Sir Oliver's Retort.

A Conservative Senator deemed it policy to attack the new Government at Ottawa because Premier Laurier chose to call to his assistance, as Ministers, statesmen who had up till then been at the head of the Administration in their respective Provinces.

It was not good politics to quibble over those appointments.

Sir Oliver Mowat, one of the statesmen whose translation to Ottawa was objected to, made an effective answer to the attack in the Senate last night. He pointed out that Mr. Chapleau and Mr. Angers both gave up the Premiership of Quebec to become members of an Ottawa Conservative Government; but the politicians who now raise a clamor against a similar transference of energy and ability on the part of Liberal statesmen, had then not a word of condemnation against their own leaders.

Sir Oliver very justly contends that It is in the highest interests of the country that the best available men shall be chosen by the Dominion Premier to guide the destinies of Canada.

The women voters in Wyoming, Colorado and Utah are taking a great interest in the present Presidential election. Like their sisters in other parts of the world who have no votes, they want good money and plenty of st.

The Danger of It.

Chinamen introduced leprosy into British Columbia, necessitating the essablishment of a lazaretto on an island n the Pacific coast. A Chinaman has tust died in Montreal from the same iread disease. It is advisable to discourage, by every reasonable means, the coming to Canada of immigrants Hable to spread this and other repuls-

Some people object to further restriction of Mongolian immigration, on the would resent the restriction of their liberty to settle in China or Japan.

If Canadians went to these eastern lands, taking with them leprosy, small-Dox and other loathsome diseases; if Canadian settlers lower the standard of living among the workers in China and Japan, we would willingly concede that there was an analogy between the two cases. As it is, there is no analogy. A man's first duty is to his household; a State's first duty

The oil producers and refiners of Canada must be interested to know that a motion to sacrifice their interests, by the entire removal of the was moved by a Conservative of the Canadian House of Commons last night, indorsed by Sir Charles H. Tupper, and voted for, almost entirely, by Conservatives. Not a Liberal supported the motion, which Premier Laurier declared to be pre-

Britain Holds Her Own. Those Canadians who have so detested Britain's trade policy that ruld not say a good word of it, have an effective answer to their arguments in the trade returns for the first even months of the present year, just completed. The increase of the exports from Great Britain to foreign countries in the corresponding period is $68,300,000 over that of last year. The imports are, of course, increased as well. A very large portion of the railway material required by China, Japan and the Argentine Republic have been supplied by Great Britain. Four-fifths of the trade of China is et present done with Great Britain. and if her manufacturers and merchants are careful to study the wants of their customers that proportion may be maintained in the trade of awakened China. Important Sewerage Decision. Mr. Justice Meredith has just renplained that certain private parties in structed, "discharging noxious or deleterious water or substances into a heard at the recent Lambton assizes in Sarnia, and judgment was reserved. Judge Meredith has now delivered judgment, dismissing the case against ing judgment against the corporation of the town, and $50 damages; suspending the operation of the injunction to close the sewers for nine months, to give the council time to abate the nuisance and comply with the requirements of the judgment.

The moral of this decision, as was the effect of the decision of the Supreme Court at Ottawa in regard to the South London sewerage case, is that corporation councils must provide proper means for carrying off the sewage from municipalities under their Petrolea, it is made manifest, must provide needed sewerage, as well as waterworks, if it is to take its proper place as a progressive town.

It is given forth as a significant fact that of the existing United States pensioners of the war of 1812 only 21 were surviving soldiers or sailors, while 3,826 were widows. Thus is the truthfulness of the story of "The Amnesty" maintained. It must not be forgotten, however, that wives always average considerably younger than their husbands, and it is not to e wondered at that a great many of them survive men who were wounded or broken down in health in war. Nevertheless, the disparity is remark-

While it is true that the two greatest empires of modern times are closer together than they have been for two generations, both are known to have policies of national lable by royal family predilections, nevertheless the Czar of all the Russias can do much to help along an amicable solution of many points in Eastern policy.

It would certainly be a wise thing for Great Britain and Russia to get together, and by a conciliatory course the British Premier has so impressed and Great Britain, for example, were agreed on the question of the disposiwould be difficult for any combination of nations to resist the clearly de-

Canada in Paris.

A correspondent of the Montreal Star writes to ask why the Canadian consulate in Paris is not to be found in the directory now in the pocket guides with which Parisian policemen are armed? He says that he searched in vain in the directory for the name of M. Fabre, the Canadian agent. The Dominion, he concludes, has lost prestige through this neglect. Under the late Government, the Canadian agencv in Paris cost several thousands of dollars annually, but it appears that it has been of very little value to this

Either the consulate should be abolished, or a live agent, who will see to it that it is made a force for the benefit of the Dominion should be placed at its head.

An ill-assorted marriage will be that between Princess Helene of Montenegro and the Crown Prince of Naples, heir to the throne of Italy. His subjects number less than 200,000, his country is tiny, nomentous European and Asiatic and his capital town of Cettinje has only one hotel, no bank or theater, and no houses of decent appearace except the shabby old villa in which he lives. The only virtue of the Crown Prince of Naples is that some day he will be King of Italy. He is badtempered, dissolute in habits, and fond of gambling and drink. He is a hypochondriac, and when not really il imagines that he is so. If his bride is a dutiful wife, she will spend most of her time nursing him.
