LET'S HAVE SOME ACTION THAT WILL MAKE IT WORTH WHILE

(Toronto Star) It is about time for Mr. Hanna to do something which will make his appointment worth while, and show that he has a serious conception of his duties. Here are the figures: His fish-eating scheme is good enough in its way, but it goes a very little way. The same may be said of the restriction on meat and white bread in restaurants. In the latter case he is helping thrift, just as high prices are doing. The meat portions are growing dearer, small by degrees, and beautifully long. Still the restriction may do a little—hardly enough to justify the appointment of so able a man as Mr. Hanna as food controller.

But that decree forbidding the distillers to make whiskey out of wheat—that caps the climax of fecklessness. Whiskey is not made out of wheat, except to such an extent as to make the prohibition a witless jest and a dreary farce. Out of 88,007,019 pounds of grain used in 1917, only 27,792 were wheat. Here are the figures: Malt 7,969,868 Corn 68,447,487 Rye 10,490,817 Wheat 27,792 "O monstrous! but one halfpenny worth of bread to this intolerable deal of sack! Three thousand pounds of grain wasted and one pound saved! Then there are 98,922,000 pounds used in making beer, and this is not touched at all. Corn bread is recommended by the controller as a substitute for wheat. Sixty-nine million pounds of corn are made into alcohol for beverages—fifty pounds for every family in Canada. As to the other part of the food controller's duty—the control of prices—nothing is being done but investigating and writing reports and appointing commissions to investigate the reports. Thrift and production are the topics of many eloquent sermons. The government preaches, but does not practice.

OUR FINE FRESH FRUITS ARRIVE DAILY. It is cheaper to buy wholesale fruits than it is to pay dealer bills. A sweet, juicy orange, or a slice of luscious pineapple is more pleasant to "take" than a dose of Calomel. Eat fruit and avoid irritating, weakening purgative medicines. Fruits are nourishing, too, and easy to digest. It is absolutely necessary to eat them to "carry off" heavy meats. Our fruits are always the "choicest".

WHERE CANADIAN LADS WHO HAVE DIED IN ENGLAND ARE BURIED

Two Hundred Have Received Appointments in British Forces

(By An English Cousin.) Though with the exception of a short journey to France, I have never passed beyond the seas which encircle the British Isles, I visited the other day a sad but beautiful little scrap of Canada. It is the burial ground of the Canadian soldiers who die in England, and it is situated in the huge cemetery of "Brookwood" in Surrey. One of the Canadian officers with whom I talked said that the ground is undulating and still wild, and among the heather and pinewoods grassy paths lead hither and thither, and at intervals—sometimes very long ones—there are groups of graves. It may be interesting to describe briefly a Canadian military funeral in England, which I saw in a French town, and which was a richly deserved, and it will afford another glimpse of the admirable way in which the Canadian contingent is organized and managed. It was a young cousin of mine who had died. He had given up a good position to fight as a private. He was wounded at Vimy Ridge, spent a month in a French hospital and was then sent back to a London hospital. We had hopes of his recovery, though he would never have been a cripple, but pneumonia supervened and the end came swiftly. A few days previously his sister, arrived in England, and she was with him when he died. We and another Canadian military funeral in England, which I saw in a French town, and which was a richly deserved, and it will afford another glimpse of the admirable way in which the Canadian contingent is organized and managed.

I thought I'd have to do my own Housework. My all around housemaid Mary, packed up her grip and quit to get married right in the middle of my busiest social season. Mary had been our faithful servant for over five years. She was a sort of a "windfall." A friend of mine who had moved to another city had left her to me and now that she was no longer mine, I didn't know where to find another. I was perplexed. And just as I had concluded that I must do my own work a happy thought struck me. Mrs. Smith's girl had left her a few days ago and she already had another. I must find out how she got her. And she told me—
