ST. CATHERINES MINERAL SPRING.

THE Waters from the St. Catharines Artesian Well are now being extensively introduced throughout this continent, as a sovereign remedy for restoring to comparative, and in many instances to perfect health, those afflicted with rheumatism, dyspepsia, liver and kidney complaints, &c.

In calling the attention of Physicians to the great Therapeutic value of these waters, the proprietor rests only upon the well ascertained qualities of Chlorine, Iodine, Bromine, and Protoxide of Iron, a very large proportion of the 'thousand ills which flesh is heir to,' especially in the vast assemblage of maladies having a common origin in serofulous diathesis.

It is only from the well ascertained fact of their being every way capable of rivalling any other spring of the same character in America, that capital has been embarked, and this effort now made to bring them into universal notice and repute. The medical men who have visited the bathing establishment, and have employed the concentrated water, either in their own cases or those of their patients, have universally accorded the highest encomiums upon the excellent arrangement, comfort, and cleanliness of the former and the marked beneficial effects that have uniformly succeeded the employment of the latter, or both, in all diseases to which their use was applicable. The bottled water contains all the medicinal agents, after the separation of the common salt, in a vastly increased proportion.

The analysis of the mineral water from the Artesian Well in this town by Prof. Croft (of the University of U.C.) and Chilton (of N.Y.) and Dr. Mack (of St. Catharines), bears indisputable evidence of the chemical properties it possesses. Nevertheless, the proprietor is informed that reports are in circulation, asserting it to be composed of certain drugs, which, we are constrained to say, are wholly groundless. The water is evaporated by artificial heat, in the usual manner: that part which is composed of common salt, first settles and is removed; the remainder is dipped into vats containing earthy or useless foreign matter subsides, and the clear liquor is then bottled off, without any grain or other admixture whatever being added thereto.

As witness our hands at St. Catharines, U. C.,
