Sports at Balmoral Hall.

coats, fur caps on their heads, and their feet bound up in yellow moccasins.

A little before five we went into the hall for tea. You can draw very well upon your imagination for a beautifully arranged refreshment table, without my entering into details in that regard, as I will not dilate upon the elegant china—the cups and saucers as thin as a five-cent silver piece, and of a quatrefoil shape—and family plate, and mention instead that the placing of the flowers was artistically done, the glace de resistance being a majolica tub in which was growing a large bigouin, perfectly fruited with pink blossoms. All through the large drawing-room were scattered natural flowers, cut or growing in pots in every conceivable place. Every bracket, table, cabinet, or jardiniere between the curtains held a pot of primula or a vase of geraniums and hollyhocks. With regard to the other appointments in this room:

A carpet in a soft Axminster, a white ground scattered with flowers. The cabinets are large and elaborately carved; the chairs, dos a dos, vis-a-vis, tete-a tete are upholstered with crimson, and there are perfect nests of pretty tables, stands, etageres, upon which repose souvenirs and curiosities, the gifts of friends and the gatherings of travel.

"You will find us very home like at Rideau," his Excellency remarked to me; and, indeed, the presence of fair women was noticeable here, for upon sofa and divan and table and floor was some pretty bit of needlework—a tidy in Roman point, or a painted satin fire-screen, or an elaborately embroidered chair, and all this gleaming richness made doubly brilliant by the immense glasses adorning the walls. The mantels facing each other on either end of the room supported large square mirrors, in front of which were placed toys and ornaments, bewildering in their profusion, a brilliantly faceted amber vase, a dancing girl in bisque, and a Chinese mandarin whose abdominal proportions partly explained the rollicking good humor in his face. Most of the paintings in the drawing-room were gifts of artist friends. One, a fan sketch in water-colours by the Princess Louise, is very spirited; it represents a skating carnival, and you can almost imagine the figures are moving, the swaying of the bodies and the flying drapery is so truthfully delineated. The sketch describes a half circle, and underneath is a head of old Father Winter, also the work of Her Royal Highness. In the dining-room, besides the massive black oil sideboards, treasures in themselves, are the old paintings, the portraits of Lord Dufferin's ancestors. The library is a small, cheerful room, hung with engravings in passe partouts, and a drawing in Sepia of the eldest daughter, Lady Helen, in the reception-room there are photographic views of the family estate, "Clandeboye," in Ireland. After a few round dances in the ball-room we repaired to a bijou auditorium to witness the fairy extravaganza of "Princess Pussy Cat Mew-Mew," the talent on this occasion being the children of their Excellencies and those of Colonel and Lady Harriet Fletcher, together with Captains Hamilton and Ward; Miss Fletcher, a little yellow-haired doll, assuming the title role.

Scene 1—Cavern of Zoroaster, the sorcerer; Kakaliban, his servant (Capt. Hamilton), solus gazing at himself in a penny shaving-glass.

"Kakaliban, you're really quite a handsome fellow:
Your complexion, though, is getting kind of yellow.
O dear! I weary doing master's naughty tricks:
Just give a look at these pale hollow cheeks.
I haven't tasted food in thirteen weeks."

Princess Pussy Cat, the heiress of "No-Boy Land," goes to bid old Zoroaster (Captain Ward), who promises to make a boy upon Mother Goose principles (if not according to Darwin), Kakaliban, therefore, is ordered off with his bag for

"Snips and snails, and puppy-dog tails."

and he wanders off through the side scene, bemoaning his hard master and cruel fate. Fairy Fancy, the good Queen (Lady Helen Blackwood), in scene third, comes suddenly upon old Zoroaster stirring his hugs cauldron to this refrain:

"Hunky, punky, boil and bubble,
Stir up boys and lots of trouble:
Puppy-dogs and snips and snails,
Boil until reps as hard as nails."

She drives the old villain away and condemns him to be teased to death with boys. His appeal for pity is agonizing in the extreme:

"Oh! pity! Put me in my little bed,
With forty tom-cats squalling round my head,
Five hundred monkeys and their chattering noise,
But do not, do not give me up to boys."

The little audience fairly screamed with laughter when the sorcerer pleads "put me in my little bed," and after the old bad man is disposed of the actors all appear in a transformation scene of gold and silver, and gauze and calcium lights. When the curtain descended Lord Dufferin, after the first round of applause, clapped his hands and called "author," but the playright made no response. In the intermission I complimented Capt. Hamilton's good acting to Lord Dufferin's private secretary, Mr. Baker, and asked if it was he or the Countess that was a descendant of Sheridan.

"Well, Lady Dufferin is—that is, they are both descended from Sheridan, for His Excellency married his cousin." I had tried to find out from several about this, but every person I questioned seemed to know nothing about it, and inclined to think the author of "The School for Scandal" a creature of my imagination.

The finale was three tableaux, all the children, including Lady Victoria, the baby, and Lord Dufferin's dog Teck, appearing. One would have thought the little lady would have been frightened by the lights, but not a bit of it, and in the last tableau she clapped her hands and cried "coo-coo," and Teck wagged his tail (I think he was taught to) benevolently. Lady Victoria wore white, with pink sash and pink kid boots, of which she was very proud, and a very large Roman gold medallion dazzling with diamonds, the gift of Queen Victoria, for whom she was named.

At the theatricals in which the older members take part, the Countess figures conspicuously, and I am told that her Excellency is a "capital actress." Of that, more anon.

FLORENCE H. DUNCAN.

Evening dress trains grow longer and longer.

There is a mania for trimming ball dresses with lace.

Aigrettes are now generally fashionable for hair ornaments.

The newest kid gloves are handsomely embroidered on the back.

Jet is extensively used in trimming ball and party dresses of almost all kinds, this season.

One must necessarily have a good figure to be able to wear the new corset waist with success.

Ayer's Hair Vigor,

For restoring to Gray Hair its natural Vitality and Color.

A dressing which is at once agreeable, healthy, and effectual for preserving the hair. It soon restores faded or gray hair to its original color, with the gloss and freshness of youth. Thin hair is thickened, falling hair checked, and baldness often, though not always, cured by its use. Nothing can restore the hair where the follicles are destroyed, or the glands atrophied and decayed; but such as remain can be saved by this application, and stimulated into activity, so that a new growth of hair is produced. Instead of fouling the hair with a pasty sediment, it will keep it clean and vigorous. Its occasional use will prevent the hair from turning gray or falling off, and consequently prevent baldness. The restoration of vitality it gives to the scalp arrests and prevents the formation of dandruff, which is often so unCleanly and offensive. Free from those deleterious substances which make some preparations dangerous and injurious to the hair, the Vigor can only benefit but not harm it. If wanted merely for a HAIR DRESSING, nothing else can be found so desirable. Containing neither oil nor dye, it does not soil white cambric, and yet lasts long on the hair, giving it a rich, glossy lustre, and a grateful perfume.

THE ILLUSTRATED LIBRARY OF POETRY AND SONG!

Edited by

DR. J. G. HOLLAND,

Author of "Kathrina," "Bitter Sweet," etc.

FAVORITE SONG is a royal octavo volume of over 700 pages, printed in the best style of the art, on the finest tinted paper, and illustrated with 125 thoroughly chaste and delicate engravings, MOST ORIGINAL DESIGNS, by the most eminent artists, together with the similes of the original autograph copies of (200) famous poems.

The illustrations are numerous and exquisitely wrought. What can be more beautiful than the one which reflects the enchanting spot where—

"Maud Muller, on a summer's day,
Raked in a meadow sweet with hay."

One of those lovely New England landscapes, which the engraver has represented in outlines as beautiful and artistic as the song it adorns.

Conspicuous, also, for its rare beauty, is the illustration accompanying the "Song of the Brook," where the stream-let, dashing beneath the rustic bridge, goes chattering

"Over stony ways,
In little sharps and trebles."

"Till I het by Philip's farm it flows,
To join the brimming river."

Altogether, this is one of the most charming and elegant books ever issued by the American press—a fitting gift for lover or friend; an attractive ornament for the parlor table; a valuable addition to any family library.
