

THE FARMERS' TELEPHONE CO. MAY BUY LINE

Negotiations now on for Purchase of Carlisle Lines from New Brunswick Telephone Co.

Hardland, N. B., Nov. 8.—For some time past there has been a deal on between the Farmers' Telephone Co. and the New Brunswick Telephone Co. relative to the latter's lines running to Carlisle and the surrounding district. The N. B. line has but a very few phones in the section under treatment and the people are anxious for the service of the Farmers' line.

A proposition has been made to buy the N. B. line in the Carlisle district on which to erect poles at the expense of the Farmers' line. So anxious are the people of that district for telephone service that they have erected poles at their own expense and made application for boxes. The Farmers' people are now awaiting the decision of the N. B. Co. as to the selling of the line in this section. If they cannot secure the line as erected the Farmers' Co. will proceed to string wires on the poles erected for them by the people and install boxes over the entire route covered by the N. B. Co. This will practically put the N. B. people out of business in the Carlisle district, as those now having N. B. phones will take them out and put in those of the Farmers' line.

Owens, the head of the house, and station agent here, will be appointed as station agent of the C. P. R. at Woodstock, which is now temporarily filled by Robt. Afton. The community will be sorry to lose him, as he is a genial soul and a good officer of the C. P. R. He is also agent for the Dominion Express here and has filled both positions to the satisfaction of the public.

The recent cold snap caught many of the farmers napping and considerable produce felt the effects of the frost. Many patches of potatoes and turnips had not been dug and the loss will be considerable. Some farmers who brought their potatoes here were turned down by the shippers because the tubers were frost-bitten. Having hauled them some distance they dumped them over the bridge into the river rather than take them back home for the hogs. Some of the shippers also had many potatoes frozen in cars in which no fires had been lighted. There is great activity now fitting up the cars with stoves.

BOYISH KNICKERBOCKERS JUST SUIT HER

When Mrs. Eugen Plimton, better known to the American operatic public as Miss Maggie Teyte, was coming to America from England a passenger said to her—
"I think you would make a charming boy."

"Is that a dare?" she asked.
"It certainly is," was the reply.

Then followed a brief conspiracy between Miss Teyte and the ship's valet. Presently among the promenaders there appeared, so far as outward appearance goes, a boy of sixteen in short jacket and knickerbockers and with a Scotch tweed cap drawn over his eyes.

The "boy" also smoked a cigarette like a man. Miss Teyte had made good the dare.

New York, Nov. 8.—The Austrian liner Laura is in port today with Captain Martin and his crew of six men from the wrecked Nova Scotia schooner Gypsum Emperor, which was abandoned at sea on Oct. 31, about thirty miles southeast of Nantucket Lightship. The skipper said he took the schooner out of New York on October 27, going seaward through Long Island Sound. Three days later he got into a blow from the northwest that carried away his main rigging. Early the next morning the mizzenmast went and one of his lifeboats was smashed to bits when a comber swept aft, carrying away his spunker boom. With the terrific pounding the Gypsum Emperor received her seams opened and she began to sink. The pumps had been put out of commission, and she was in a bad way, when at 9 p. m. she sighted an eastbound steamship. Capt. Martin said he burned a flare and the steamship bore down upon him, signalling that she would take off the crew if he could keep afloat till daybreak.

With the first streak of dawn, the lifeboat came out from the steamship, which was the Barcelona, bound from Philadelphia to Hamburg. She took the crew aboard without mishap and proceeded on her course. On Nov. 4th she sighted the westbound steamer Laura, which stood by. Capt. Martin said his men were transferred to the Laura by one of the Barcelona's lifeboats. They saved nothing but the clothes they wore.
