

We were relieved after that fight and are now resting in the city that we captured, a lovely place, and we have fine comfortable billets.

Events have moved in the most astounding manner, and we expect that peace will be declared at not a far distant date, and I really believe that things are being prepared with that end in view. It will take some time to demobilize, and we can hardly expect to get home again for a few months at least."

We give extracts from a letter, dated 11th November, from 2nd LIEUT. D. SCULLY who left our North Winnipeg branch in August 1914 to join the 1st Contingent:

"I have to thank you for issue No. 10 of 'Letters from the Front,' which reached me to-day—the date of the signing of the Armistice with Germany."

"Since leaving the Canadian Army, I fear I have rather got out of touch with many of my former friends of the Bank, and it is very nice to learn of their various doings and appointments, etc.

I am at present half way through a six weeks' course at the Second Army Signal School, and although the work is hard it is most interesting, as we cover every branch of signalling from pigeons to wireless.

We received the peace news early this morning over our wireless, and to conform with the general idea, we ceased work at 10.30 a.m. After a short celebration service the remainder of the day was proclaimed a holiday.

Although we have been expecting this wonderful news for some time past, it is incredibly hard to realize, and I think it has been received quite calmly on the whole.

The great question now is, 'when shall we get back home and try to forget about the war.' I myself fear we are doomed to stop out here for some considerable time yet."

MR. G. G. RENNISON, formerly of the Lethbridge branch, who enlisted in April 1916, writes under date of 21st November 1918 in part as follows:

"In talking with some of the ex-officers of the Bank, there is usually a good deal of speculation as to post-war conditions. We theorise on what will be the Bank's attitude along various lines. The chief points discussed are the question of 'woman labour,' the question of the re-engagement of the 'old hands' who have left the service to enlist, and the question which I believe is the most vital of all, 'What will be the attitude of the Bank regarding the granting of credit to Germans and Austrians in the future?' You will perhaps be gratified to know that the general feeling amongst the ex-officers is that the Bank may be relied on to do the square
