when the ice is breaking up, springing from cake to cake in supposed imitation of the seal hunters; covel, a tub made to hold blubber or oil; cracky, a little dog; crannocks on the west coast, crunnocks to the north, small pieces of wood for kindling fires; the diddies, the nightmare; dido, a bitch; gandy, the fisherman's name for a pancake; dwy, a mist or slight shower. "Is it going to rain to-day?" "No, its only a dwy," a Newfoundlander may reply. So a snow dwy denotes a slight fall of snow, which is not expected to come to much; farl or varl, the cover of a book; gly, a sort of trap made with a barrel hoop, with net interwoven, and hook and bait attached, set affoat to catch gulls and other marine birds known as ticklaces and steerins, but what species is meant by the last two names I have not ascertained; jinker, there is such a word in modern English, connected with jink, denoting a lively, sprightly girl, or a wag, but among the Newfoundlanders the word must have had a different origin, as with them it means an unlucky fellow, one who cannot or does not succeed in fishing; old teaks and jannies, boys and men who turn out in various disguises and carry on various pranks during the Christmas holidays, which last from 25th December to old Old Christmas day, 6th January; matchy, tainted, applied to salt beef or pork supplied to the fishermen; pelm, any light ashes, such as those from burnt cotton, cardboard, &c., also the light dust that arises from the ashes of wood and some kinds of coal; scrape, a rough road down the face of a bank or steep hill, used specially in regard to such as are formed by sliding or hauling logs down; shimmick, used on the west coast as a term of contempt for one who born of English parents, attempts to conceal or deny his birth in Newfoundland; sprawls, scil. of snow, heavy drifts; sprayed, describing chapped hands or arms; starrigan, a young tree, which is neither good for firewood, or large enough to be used as timber, hence applied with contempt to anything constructed of unsuitable materials; tolt, a solitary hill, usually somewhat conical, rising by itself above the surrounding country; truckly muck, a small two-handed car for dogs, with a handle for a man to keep it straight; towtents, pork cakes, made of pork chopped fine and mixed with flour; tuckamore, in some places tuckamil, a clump of spruce, growing almost flat on the ground, and matted together, found on the barrens and bleak exposed places; and willigiggin, half between a whisper and a giggle.

A large proportion of the people of Newfoundland being uneducated, persons trying to use fine English words often substitute one for another
