It Depends.

It is easier to knock one man down than another, because one man may be very much stronger than another. On the same principle, it is easier for any disease to get hold of one person than another. It depends on the condition of the blood. When that is pure, and in a healthy state, diseases have the same difficulty in making a lodgement in the system as an army does in scaling the walls of a strong fortification.

He Was Not the Janitor.

Mrs. Wishit—Won't you buy me that diamond necklace, Charlie?

Mr. Wishit—Be reasonable, darling. Remember that we tenants can't afford to emulate the janitor's extravagance.

Truly Hospitable.

Jeweller—I have shown you all the rings that I have suitable for a daughter 12 years old.

Mrs. Russell Well, I've changed my mind, now. I think I'll wait until she's 15.

Jeweller—All right. Take a chair.

DUTCH

Not a Worker.

Inspector—Did you come here under a contract to work?

Immigrant—No, sorr; I kem here to shtart a labor organization.

His Bump of Poetry.

Phrenologist—"Your bump of imagination is abnormally large, sir. You should write poetry."

Visitor—"I do write poetry. Only yesterday I took a Spring poem to an editor, and that bump you are feeling is where he hit me. Don't bear on it so hard."

You Will Like Them.

Some people say they can't bear to wear plasters on their skin. There is a great deal of nonsense about this idea. Moher Seigel's Soothing Plasters never itch or produce any sense of discomfort. They warm the skin and cure aches and pains on the principle of counter-irritation. In cases of rheumatism or any other pain in the joints or muscles, try them, and you will find they not only do not cause any disagreeable feeling, but remove a warmth of the surface and end in utterly relieving the cause of the pain.
