

WORKS BY
REV. J. CYNDDYLAN JONES

THE WELSH PULPIT OF TO-DAY

EDITED BY REV. J. CYNDDYLAN JONES,
Author of "Studies in John," "Studies in Acts," and "Studies in Matthew"

Small octavo, cloth, 496 pages. $2.00.

This is a much larger book than "Studies in John" or "Acts," and sells for $2.00. The English price of the book is $2.65.

"These are good sermons, some are very good, and in our judgment, one of the best is the timely discourse by the accomplished editor on the 'Life of domestic, social, industrial, and religious. . . . Welsh ministers have reputation for preaching amongst their English brethren, and this first of Welsh sermons shows that it is well merited.'—Methodist Recorder, England

"The Welsh pulpit has always been a power—and perhaps it has never more decided evidences of power than at the present. Religion in Wales is a reality. The people not only give it the first place, but their action is an affection. Among such a people the pulpit ought to have an inspiration which would set it on fire. A sympathetic audience is always a great help to a preacher, and this is precisely the kind of audience which the Welsh preacher has always had. The sermons of this book are admirable."—The Christian Commonwealth, London, England.

Studies in the Gospel according to St. John

12mo, cloth, 322 pages. $1.50.

"The chorus of approval which greeted Mr. Jones' previous 'Studies in Matthew and the Acts,' which we reviewed with unqualified admiration some time ago, has created a standard of criticism for this new venture altogether out of the ordinary that by which ordinary sermons are to be judged. Mr. Jones stepped at once to the front rank of Expositors, and we have seen no reason for rescinding our judgment in classing him with Robertson and Bushnell, and, in some respects, even above them. These long-promised 'Studies in St. John' have been looked for, and the author must not complain if the expectations of the pulpit were pitched rather high. In our opinion he will have no reason to complain, inasmuch as those expectations will, if we mistake not, be fully gratified. In exposing certain portions of this matchless Gospel, Mr. Jones is even more at home than when discussing the questions raised in Matthew or the Acts."—Methodist Recorder

Studies in the Acts of the Apostles.

12mo, cloth. $1.50.

THE BISHOP OF LIVERPOOL says:—"It is a book of great freshness, vigour, originality, as well as thoroughly sound in doctrine, and I wish it a wide circulation."

Studies in the Gospel by St. Matthew.

12mo, cloth. $.25.

"This is no ordinary book by no ordinary man. . . . It bristles from end to end with terse, fresh, vigorous thoughts. . . . A book which may be ranked as one of the classics of the English language."—Preacher's Analyst.
