President Harrison and party left for Washington at five o'clock this afternoon from Jersey City, on the Pennsylvania Railroad. The run will be made in six hours, the only stops being those necessary to change engines.

In the parade float No. 10, representing an emigrant ship with deck, steerage and smokestack, while turning into Canal street out of Broadway, was wrecked by a wheel of the truck being wrenched off by the car track. The upper part of the structure around the smokestack was octume, while below in the steerage were several women, the body of the car being filled with a few other women and a numwhile the women and children slid and fell out. They screamed loudly, and them. Fortunately the children only suffered from fright and they were carried away crying. The people standing near by left their places to lend assistance and a momentary panic occurred. The police soon restored order
