ing ordered the acquittal of Mrs. Beers, the Christian Scientist, charged with nanslaughter, in connection with the death of the child Percy Beck. His Lordship directed the discharge of the prisoner without asking the counsel to address the jury. His Lordship held that the prisoner had not undertaken to do an unlawful act, and had done nothing to hasten the death of the child. In fact, she had done nothing, and it was difficult for him to see how one could abet the crime of another when that crime consisted merely in doing nothing.

What May be Expected to Follow. What May be Expected to Follow.

The judge's decision in the Beers case gives the Crown the right to proceed against the acquitted woman with a view to getting a test case on the subject of Christian Science. It is quite possible that detective Wasson, officer of the Ontario Society of Physicians and Surgeons, will proceed against Mrs. Beers under the old laws of the English Code, which were foragainst Mrs. Beers under the old laws of the English Code, which were formulated for the purpose of putting down the alleged black art and witch-craft practised by the gypsies. If such action is taken, Mr. B. B. Osler, Q.C., will be retained to prosecute.

It is claimed that the old gypsy laws are sufficiently stringent to entirely end all the charlatanry of Christian Science, and if the Canadian recognized laws of the country, the whole "Christian" Science system of plunder could be put a stop to.

There many thousands who "cannot spare the time from their business." There should be no hesitation in deciding between considerations of business and considerations of health. How much money will a man take for his health? He holds it beyond price. Why, then, should anyone hesitate to seek to regain physical vigor because some should anyone hesitate to seek to regain physical vigor because some paltry business matter may seem to interfere? They are the most daring innovators in the farce-comedy line, and their appearance captivates, charms and electrifies the audience. charms and electrifies the audience. Their methods are peculiarly their own, and their personal magnetism would go far towards making any play a success. "Finningan's Ball" has been partly rewritten and is strictly up to date. The action is brisk, the dialogue is sparkling with fun, and the surprises are many. The specialties are all new and novel and the supporting company is exceptionally strong, comprising as it does the following well-known artists: Gracie Cummings, Edith Newton, Winnifred Stewart, Rita Dixon, Lonnie Deane, the Loring Sisters, George H. "Bonnie Scotland," which appears at "Bonnie Scotland," which appears at the Grand Opera House next week, has the advantage of being entirely novel, and the story of the play—that of the conflict of two rival clans—and savoring of the plaid and heather, is interesting. The scenery is that of the Highlands, and, together with that of the costuming, is one of the features of the play. There are singers, dancers, a band of bag pipers, and a Highland quartet. There are laddles and lassies' songs, fanciful and melodious, and opposing clans and tartans, with and opposing clans and tartans, with and opposing clans and tartans, with shields and claymores. In every way the play is unique and original, and it appeals to all classes of theatregoers. It is lavishly mounted, and costumed with taste and beauty. Over 25 are in the cast, the leading roles being taken by many prominent people.

After the disposal of the case against Mrs. Beers for manslaughter the men Sadler and Brown were put on trial for cleaning and selling postage stamps that had already been used. Brown pleaded guilty and will come up for sentence on Saturday. Sadler pleaded not guilty, and was defended by Mr. Lincoln Hunter.

The evidence for the Crown went to show that Sadler had passed postage stamps at several places of business in the city for whiskey, beer, to-bacco and meat; chiefly for beer and whiskey. Sadler was arrested by Detective Harrison, while in the act of paying for some beer at the Willard House, Gerrard and Teraulay-streets. The stamps found in the prisoner's porsession were submitted to a microscopic examination and found to have been cleaned, after having been properly cangelled. The prisoner admitted passing the stamps, but claimed to have got them all from Brown, alias Wallace, and he swore positively when put in the box in his own defence, that he had nothing whatever to do with the cleaning of the stamps and knew nothing of their having been cleaned.
