ELEVEN AMERICANS DEAD

Twenty-Eight Men Rescued
From Water—Four Die in Boat.

[Canadian Press.]
LONDON, July 1.—Admiralty dispatches this afternoon reported thirty lives lost in the sinking of the liner Armenian, eleven of whom were Americans. Survivors were landed at Cardiff, Bristol and Liverpool. The American embassy today arranged to send the American survivors to their homes.

Captain Trickey, of the Armenian, in an interview today said that he only surrendered to the German submarine when the freighter was under attack in three places and after the ship's engines had been put out of action and a dozen members of the crew had been killed by shrapnel fire. Most of the members of the crew who perished, Captain Trickey said, were Americans.

"The submarine as a signal for us to stop," said Captain Trickey, "first put a couple of shots over our heads when we were four miles off, I put my stern to him and ran for it."

"The submarine then began to shell us in earnest, the shrapnel bursting all around us, killed several of the crew and knocking others overboard. I soon realized that the enemy was gaining on us, but I did not propose to surrender without a struggle. But my steering gear was soon hit and placed out of commission. Then I decided to tell out the engine room and another carried the Marconi house away. Still another cut down the funnel and disabled the stokers, preventing them from keeping steam up."

Over Dozen Dead On Deck.
"By this time the ship was on fire in three places and I decided to surrender. We had resisted the enemy for an hour, and twelve or thirteen men lay dead on the deck."

"The submarine commander then forced me to clear ship and at seven minutes past eight the Armenian went down, shattered by five places in the hull, had fallen into the water."

"Most of the crew who perished were Americans."

Joseph Carter, a colored mulester, of Norfolk, Va., one of those rescued after the lifeboat was swamped, said that his friends killed Captain Speed, Small and Foreman Sedden, all were drowned. Carter added:

Fired 100 Shells.
"The submarine sank the ship for two hours and fired about 100 shells. I was in the boat with three men. I fell into the water. I was swimming nearly an hour before I was picked up. Twenty-eight men were rescued from the water. Four members of the crew died in the boat. A part of the head of one of them had been blown away. Another had lost both legs. One man had been blown by a piece of shell."

"I owe my life to Mulester Johnson, who knocked me down just in time to avoid being hit by a shell. Captain Trickey was the last man to leave the steamship."

Latest Type of Sub.
One of the Armenian officers in an interview tonight said that the submarine which sunk the freighter was of the latest type, large and speedy.

"As we tried to escape," said the officer, "she greeted us with a perfect storm of shrapnel; the first shell to find its mark burst on the starboard deck, killing ten men outright. The wireless operator stuck to his post to the last, sending 'S.O.S.' signals until his apparatus was broken."

"We finally escaped," he said, "escape was hopeless and have to lifting the wounded into boats. Four of these died and were buried at sea before we were rescued."

WASHINGTON NOT EXCITED.
WASHINGTON, July 1.—Official information on which to base an accurate judgment of the circumstances under which the British liner Armenian was destroyed with the loss of a number of American lives, was lacking to-night, and until all details are available, Secretary of State said that the position of the American Government could not be determined.

There was little tension over the incident in official quarters here after it became known that the Armenian had sought to evade capture. It was admitted that if official reports bore out the press dispatches there was no likelihood that any new cause of complaint would be added to the issues pending between the United States and Germany.

AVIATOR PLUNGES
CLEAR AT LAST MOMENT

A. Goshek's Machine Wrecked in Accident at Petrolia.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
PETROLIA, July 1.—Aviator A. Goshek crashed to earth with his machine here today. The magnificent aeroplane is now a mass of twisted wires, poles, canvas wings, machinery and propeller blades. The aviator, by a daring leap from his falling machine, when about twenty feet from the ground, managed to escape with some bruises and a bad shaking up.

Upwards of 3,000 spectators were thrilled as they had not anticipated in coming from towns and cities far and near to witness the aeroplane exhibition.

Goshek made a beautiful start and as he soared into the air at about 30 miles an hour, a great hurrah went up.

Almost in the next instant a hoarse shout broke from the throng, as the flying machine was caught in a wind pocket or met a contrary gust of wind, dropped almost over and plunged earthward from a height of about 200 feet.

The intrepid birdman plunged from his seat to the high side, and momentarily swung the giant wings toward the level. With a great gliding swoop, the structure crashed to earth and was crumpled in an instant.

BLAZE IN ST. THOMAS

Short Circuit Brings Firemen to Save P. M. Depot.

[Special to The Advertiser.]
ST. THOMAS, July 1.—The holiday was spent quietly in this city, thousands of people going to Port Stanley.

The new electric system on the L. & P. Ry. got badly balked up when one of the high tension wires got short circuited. The contact started a fire in the main Street Pere Marquette depot.

The local fire brigade, however, was promptly on the scene and extinguished the blaze before much damage was done. Several of the electric trains from London were delayed several hours. It was found necessary to get steam locomotives to move the traffic.

BRITAIN FEELS PUZZLED
Wonders Whether Germans
Propose To Continue
Trip Northward.

[Canadian Press.]
LONDON, July 1.—11:30 p.m.—The northward drive of the Austro-German armies from Galicia into Poland is daily becoming more formidable, and England is puzzled as to whether they propose to make their main effort in this direction, instead of maintaining a concentration offensive to the eastward, to force the Russians out of the southeast tip of Galicia.

Whatever the ultimate object is, the fighting along the Gniza Lipa River has not abated, and this afternoon's Berlin official communication not only records progress in this sector, but further north in the arc around Lemberg, as well as along what has now become the northern front, between the Vistula and Bug Rivers.

Far into Russia.
The Austro-German forces on this front are estimated at 2,000,000 men, and their progress has been rapid. They have crossed the forest fringing the Taney River, and are not far from the Zamosc fortress, 25 miles north of the Galician frontier. Only 100 miles to the north is the great Russian base, Brast Litovsk, linked with Warsaw by important railways and lying almost due east of the Polish capital.

The development of the Polish campaign has created a situation entirely unexpected by the Allies. A few months ago the Russians were at the Carpathian passes and during the spring months there were confident predictions both in England and France that Hungary would soon be overrun. The British press has been optimistic for weeks that the Russians would turn and make a stand, but it now frankly concedes that the new invasion of Russia is serious. The papers, however, place faith in Russia's munitions campaign, much the same as the British public is relying upon David Lloyd George's plan to equip the British army and Bug Rivers continues. Bear guard actions of the most stubborn character occurred here on June 29 on the Tomaszow and Zamosc road, as well as on the roads to Solonka.

"In Galicia the enemy on June 29 and the morning of June 30 delivered persistent attacks in various sectors of the front from Kamionka to Halicz. All his attacks were repulsed. We inflicted great losses on the enemy, and took about 4,000 prisoners. The enemy was unable to make headway along the front of our trenches for a distance of several hundred paces, except in some sectors. On other fronts absolute calm prevails."

BERLIN CLAIMS
MANY PRISONERS.
BERLIN (via London), July 1.—The following official statement regarding progress of hostilities in the eastern theatre was issued today:

"Our positions here are unchanged. The booty taken during June amounts to 25,000 prisoners, of whom 110 were officers, seven cannon, six machine-guns, 52 machine guns and one aeroplane, besides much material of war."

"In the southeastern theatre of war: After bitter fighting the troops of General von Linsingen yesterday stormed the positions of the Russians east of the Gniza Lipa River near Kunizce and Lucyniec, and to the north of Ronatyn, where officers and 2,000 men were made prisoners and five machine guns were captured."

East of Lemberg the Austro-Hungarian troops have pressed forward into the enemy's positions. The army under Field Marshal von Mackensen is continuing the pressure forward between the Bug and Vistula Rivers, west of the Vistula after stubborn fighting by the Russians the Teutonic allies are advancing on both sides of the Kamionka in pursuit."

"The total amount of captures during June made by the Teutonic allied troops under General von Linsingen, Field-Marshal von Mackensen and General von Woyrsich amounted to 409 officers and 149,450 men and 80 cannon and 288 machine guns."
