For the Belated Gardener

the spring housecleaning, or moving day, has left you no time for gardening, you find the outside of your home looking bare and neglected. But for every ill in life there is a remedy and for this one, box gardens will prove a satisfactory prescription.

You can put them in every place where a bright color will add a cheerful note. You can have a one-color effect, which is considered very artistic, or the old-fashioned mass of color that a mixture of sweet alyssum, geran'ums, heliotrope, tiny French marigolds and other pot plants

A pretty fancy for porch boxes is to have three; the centre one fille with pink or scarlet blooming plants and the two end boxes with only · One showy box garden that was a prize winner at a school garden competition last season contained French marigoids and asparagus springeri for the unright plants with overhanging nasturtiums for vines. The brilliant yellow flowers and the contrasting light and dark greens made "Jennie gardens" is the odd name the French give to baskets, or boxes, of blooming plants that fill-the windows and porches of their closely built apartment houses. The name comes from an old, popular song that praises "The garden of Jennie, the sewing girl, Contented heart, content to live, She might be rich, but she prefers To have what God shall give.

It seems absurd to attempt to have a garden in a box, to persons who have real gardens, but a "Jennie" garden is a pleasant oasis in a world of brick and stone and capable of giving much happiness.

The boxes need not be more than eight inches deep. Bore holes in the bottom and put in bits of broken crockery for drainage.

Fasten the boxes securely and fill with soil. Now for the plants; get them from a reliable grower. The market women bring in hardier flowers at this season than the florists. As it is late in the season you can make a good bargain for pot plants by the dozen. Avoid putting flowers that require different conditions for blooming in the same box. For instance, begonias, fuchsias and ferns need shade, while heliotrope, lemon verbena and ivy demand quantities of water and Box garden plants need a little tonic to produce luxuriant bloom. Buy ten cents worth of sheep manure at any seed store. Put it in an old bucket and cover with water. When you water your plants put some of this liquid in the sprinkling can and they will grow wonderfully and bloom lavishly in Do not kill your plants with kindness; unless the weather is very hot and dry, boxes and hanging baskets should not be wet oftener than twice each week. Water them thoroly, washing off the leaves and stems, waea

"Good tea, that."

"Glad you like it."

"Wish I were able to have such luck."

"There's no luck to it. This Electric Samovar, you see, doesn't require any. Simply put in cold water and turn the switch and then when the water boils, adjust the tea ball to make tea to suit your taste. You can make the tea any strength you like, and the beauty of it is, girls, the tea is always just right-it never has that bitter taste."

"Of course, I admire and am fond of all my gifts, but this Electric Samovar-well, I hardly know what I'd do without it-it's so handy, and it makes such good tea."

"Bother! Why, no! It's no more trouble to clean than a plate. But let me help you to another cup.' "If you please. . . Thank
