Largest Deposits of Corundum Hver Known

Unearthed Down East-Government Provides That the Milling Must Be Done in Ontario.

Toronto, July 15 .- It is announced that the greatest discovery of corundum deposits ever known has been made in Ontario. Prof. Miller, of Kingston University, had located oc-currences through seven different ownships, and over an area of about 100 square miles. These townships are Carlow, Raglan, Bangor and Radcliffe, in Hastings, and Brudnell, Lynedoch and Sebastopol, in Renfrew. The length of the corundum belt from east to west is about 30 miles, and its average breadth is about 31/2 miles. It embraces over 60,000 acres, in all but a few thousands of which the mineral rights are held by the crown. Another area has been partially explored in the township of Methuen, in Peterborough, county, where corundum of fine quality has been discovered, but the extent of it has not yet been determined. There is also a probability of it being found in the townships of Dungannon and Farady, where the rock formations are favorable.

At present one of the chief uses for corundum is as an abrasive, yet, owing to its scarcity and cost, no great quantity is available. The best known deposits are in Georgia and North Carolina, but these are limited in extent, and are practically controlled by a combine. Emery has accordingly been the chief natural material used as an abrasive, being found in several countries in large abundance. If cheapness and efficiency can secure the market, the establishment of works in this province may yet drive carborundum and emery to the wall. As an ore of aluminum it has a great future if some present difficulties which appear to be only of a trifling character are surmounted. Pure corundum, which is alumina, is composed of 46.8 per cent of oxygen and 53.2 per cent aluminum, and in the treatment of ore at the Kingston School of Mining corundum has been produced 991/2 per cent fine. The Ontario Government has issued an order in council framing regulations that will insure the carrying on in the province of the manufactures that may be founded upon corundum. remanded at Bow street police cou.c der in council providing for the leasing today on the charge of stealing $475 of corundum lands gives the govern-from the department of agriculture at ment power to fix the maximum price at which corundum shall be sold, thus effectively preventing combinations to limit output and increase prices. On-taric should speedily develop the man-ufacture of abrasive corundum and of aluminium on a large scale.

LIFE SAVED .- Mr. James Bryson ameron writes: "I was confined to my bed with inflammation of the lungs and was given up by physicians. A neighbor advised me to try Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, stating that his wife had used it for a throat trouble with the best results. Acting on this advice, I procured the medicine, and less than half a bottle cured me; I certainly believe it saved my life. was with reluctance that I consented to a trial, as I was reduced to such a state that I doubted the power of any remedy to do me good.
