by the Latin Virgil. As the confirmation of a bargain we read in II. Kings X.: 15, "and he baled him and said to him, 'Is thine heart right as my heart is with thy heart. And Jehonadab answered and said, 'It is. If it be give me thine hand. And he gave him his hand.'"

We have removed our Grocery Department from Water Street to our Provision Store, where we will carry all lines of family groceries and provisions, both wholesale and retail. Open Saturday nights. BISHOP, SONS & CO., LTD., Phone 617.

Address on Coal.

EXPERT TALKS TO ROTARIANS.

A most interesting address on coal was made by Mr. H. F. Thomas, O.B.E., of Portcharwa, South Wales, at yesterday's Rotary luncheon. Mr. Thomas said there was no danger of the world's coal supply becoming exhausted as China had the commodity in unlimited quantities. He pointed out the differences between Welsh and Cape Breton coal. During the war, Mr. Thomas was engaged in the Fuel Supply Department of the British Ministry of Shipping, and he related many of his experiences while so occupied. The romantic growth of Cardiff, and the recent United States coal strike were other topics touched on. A vote of thanks was passed Mr. Thomas at the conclusion of his address.

GOOD HOOKING ON LOCAL GROUNDS.

Fish are still plentiful on the local grounds and practically all the boats are operating. Catches range from 1 to 8 qts. for two men boats. Those returning this morning had fish of splendid size which were quickly disposed of at the fish markets in the different coves.

Newfoundland War Memorial Unveiled.

At Amiens Cathedral, on Sunday, August 27th, a plaque commemorating the Newfoundland soldiers who fell in the first battle of the Somme was unveiled by Sir Richard Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland.

Sir Richard Squires, in presenting the tablet, said that it was appropriate that this, the first occasion of the formal presentation of a war memorial by Newfoundland to France, should be at Amiens, for the capital city of the Somme had many historic associations with Newfoundland. From the towns of Northern France many sturdy seamen had gone to the shores and bank fisheries of Newfoundland. The bank fisheries were still pre-occupied by French fishermen and France had the Colonial possession of St. Pierre and Miquelon off the southern coast of Newfoundland. The names of many of the towns and fishing villages in Newfoundland were French, and on the south coast there were still a number of French fishing and farming families who retained their own language and customs. Amiens had been specially identified with Newfoundland because of the Anglo-French Treaty of 1802 which bore the name of the city. Under that treaty certain outstanding disputes between England, France and other countries were adjusted, and Newfoundland, as a British Colony, and the fishing rights on her shores, were particularly affected thereby.

In the Anglo-French fends of centuries past each nation learned to appreciate the military and naval prowess and patriotic spirit of the other. By no surer means could a solid foundation of permanent international friendship be established than by the mutual appreciation and esteem of honourable combatants. Napoleon taught the world the military power of an organized and united France, and years after his burial on British soil his body was returned to France. And in his new French grave there was buried every trace of previous hostility. The world war had cemented that friendship. The remembrance of the war must die before the French and British peoples could seriously disagree, because the fields of France were the common mingling ground of the best blood of both countries. The two peoples were a unit in a great fight for a common cause, one in reverse, and one in victory, one in the national agony of war.

The Newfoundland soldier laid appreciated the valour and friendliness of their French comrades in arms. They would never forget the courtesy, consideration and care of the people of the Somme, with whose lives, sufferings and death they had been identified. Sir Richard then formally presented the tablet.

M. Dormand, who represented the Prefect of the Somme, in accepting the tablet on behalf of the French Government, expressed the gratitude felt for the soldiers from Newfoundland who fell in France.

The tablet, which is of marble, has at its head the Newfoundland crest—a caribou head—and bears the following inscription:

To the glory of God,
to the honour of the Island
and to the enduring memory of those of the Newfoundland Contingent who fell in the first battle of the Somme
"Behold this stone shall be witness unto us."
—Joshua 24, 27.

Underneath the above is a similar inscription in French.

Those present included: Sir Richard Squires, Prime Minister of Newfoundland; the Hon. W. R. Warren, Minister of Justice and Attorney-General; Col. Nangle, representing the Royal Newfoundland Regiment; Capt. Vator Gordon, Acting High Commissioner for Newfoundland; Lt.-Col. C. O'N. Conroy; Mr. W. Hutchings and Mr. J. L. Murphy, representing the Great War Veterans Association; Gen. Phillipot, commanding the 2nd Army in France; M. Dormand, representing the Prefect of the Somme; Mr. Sutcliffe, British Consul at Amiens; Maj. Binney, representing the Imperial War Graves Commission; Maj. Phillips, representing I.W.G.C., Somme District; and others—Canadian Gazette.

Shocking Tragedy

Under this caption one reads only too often of some sad affair, which leaves the mind in a state of depression. The world does not want any more sadness, and anyone who can distribute joy and gladness, is really a benefactor to the human race.

Nature plays an important part in this respect and makes a benefactor over night. To illustrate this, Frost has caused an unprecedented offer to the Public of thousands of beautiful Giant Asters at a ridiculously low price of Twenty Cents a large bunch from The Valley Nurseries. Phone 1514, only a few days left, then up goes the price, at once. Mrs. Molloy's, Winsor and Wardfield, Butler Brothers, Water St., and Blue Puttee, Rawlin's Cross.

HIS DIARY.

Sept. 19th.—The news of the near east situation is that it is little like to come to war, which is a great relief to many. The Prime Minister sends a message to the Government of Great Britain and says a silly thing, being that Newfoundland does not want the British Empire to get into a row. Povy tells me how he will go to hunt for caribou to-morrow, which I envy him for, seeing how my wife will not allow me to go abroad again, and is, I think, jealous of me. She would have me go to walk with her this evening, which I do most unwillingly, being mighty tired.

"The Queen of Sheba."

"IF I MUST BE A KING FOR ALL THE TO-MORROWS—LET ME BE A MAN FOR TO-NIGHT."

Torn from the heart of him whom the whole world honors and reveres as one of the greatest and most outstanding characters of all time—wise Solomon himself—the scene that embodies the above cry with its ring of despair, of love too great for control is made to live, vividly and clearly, in one of the most beautiful love stories the screen has ever produced.

Against a background of marvellous brilliance, with all the lure of ancient Egypt—its riot of wealth and colorful barbaric splendor, is unfolded—tenderly and reverently—a bible story that for sheer beauty has no equal. She is full of ecstasy and despair—of passion and pain, of love and death—that one sits breathless with interest from the first solemn scene where David the King, dying, full of years, bequeaths his crown and kingdom to his son Solomon, to the last great scene where Solomon himself, after all is over—his love and renunciation accomplished—watches the caravan that escorts the one love of his life, Sheba the queen back to her kingdom wind slowly out of his sight and out of his life across the trackless desert.

Such a great picture beggars description; it can only be spoken of in superlatives, yet it carries a lesson also. This wondrous bible story so fascinatingly told, so full of absorbing interest that it could be seen not once but many times before all its glamor and witchery would be grasped by the onlooker!

McMurdo's Store News.

WEDNESDAY, SEPT. 20.

Pinex differs from most remedies in form, in that it is supplied in a concentrated form, out of which a large bottle of full strength cough mixture can be made by the addition of Simple Syrup, which may easily be made at home, or which we can supply on request. Thus made, a sixteen ounce bottle of cough mixture can be prepared for about 85 cents, a very reasonable sum as things go. And the Pinex Cough Syrup is good at that—none better. Price, Pinex concentration, 70 cents a bottle.

We have a few Accouchement Sets complete, which we can offer at $15 each.

Labrador Quotations.

NO SET PRICE FIXED.

According to advices received from New York local buyers are quoting $29 per cask c.i.f. for Labrador fish. At the rate the price to the fisherman would be little over $4 per quintal, as freight insurance, tax and packing cannot be covered for less than $4.90. So far very little Labrador fish has arrived in port and as far as can be learned no price has been set, although fishermen are expected around $5.

The Power of 20 Cents.

Do you know you can redecorate and brighten your home for only Twenty Cents, by buying a large bunch of Asters at that price from The Valley Nurseries. Phone 1514, only a few days left, then up goes the price, at once. Mrs. Molloy's, Winsor and Wardfield, Butler Brothers, Water St., and Blue Puttee, Rawlin's Cross.

New Industry at Ramea.

PROMOTERS WILL PACK SCOTCH CURE HERRING.

By last trip of Glencoe, east from Port aux Basques, a quantity of barrels and other supplies was landed at Ramea, where during the fall and winter herring fishery the Scotch pack will be undertaken. The promoters of this new industry have every new confidence in the success of their enterprise, as around Ramea Island and in the reaches numerous herring have recently schooled. A market has already been obtained for all that can be packed, and if the herring continue to school as reported there will be considerable employment given the people. One schooner with a crew and gear is already anchored in the main harbor. Her owner is putting up herring of ordinary pack and so far has done remarkably well.

Little Employment Along Waterfront.

Along the waterfront there is at present very little employment, with the exception of two or three firms which are handling fish coming in from the nearby outports. Only very few schooners have yet arrived from the outports, but with such splendid weather for curing an influx may be looked for within the next week or so. The price for Shore fish still holds at $6.50 for large and $6 for small talquid.
