

FAIRER DISTRIBUTION OF IMMIGRANTS IS URGED

MARTIN INSISTS ON REVISED POLICY FOR PLACEMENTS

London District Said To Have Been Getting Too Great a Share.

FARRELL TO CONFER

Special to The Advertiser By a Staff Reporter.
Toronto, Feb. 14.—Hon. J. S. Martin, provincial minister of agriculture, outlines a broader policy for placement of immigrants in Western Ontario.

It is the contention of the present administration that counties and districts immediately adjacent to London have been receiving just a little too much attention in the past, when compared with other counties in the specified Western Ontario areas. This feature will have to be corrected, the minister states, and there must be a more even distribution of immigrants to the farmers of Western Ontario.

This question must receive the early attention of the department, the minister stressed this morning, and it was gathered from his remarks that John Farrell, the immigration representative for the district in question, will confer in Toronto with the department heads.

In the meanwhile the latter has not been disappointed, as is the custom from year to year. The question has to be thoroughly considered, the minister stated, and "certain things straightened out, the latter being, of course, the question of distribution."

No person is to be ousted because of his affiliations to this party or that, Mr. Martin emphasized, it being the intention of the department to consider an official's work only.

The general impression to be gathered, however, is that Mr. Farrell would be reappointed with different instructions.

Rudolph Valentino Did Not Invent Day of Valentines

Neither Did St. Valentine—A Sentimental Roman Was To Blame.

BIG DAY AT SCHOOL

Sister Displays Her Trophies and Bert Is Out of Luck.

Valentine Day was not invented by St. Valentine, the third century monk. Neither was it invented by Rudolph Valentino.

It was the conception of a romantic Roman who drew pictures of his innamoratas with the aid of a pickaxe and a hunk of granite. This sentimental soul has since become the patron saint of local book and postcard dealers. But for him wives of valentine vendors would have to do without vacuum cleaners and flit-free lace.

Today the birds mate and Valentine Day comes blushing over the horizon. Bleeding hearts are, of course, the most popular symbol of St. Valentine, but thanks to weather conditions red noses and white ears are expected to supplant the hearts on this particular occasion.

The comic valentine has been relegated to oblivion this year. And many citizens are heard to ejaculate "Thank goodness!" Nevertheless, Valentine Day always brings dissatisfaction for somebody. Take a school, for instance.

Pity the Teacher.

At every ordinary school, teacher lets the prettiest girl in the room distribute the valentines. Some get several; others only get a couple. Usually one kid named "Pug" doesn't get any. Then some generous girl or the teacher will give him one of hers. But that doesn't assuage the boy's desire. "Hey, Pug, how many'd you get?" And Pug would stand the insults just so long and then he'd sail in and beat up the gang. Girls would take their valentines home to give them away next year. If teacher got a comic everyone would snicker, and she'd either read them the riot act or give them a long and talk on charity.

Big sister receives an innumerable array of bleeding hearts, representing her multitudinous conquests, and places them prominently on the top of the piano so all can see. Little sister gets two, which she cherishes all by herself on the mantelpiece. Mother tells her that big sister only got one when she was that age, whereas little sister, by a process of mathematics, concludes she will be twice as popular as her elder sister when she grows up.

Bert Out of Luck.

Bert, the star boarder, wakes up expecting several girls to bring him a bit with at the rink. When he impatiently tears open the envelope of a bulky letter, and discovers a comic holiday is ruined.

The thought conveyed in every valentine is this:

Sure as the grass grows round the stump,

You are my sweetest sugar lump.

If there is any pupil who doesn't expect one, it would be well for him to copy the following and self-address it:

The dew is on the rosebud,

The collar's on the neck;

I have as many eyes for you

As potatoes in a peck.

It was some well-known authority on horseshoeing who discovered years ago that the seat of the emotions was the heart.

But in this country, in Russia it's the kidney, and in China the lung. But in all civilized lands like Mexico it's the heart.

Over in the land of the peach blossom, however, pretty Oriental maidens tomorrow will receive something like this:

This little gift to thee I bring;

Thy vision thrills me to the spine;

You are the darling of my lung,

So be my pig-tailed valentine.
