A MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE WITH ITS ENDING

Miss Donley, Well Known
Amherst Girl, Made a Temporary Disappearance
While Suffering from Mental Aberration.

(Amherst News.)

Great excitement was created in Amherst on Saturday and Sunday morning, when Miss Dorothy Donley, age 19, daughter of Mr. Harry Donley, disappeared from her home on Dale Street. The circumstances surrounding the case were most peculiar. The young lady's clothes were accounted for—but the furniture and floors of the house were covered with blood stains. Twenty dollars in cash, a club bag, and a watch were missing—and foul play was feared, despite the fact that neighbors living nearby had heard no disturbance. Furthermore a printed note was left on the kitchen table bearing the words in large letters "What I Want I Take." The blood-stained appearance of the left alone for the evening by her grand mother, and her uncle, Mr. James Stuart. On their return to the house they found the electric lights all burning, and the interior of the residence greatly upset. They immediately informed the police and search parties were organized to tour along the creek banks, the roads, and byways, seeking traces of foul play. Saturday night, Sunday morning and Sunday afternoon, the excitement continued. Various stories were heard—the majority of them being entirely untrue. At 8 o'clock in the afternoon Crown Prosecutor James A. Hanway received an intimation from a private source that the girl was in town. A few minutes later they ascertained that a strange woman had registered on Saturday night at the Victoria Hotel. There she was found. She had dressed in her grandmother's clothes, worn a pair of spectacles, and partially dyed her auburn hair, and to complete her disguise, covered it with a white towel. Before leaving her home on Dale street, she had inflicted a slight gash on her wrist with a safety razor blade, and from this wound, the blood had been thrown around the rooms of the residence.

Taken from the hotel to the house she would give no genuine explanation of her actions in alarming the town of Amherst. Various medical men on investigating the case declared that the girl was suffering from an attack of mental aberration, and could not be held responsible for her flighty actions of Saturday evening.

Other stories, created by vicious minded people, according to James A.

Hanway, K. C., and directed against the character of the girl, are untrue. Miss Donley has been one of the leading athletic girls in local tennis and basketball, and only last summer was in the finals of the town tennis championships. She has been invariably bright and cheerful, possessing a splendid reputation. Her people can ascribe no reasonable motive for her actions, other than mental aberration, and the medical authorities also agreed upon this point.

Miss Donley is a member of St. Stephen's Presbyterian Church, prominent in missions and respected by co-church workers.

FOREST FIRE PERIL

To the Editor of The Times:
Sir:—Canadians have only Providence to thank for the fact that the outbreak of fires in Northern Ontario, Northern Quebec and in New Brunswick did not make a clean sweep of the forest growths in those districts. No human agency could have brought the relief which came with the providential downpour of rain. But the menace is still with us and will be until the authorities adopt much more drastic means for forest protection than they have yet done and until the public is educated to the point of regarding the forests as real wealth and treating them as such. As things are, fires are likely to recur at any time and to wipe out practically all of the timber our pulp and paper industry now depends upon for its existence, except, perhaps, the very limited wood growing on the farm lots. We must not lose sight of the fact that notwithstanding the appalling losses that Canada has suffered from forest fires in the past, today we have the added menace of two hundred million cords of dead, dry budworm killed trees that are blowing down and piling up, forming an interminable mass of dry kindling tinder merely awaiting a period of drought and the dropping of a match or cigarette stub.

The heavy losses already sustained this season emphasize the necessity for using every available means for conserving our remaining supply of timber, and should cause the Government at Ottawa to stop temporizing with the question of stopping the exploitation of our unmanufactured wood for the benefit of foreign countries. No other country placed as Canada is would permit what amounts to the life blood of her industries to be cut down and shipped out of the country as we are doing. It is encouraging to note, from the discussions which have taken place in Parliament of late, that the members, regardless of party, are becoming alive to the situation and have expressed the view that there should be no further delay. It is sincerely to be hoped that the Government, before the session is over, will introduce a law which will give the desired relief and thereby postpone if not permanently avoid the crisis that is bound to overtake our wood-using industries if present practices are permitted to go unchecked.

HOLD BURIAL SERVICE

210 UNIDENTIFIED DEAD.

New York, June 13—A burial service, believed to be the first of its kind, was held on Sunday at an undertaking establishment for 210 persons who died in New York between 1903 and 1922, whose cremated remains were not claimed by either relatives or friends. All of the ashes will be buried Tuesday in one grave.

Ministers of the Protestant, Episcopal Church, the Church of the Puritans, and a Rabbi conducted the service.

MADE TO GIVE BLOOD TO HIS WIFE HE TRIED TO MURDER.

Chicago, June 13—In what was termed by the police to be an unparalleled case of retributive justice, a husband who had attempted to kill his wife was forcibly held and unwillingly made to give his blood to save the life he had tried to take.

As the climax to a family quarrel Theodore Marty cut the throat of his wife, Martha, and fled. At a hospital it was announced that an immediate blood transfusion would be necessary to save Mrs. Marty.

As a call for volunteers was about to be sent out detectives arrived with Marty. They forcibly carried him to the operating room, two quick incisions made and the transfusion completed. Mrs. Marty will live, the doctors said.

Under the old Hindu divorce law husbands were supposed to leave wives who spoke unkindly to them.

Worth Its Price

"We have cheaper teas, madam, but I think you'll find 'KING COLE' is worth its price." So said a wise grocer recently to a questioning customer. He was there not merely to serve her, but to serve her well.

He might please her purse with the cheaper article but her final judgment of his service would be on the quality of the tea supplied. He wanted a satisfied customer.

This was one of the many merchants using "KING COLE TEA" in their own homes, and so he could say with sincerity: "It is worth the price."
