

with fervor they sang "God Save the Queen." Mr. Burnmah Allan earned the gratitude of all by furnishing refreshment to the Gov.-Gen. and others during the session. Amongst those in the galleries were the ladies from Moulton College, whom we always welcome heartily. Altogether an enjoyable evening was spent. Wit and humor were the order of the day. Several old scores were laid on the table. Many saw themselves as others saw them, and went out to lead a better life. We hope that in the future more of such meetings will be held.

THE monthly meeting of our Fyfe Missionary Society was held on Thursday, 15th March. The meeting was one of unusual interest and helpfulness. Rev. J. D. Brown, Foreign Mission Secretary, gave an inspiring address on "The present outlook in our Foreign work." Mr. Brown spoke of the way in which God is opening up the work in Bolivia. Until now, Catholicism has ruled in that country and has barred the door against missionary work; but religious liberty, though not yet realized, is steadily forcing its way into the minds and hearts of the people; and soon our missionaries will have perfect freedom to preach and teach in all that country. Then, after reviewing the work of the last quarter of a century among the Telugus, the speaker gave a very encouraging report of the progress of the gospel in India. There has been a great change in the attitude of the natives towards Christianity. Conservatism is losing its hold upon the people, and they are becoming enthused with the Christian's idea of God. Rev. John Neil, B.A., then spoke on "The relation that the Church should bear toward Missions." His address was very helpful and interesting.

LITERARY SOCIETY.—On Friday, March 9th, was held the public meeting of the "Lit." for the spring term. The meeting had been eagerly looked forward to, and the programme provided by the executive was of a high standard and greatly appreciated. Although the weather was unfavorable, a large audience composed of the friends of the University was present. Added interest was taken in the meeting by the students themselves, on account of the oratorical contests, and a large number at the back of the room entertained the audience with patriotic and college songs until the programme commenced. The musical part of the programme was very enjoyable. Miss J. Frances Byford gave two piano solos with artistic skill and expression, and Miss Lillian B. Stickle rendered two vocal selections which were heartily encored. The orations aroused much interest by their merit, and the opinions as to what the result of the contest would be were many and varied. Mr. J. T. Jones represented Theology and spoke on "Gladstone." Naughty-three was well supported by Mr. D. C. McIntosh, whose subject was "The Higher Patriotism." Mr. H. S. Arkell, for '02, gave a good review of the "South African Question." The honor of '01 was upheld by Mr. A. C. Watson, in his oration on "Purpose"; while old "Century" put her hopes on Mr. G. R. Welch, who spoke on "The White Man's Burden." The Rev. Morgan Wood, D.D., who is himself a prince of orators, acted as judge. In speaking of the
