THREE ROYAL DENTAL PLEASURES FOR YOUR CHOOSING

Tooth Paste

Truly "a Dainty Paste for Dainty People"—for it embodies not only perfect cleansing and antiseptic qualities but conveniences in use that make it unique amongst dentifrices. The winding key at the base of the tube enables you to use every atom of paste—and keep the tube neat and plump at all times. Then too, the Paste itself comes from its tube in a ribbon of special shape that clings closely to the brush—avoiding waste, saving time and temper. Owing to the antiseptic qualities of Royal Vinolia Tooth Paste, the teeth are not only made white and lustrous, but are preserved from decay. Price 25 cents.

Tooth Powder

In this remarkable Powder science has succeeded in combining that most useful of all cleansing agents, that arch-enemy of decay—OXYGEN. Hitherto this most elusive but desirable friend to the teeth, the gums and the mouth has never been fully available. Oxygen, the cleanser, the purifier, is now at your service in Royal Vinolia Tooth Powder—which means that every tiny interstice of the teeth, every nook and corner of the mouth is searched, cleansed and purified as never before. In boxes of attractive shape, with patent top so that there is no waste in applying the Powder to your brush. Price 25 cents.

Fluid Dentifrice

The exquisite and refreshing flavour of this liquid dentifrice will be the most welcome thing about your daily ablutions, once you commence its use. A perfect tooth and mouth cleanser though it is—its action goes much further, for germs of disease as well as tooth-decay are daily eliminated from the mouth. Children delight in Royal Vinolia Fluid Dentifrice; there is no trouble in teaching them the habit of tooth cleanliness with its use.

Price 25 cents.

On the Window of Your Soul

BY MISS BILLIE BURKE,
AMERICA'S MOST CHARMING YOUNG ACTRESS.
The first word—"YOUR SKIN IS THE WINDOW NOT ONLY OF YOUR BODY, BUT OF YOUR SOUL."

A famous physician who is writing on the cultivation of health said the other day that "your skin is the window of your physique—by it you can tell the state of your health." As I read it I thought we could go farther even than that and say that through the window of your skin one could also tell your disposition, tastes and vocation.

this be sure and become interested in something which will take you out of yourself, something that will make you forget that there is such a person as you in the world.

Just one last word—IF YOU ARE UNHAPPY IT MAY BE A CALL FROM YOUR LIVER FOR MORE TEMPERATE LIVING.

Cynthia Grey's Many Answers

[Correspondents are requested to make their inquiries as brief as possible, and to write on one side of the paper only. It is impossible to give replies within a stated time, as all letters have to be answered in turn as they are received.]

From a Detroit Home.

Dear Miss Grey: Would you please give me a few ideas for an afternoon birthday party for a girl of eleven, the birthday being July 24? What is the flower for the month, and would it be suitable for decorations? I am sure that you would be able to suggest a few nice amusements for the children. Thanking you in advance, I am,

A. Interested Detroit Reader.

The July flower is the water lily, which no doubt will be difficult to procure. Could you utilize crepe paper flowers for decoration purposes, the centre of the table? They would be very pretty and novel. For a children's party it is usually best to seat them together around the dining-table for lunch. Would suggest iced cocoa, whole wheat lettuce sandwiches, plain vanilla ice cream, one light loaf cake with white icing, cherry tarts or little leg cakes, and, of course, the birthday cake.

As to games, there is little doubt the youngsters enjoy best the old-fashioned card games such as all around the money, London bridge, drop the handkerchief, or hunt the thimble. For a little variation in the latter game, you might have some one seated at the piano to play softly when the seekers are "cold" and loudly when "hot" instead of calling out in the usual way. A new form of blind man's bluff is to give each child the name of an animal which they are to represent. The game proceeds as usual, only when a player is touched by the blind man he or she must imitate the cry of the animal represented. If the blindman guesses the identity of the player, the latter is blind-folded in his place.

Regarding favors, an excellent way is to distribute them at the close of the party by means of a Jack Horner pie. Make a huge pile out of crepe paper, and conceal the little gifts within, tying the boys' favors with red ribbon and the girls' with white. The ends of the ribbon must overhang slightly. Each little guest is told to grasp a ribbon end, and at a given signal all pull and secure their gift.

A Rival Suitor.

Dear Miss Grey: I am nineteen and in love with a girl one year my junior. We met over a year ago and became close friends.

About six months ago she met another fellow, whom she seemed to like very much, and as he had an automobile he used to visit her regularly, often taking her to dances where sometimes I met her, and though she treated me very nicely, there is something about her manner that puzzles me. How can I find out the reason for this, and if she still cares for me? E. O.

A.—If a rival has an automobile, that makes him very formidable, especially if the girl cares for you in only a half-hearted way.

The only way to learn the real state of her feelings is to go to her and ask her. There is nothing that equals definite understanding in a situation like yours.

Does He Care?

Dear Miss Grey: I am young lady twenty years of age and in love with a young man two years my senior. This gentleman calls on me twice a week, and has been coming to the house for the past six months. Some times he acts as though he did not care for me, and other times as if he does.

A.—Unless he cared more for you he would not have called twice a week for six months. Don't make the mistake of demanding that a sweetheart be always on his knees. He has other interests in life, remember, and I am sure love will thrive stronger and last longer if not on constant parade. Be sensible, my dear, and keep your love for him in control.

The Nest Builders

[By Beatrice Fairfax.]

[Copyright: 1912.]

Almost every girl who is in love with love, and all girls are, or I pity them, at some time in her life begins to store away odd pieces of lace and embroidery; a pretty cushion cover, a dolly or two, pretty and dainty personal articles.

These she keeps secretly by themselves, and occasionally gets them out, and turns them over with a happy look in her eyes, and then puts them back again.

Is she engaged to be married? Not necessarily. Has she a lover? Perhaps not; it is immaterial.

But she has something which represents both the engagement ring and the love-dreams.

And having these dreams, she is as happy as if every day she had picked up a horseshoe.

This very prosaic world of ours would be beyond endurance if it were not for the dream part.

"Life," says an old Arab proverb, "is composed of two parts: the past which is a dream, and the future which is a wish."

It could say more, and that is that

The Birthday Calendar

JULY 13

IF THIS IS YOUR BIRTHDAY.

Keep your money safe, and avoid friends who always want to borrow. If you do lend money, consider it given, thus avoiding disappointment.

Those born today will be quick and intelligent, but unless they learn to govern their tempers they will fall short of the place which they should occupy.

Too many social events may seriously interfere with your prospects, especially if you are in a hurry. For those who use discretion, good fortune and romance is indicated.

Those born today will be fond of travel, especially in the water. They will be fond of public projects, and many will become highly honored.

THE PROGRESSIVE DRUGGISTS.

the past, or dream part, influences the future, or wish part; indeed, it extends into the future till one doesn't know if one is dreaming or wishing.

Youth is the time to dream, and it is a way of nature that girls dream of nests of their own while still fledglings in the nests of the parent birds.

Love is alluring and a girl with a dream-box has no selfish plans for idleness with a husband in a boarding house.

She is not planning for a nest in which she will be idle all day. If she is like the sweet majority there goes into that dream-box little kitchen towels and pretty little kitchen aprons.

They are symbols of labor, and labor where love is means more to a girl than idleness without it.

This little collection of articles to be in readiness when he comes with a wedding ring and a proposal does not imply discontent with her own home. Unless it can be discontent that inspires a fledgling to try its wings.

If that be discontent, then it is the right kind, for there would be no progress without it.

The Natural Instinct. It is a natural instinct for development, for growing, for the next step ahead.

It is a pretty little hope, a pleasant little sentiment, that should be encouraged. It is a part of the most pleasant dream one ever enjoys in this night-mare existence, and so, my girls, I say girls should be encouraged to dream.

Old Lace Craze

Old and rare lace is no longer hidden away with lavender in grandmother's cedar chest. The practical woman of today is quick to see the advantages of a piece of the old material, and she is digging up the treasured bits of finery to use for her own immediate pleasure.

The real lace handkerchief that was probably a part of the grandmother's trousseau makes a very modern little boudoir cap. A frill of gold lace or a pleating of yellowish Valenciennes, a knot of pink upon or a nosegay of satin flowers, and the cap is a dream.

Old lace collars are having the greatest kind of a vogue, and even fans are being covered with rare old lace. The tea apron has come into its own again, and no matter how DIPHThERIA.

The Humane Society's Work

[By "The Nomad."]

Down on King street, in the vicinity of the market square, stands one of the modern drinking fountains erected in London by the Humane Society. There, yesterday in the noon-day heat, I had an excellent chance of observing the visitors who came to the fountain. In turn, two grocer's boys, a junk dealer and a plumber each allowed their thirsty horses to drink their fill. Panting, three dogs arrived together, and lapped long before their thirst was quenched and they trotted off contentedly. A very cautious-looking cat from one of the market stores was the next visitor. Pussy's life had evidently been a hard one, for she kept a distrustful eye upon me as she drank.

And so they come and go to the fountain, all day long, and the poor burning throats are relieved, and the hot, aching feet seem not so heavy for a time, because of the life-giving fluid.

Every man and woman in London, who pretends to possess a heart must needs be in sympathy with the work of the Humane Society, for it is unfortunately too true that we have in our midst unfeeling brutes who take delight in abusing the dumb animals which cross their paths.

The Humane Society of this city has, until recently, been a part of the Charities Organization. The work done in the past has been excellent, but with the forming of a separate society, more aggressive work can be undertaken, and it is hoped to secure the co-operation of every citizen in the effort to suppress cruelty to animals here. Under the new organization, the Humane Society has appointed an inspector, a skilled veterinary surgeon. If any citizen sees an animal being ill-treated, for instance a horse with a sore shoulder, or an extremely lame horse being made to draw a heavy load, or a case of a dog or a horse being severely beaten, he or she is urged to call to report the case at once to the police, or an officer of the Humane Society, who will make prompt investigation.

The law is decidedly upon the side of the rescuer of a misused animal. This was made clear recently in the case of a very lame horse which had been turned out to pasture in East London. A member of the Humane Society noticing the painful condition of the animal endeavored to locate the owner, but without success. Some weeks later, he was told that in some way the poor brute had broken a leg, and this in addition to its lameness, caused it untold suffering. The inspector and a constable were at once brought to the scene, and after examination, the former stated that as no relief could be given, the animal should be destroyed. Although this occurred a fortnight ago, the owner has not yet brought any action against the member of the Humane Society, nor is he likely to, as the law distinctly upholds the latter's procedure.

But the work of the Humane Society reaches further than the protection of horses, and here, again, the law lends itself to the cause.

Do You Know?

That the old-fashioned smoking has come into vogue again.

That one-piece tub dresses shrunk in the washing can be easily lengthened by cutting at the waistline and inserting a belt of the same material.

That old safety razor blades are useful in the work basket for ripping seams and hems.

That clothes need rest as well as people. The business suit, street shoes and hat should be taken off, brushed, cleaned and put away carefully when reaching home.

For a foundation, a white China silk was made up simply with elbow sleeves and a Dutch neck, finished with a bias fold. Over this is draped the waist and skirt of white net.

Crystal buttons are used for a trimming and white bengaline, cut on the bias, is used for the button loops and for all trimming bands and folds. A blue velvet bow, placed at an angle, improves the effect.
