FOOTBALL.

ARTS AND DIVINITY WON. The long looked for football match, vs. Arts and Divinity, was played yesterday on the university rounds, and resulted in the victory of the latter, the score being 1 to 0. On the annual field day, when this rame was postponed, the honors went to the Sawbones, but yesterday the tables were turned, and Books and Gowns fully redeemed their good name on the athletic field. Yesterday the meds won the toss and took their choice of goals. The weather was most favorable, but the ground was very slippery. From the first a fast even game was played, the forwards on both sides doing great work.

Just before half time Arts and Divinity secured the first goal, and all during the second half pressed their, opponents closely. It was most ex-citing, but nothing further was scored. A fact which added interest to the me was that the winners obtained the football used, and each member of the winning team was presented with a badge, suitably inscribed. The following were the teams:

Medicos—Arnott, goal; Russell and Campbell, backs; McEvoy, Bucke and Davis, half-backs; Clay C. McLeay, L. McLeay, Aikens, Gray, forwards. Arts and Divinity—Doherty, goal; Westgate and Herbert, backs; Howard, Wade and Sutton, half-backs; McMillen, Smith, Prof. Sykes, Rev. Armitage and Purton, forwards. Mr. C. B. Edwards acted as referee in a most satisfactory manner. OTTAWA VS. PRINCETON. Ottawa, Nov. 25.—The Ottawa College football team, champions of Canada, are now trying to arrange a match with Princeton. The difficulty match would be played.

A Lurid Meeting of the London West Council

Terrific Exchange of Compliments Between Messrs. Moore and Hamilton.

The Village Law Costs the Cause of the Trouble,

Mr. Hamilton Blames Them on Mr Moore - "Rogue" "Scoundrel" and Other Empathic Words - Hr. leagues Good-Bye.

There was a terrific wind storm at the London West school house last night, accompanied by thunder and sheet lightning. It was generated at a meeting of the village fathers, specially called to consider the law costs which the corporation has incurred in the last two years.

THE SOLICITORS' BILL. The account from the solicitors, Meredith, Cameron, Judd & Drom-gole, contained twenty pages of a de-tailed account, accompanied by a letter explaining the different cases, in some of which no fees had been charged the village. It stated that they would settle for $700. They asked the council to be prompt, as more costs would possibly follow delay.

OPENED THE BALL.

Deputy Reeve Moore opened the ball by emphatically declaring that the council had no night to pay any of the Wolsey 2, Pat Gore 3. Paramount, Costs of Mr. Laing, the Government auditor, who was secured to audit the books of the conporation. He con-tended that Mr. Laing's work had been unsatisfactory, and had run the village into debt. He thought the corporation would be justified in seek-ing compensation from the Ontario Reeve Saunby-Well, I think you will look a long time. GETTING WARM Mr. Hamilton, shaking his finger at Deputy Reeve Moore—The long and short of the whole matter is right on your head and shoulders.

Mr. Moore—No, it isn't—it's yours. Mr. Laing didn't— Mr. Hamilton-You had better not say another word about that man, or you will get it in the neck. Mr. Moore-I'm not talking to you at all. I'm talking to the reeve. Mr. Hamilton-Well, I have something to say to you. You have been a curse to this village and corporation ever since you came into it, you notorious wretch, you! Mr. Moore-I'll make a motion-

Mr. Moore—You'll remember this,

Mr. Hamilton. You'll remember this Mr. Moore—Just let me say a word. Since I came into this council I have always tried my best to be honest and true, and do what was best for the village and its people. Mr. Hamilton-And have you done it? You have got the village into expense and disgrace Mr. Moore-No, I haven't done any such thing. STILL AT IT. The dialogue continued at fever heat. Mr. Hamilton charged that Moore, Macdonald & Co. sent for Mr. Laing in the first place. He called Mr. Moore a rogue and a scoundrel. Reeve Saunby remarked that there were few law costs before Mr. Moore or Mr. Macdonald entered the council, but after that they began to pile up. Mr. Moore—During my administra-Reeve Saunby (throwing a budget of bills on the table)—There's $1,000 as a result of your administration. When you were on the school board you couldn't get along without plunging That's the way I administered affairs. I didn't come here to be abused. I came here to do business. I'm not ashamed of my career in this council."

Mr. Hamilton—You're not ashamed because there is no shame in you. "SOAK IT TO HIM." Mr. Duff—I'd like to say a word here, Mr. Reeve. Can't you keep Mr. Moore quiet? I would like to know who it was that led the village into all this law debt? None of these costs were incurred by the present council.

Mr. Collins—No, not a cent of them.

last year's council, and we are blamed for them. Who was responsible? Mr. Hamilton (pointing to Mr. Moore, as the latter was preparing to leave) -That's the man; you bet your life.

Reeve Saunby produced a newspaper-needless to say, not The Advertiser—and began to read an exaggrated account of the law costs, which stated that according to Clerk Simpson's statement, the village was $1,300 in debt for law, for which the present council was responsible.

Mr. Duff-I know where they got their information from. They are "Callest Thou Thus, O Master" (Mietzbeing stuffed by the same party that ke) in splendid voice, and was being stuffed by the same party that used to stuff the Free Press. MR. MOORE THROWS KISSES. Mr. Moore moved towards the door, and was asked to remain by Mr. Duff. Mr. Moore (to Mr. Duff)-Yes, you threatened me once before. . Mr. Duff-It will be more than a threat some of these days. Mr. Duff said he had issued a writ against Mr. Moore for libelous statements, but the latter sent him two pages of foolscap in apology, and proceedings were drop-ped. "I knew I couldn't get a cent Mr. Moore did not heed the invitation to stay, and threw a sarcastic kiss to his colleagues as he went out of the As he went out Mr. Hamilton yelled: "We'll put you where Bartram failed to put you."

Mr. Wm. Smith (stamping his cane on the floor)—I have been in the vil-lage over twenty years, and never saw the like of this tonight. It's a shame and a disgrace to have such men doing our business.

GETTING DOWN TO BUSINESS. E. F. Johnson applied for remission of taxes on a house which was burned on Oct. 4, 1895. His request was granted and $17 75 was knocked off his account. He will pay the taxes on the house previous to the time it was Henry Geiger and Samuel Yelland asked for remission of taxes on a building destroyed by fire in 1894. The taxes amounted to $11 70, and were stricken off. The matter of Mrs. Walsh's taxes was left in the hands of the deputy reeve. The reeve read a letter from Mr. P. McPhillips, stating that if the corporation tried to sell for taxes any of the lots on the Wharncliffe Highway, now owned by Henry Healey, he would ap-ply for an injunction and claim damages. Mr. McPhillips denied the charge that there were arrears of taxes for 1892 and 1894, amounting to $20 50, and claimed that the receipts were in the hands of Mr. Magee at the time of Mr. Lord's prosecution for embezzlement.

On motion of Deputy Reeve Moore the clerk was instructed to write Mr. McPhillips, offering to strike off the taxes if the receipts were produced as Reeve Saunby stated that the receipt held by Mr. Magee was one for 1893, for which no taxes were claimed. Mr. Collins said that perhaps Mr. Lord had taken advantage of his position in this respect.

Mr. Moore also thought the clerk should tell Mr. McPhillips that there were not sufficient chattels on the place at the time in question to distress for the taxes.

COLONIAL WOOL SALES

Prices Five to Seven and a Half Per Cent Higher-Demand Brisk. London, Nov. 25 .- The sixth series of the colonial wool sales opened at the Wool Exchange yesterday. The sale is scheduled to close Dec. 11. There was no excitement, but great interest was manifested, owing to the new crop, of which the quality is good, and 20,000 bales offered more than at last November's sales. The demand is very brisk, and prices are expected to stiffen at the outset, and to continue higher than any previous markets and the continue higher than any previous markets.

plendid Work of the Choir-The Musi Local Talent, Under the Leadership of Mr. Fred L. Evans.

About 800 persons an intelligent and critical audience of the musically inclined-enjoyed a rare treat last night. at Knox Church, the occasion being a concert given under the direction of Mr. F. L. Evans, the popular organist and choir master of the church, and his choir, assisted by the Musical Society Orchestra. The edifice was crowded. A temporary platform replaced the pulpit, and on this were seated the Musical Society Orchestra,

First violins, George Angus, James Cresswell; second violins, R. and W. Jex; viola, Roselle Pococke; 'cello, W. Saunders; bass, W. McLeod; flute, W. Wismer; clarionets, Joseph Johnson, Robert Allen; cornets, W. Mulling, E. St. George; trombones, J. Cresswell, Arthur Silk; tympani and drums, H. McKenna.

The orchestra opened the programme with a delightful overture by Thomas, which gave excellent opportunity for the display of the delicacy and sweetness of the strings, as well as introducing many eccentric movements. The organization also rendered a characteristic piece, "Coeurs et Fleurs" (Tobani), and the spirited and quaint "Swedish Wedding March" (Soderman), the latter having to be repeated to satisfy the audience. Meyerbeer's march, "Kronungsmarsch," was given a spirited interpretation. The orchestra reflected the greatest credit on their conductor, and won the heartiest plaudits after each number. The chorus work of the choir showed careful training by the conductor, and spirit and expression on the part of the voices. The attack and shading were especially noticeable for precision and smoothness. Concone's was the opening number, and was very creditably rendered. The male chorus, "Onward" (Geibel), a splendid marching movement, with solo by Mr. H. Ruthven Macdonald, was given with animation and had to be repeated be-fore the audience were content. Menaria well adapted to the lady's voice. Mr. H. Ruthven Macdonald sang the familiar "Austrian Hymn" is introduced, with variations, and responded to a determined encore by giving "Home, Sweet Home" with touching simplicity and sweetness. The soprano solo, "When Silent Grief Oppresses," by Miss Roblyn, with clarionate obligate by Mr. France delicate. et obligato by Mr. Evans, delighted the audience, Miss Roblyn winning deserved recognition. The lady's ren dering of the song was especially characterized by beautiful phrasing and clearness, and the harmonious blending of the voice with the instrument Miss Roblyn's singing was simply artistic. A trio, "Praise Ye the Father" (Geibel), by Miss Roblyn, and Messrs. Westman and Mac donald, was thoroughly appreciated. A delightful orchestral number was a septet for strings, flute and clarionet, Haydn's "Symphony in E,"andante and minuetto movement, which the audience fully appreciated, judging by the continued applause at the conclusion. Mr. Waldemar Bleuthner was the accompanist of the evening, and performed his part to the entire satisfaction of the several singers and the audience. The orchestra supplied the accompaniments for all the choruses. Mr. Evans may justly feel proud of the recognition accorded his efforts last evening, both as to the large patronage of the concert and the appreciation so heartily expressed. At the conclusion of the entertainment the choir and orchestra, and those who assisted, were entertained to a luncheon by Mrs. John Macpherson and Mrs. Alex. Ferguson in the lecture hall of the church, where a pleasant social hour was spent. The pastor, Rev. Mr. Stuart, was on hand, and assisted in entertaining the company.

You Can't Sew Sunshine; You Can't Weave Wind,

But at the New Fancy Goods Department just opened out in our store you can buy goods at prices that make them almost as cheap as wind or sunshine. Clever buying, sharp, accurate figuring and prompt cash payments, preceded by weeks of careful hunting and searching among the very latest stocks of fancy goods, have combined in a way that has made our fancy goods stock not only our delight, but the delight of London's fashionable ladies and thrifty housewives.

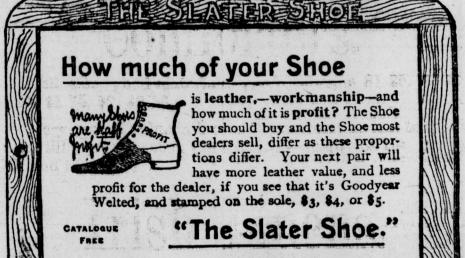

We keep every imaginable article in the fancy goods line, from the daintiest spool of shaded twist to the more elegant and costly pieces of fancy work ornamentation. Deft fingers have twisted and twined bits of prettiness into some of the most charming novelties of the season, and we sell these goods at prices that make our competitors shiver.

Mrs. Kenly, of New York City, known the world over as an expert and competent instructor in the art of workmanship and decoration, as applied to silk and stamped linen goods, will give lessons free of charge at the Free Library Building. She is the representative of Belding, Paul & Co. All the goods that Mrs. Kenly uses and that are required by those engaging in fancy work under her care, can be purchased at our counters. We can supply all your wants and still not drain your purse.
