Durham is an incorporated town in the townships of Glenelg and Bentinck in the county of Grey on the Sangsen, which furnishes power, and is the terminus of the G. B. and L. Eris division of the G.T.R.
The town is divided by the river into what is known as Upper and Lewer Town, the latter being in the valley and the most important, and the former being tuilt on the slope ascending from the river and on the plateau above. The river, valley and hills around give diversity and picturesqueness to the see-ery, and the whole landscape viewed from Upper Town is one that the artistic eye will tinger over. There are many excellent business blocks and other indications of enterprise on the part of the citizens. The division of the town, however, into two parts, has acted against it in various ways. It has sometimes been the cause of jealousy, and one

The Feeple's Mill.

Robert McGowan, proprietor, is a 4½ story white brick mill 52x36 feet in dimensions, and as equipped with full roller process, consisting of 12 pair 9x18 rolls with a caracity of 125 barriels per day. It is driven by water power, which is never failing. There is also a roll chopper in the mill. Mr. McGowan has another mill at Priceville, and is a man with houndless energy and evidently takes "Excelsion" as his motto. Adjoining the mill
