

THE LINES TO THE AURORA BOREALIS.

Ye golden gleams of northern light!
Oh, tell me whence ye come?
And where your gathered beauties light—
Around your native home?

With what a glorious train you ride
Like morning beams of dawn's prime,
Your waving streamers fly.

O tell me of the radiant eyes
That give your splendour birth;
Telling the tale of the light that doth
The ocean of the north!

What splendour line that frozen coast,
And o'er the land untold;
Where "Franklin" and his gallant host,
To brave eternal cold.

Did you dwell his trackless way
Amid those polar seas;
And lead to those light of day,
Where nature's emblems trace?

Say, do your gladdening beams descend,
And greet that wanderer's eye;
As they speak of a treasure friend,
Of home and native land?

Or do you light the hidden graves
Of those heroic men;
Looked up within the ice-bound caves,
That know no mortal's ken?

Throughout the long and chilly night
Your glowing beauties shine;
But never shall a ray of light
Reveal its secret mine.
