To the Editor of The World. SIR: On reading the article which gave I recollected it is neither usual nor perhaps judicious to admit critiques on editorial utterances, and, besides, I had hitherto written on this subject in another paper. I now thank you very much for the offer of a hearing in The World, and for the kindly manner in which it is made. First of all, I ask you with entire candor why should I not take umbrage at your putting in the fore front of "silly" things the very discussion of religion in schools? Christians all the world over think it a matter of the highest consequence, whatever difficulties

Unristians all the world over think it a matter of the highest consequence, whatever difficulties may lie in the way; and common courtesy, to say nothing of a generous sympathy with an unworldly aspiration, should seven with an unworldly aspiration, should secure respectful speech on such a subject. It is part to coach favorite, which leaves that—by the coach favorite, which leaves that—by the coach favorite, which leaves that—by the postoffice at 11 o'clock a.m., drawn by with an unworldly aspiration, should secure respectful speech on such a subject.

I do not think. Mr. Editor, that your will, on reflection, justify your placing this in the category of 'silly' things. Furthermore, is there 'silly' things. Furthermore, is there 'silly' things. "silly" things. Furthermore, is the saying "the catholics are well situated to experiment on religious education?" As if this were a new thing in the world as if christendom had ever heard of education. apart from religion until this present age!
as if education without religion were not the experiment! as if already it had not as if education without religion were not the experiment! as if already it had not been demonstrated to all who have eves to see, that it has been a disastrous failure where it has been longest tried! The evidence is ample as to the New England states, and though I have not statistics (which the opposers of religious instruction are more concerned to reached.) Lam year, such that opposers of religious instruction are more concerned to produce) I am very sure that the Roman catholic population would not without the religious lessons of their church be as virtuous as they are. One thing, however, is certain enough, that protestants are not the better for the elimination of religion from the school curriculum of their ligion from the school certification of the children.

Again; is it not something to take "umbrage" at that you should describe those who despise religious instruction in our schools as "resuming the old clothes of sectarian teaching." First, because this is insulting all round; if sects teach honestly they must teach their distinctive principles, and I, churchman as I am, have no scorn fer that, nor should others. Secondly, because it is inapplicable in the present case, and positively misrepresenting, inasmuch as distinctively misrepresenting, inasmuch as distinctively misrepresenting, in to be ex hypoteaching?" First, because this is insulting all round; if sects teach honestly they must teach their distinctive principles, and I, churchman as I am, have no scorn fer that, nor should others. Secondly, because it is inapplicable in the present case, and positively misrepresenting, inasmuch as distinctive or sectarian teaching is to be ex hypothesi shut out. And let me observe, thirdly, that you are plainly self-contradictory in speaking of this religious instruction in speaking of this religious instruction in speaking of the religious instruction in speaking of the same breath, as "old" schools, almost in the same breath, as "old" schools, Such an immense generalization from a particular instance. All it could nossibly conclude the conductive was sitting of a stone outside the door knitting and out friend forgetting to take his nip exclaimed (We're was industrious not make the conductive was sitting of a stone outside the door knitting and out friend forgetting to take his nip exclaimed possibly conclude, were it ever so extensively true, is that Roman catholic separate schools in Toronto are not so good as some Roman catholics wish. I must not further intrude on your space in one issue, but if you allow I shall speak of more positive matters in another. It is only just to you and myself to say, I did not accuse you of applying to the clergy what you applied expressly to your morning contemporaries—the case of the haruspex. I only said that however the same might be extended to the clergy, yet there was no suspicion of it as between the clerical and teaching professions. If I have seemed to charge you unjustly, "forgive me this wrong,"

CONFEDERATION LIFE ASSOCIATION.

PRESIDENT-SIR W. P. HOWLAND, C.B. ICE-PRESIDENTS-HON. WM. McMASTER, WM. ELLIOT, ESQ.

Referring to the advertisement of this association in The World of Tu. sday las*, it may be explained that the much larger sum called for by the valuation made by Professor Cherriman, under the government standard for Canada, th. nis required by the valuation made by Mr. Homans on the standard for the Stats of New York, arises solely from the greater severity of the Mortality Table of the Institute of Actuaries of Great Britain as compared with the "American Experience" Table of Mortality, as the same rate of interest was used in each case.

The reason why the valuation made by this Association's own actuary c.LLs For A STILL LARGER RESERVE than even that required by Professor Cherriman's valuation arises from the fact that the directors consider TILL SECURITY TO THE FOLICY-HOLDERS is the FIRST thing, and, therefore, not content to provide simply as in other companies, they add an additional TEN per cent. to the Hability under all BONUS ADDITIONS and FAID UP ASSURANCES as well as those being paid up, such as TEN and FIFTERN payments
