In answer to a question by the Hon. Dr. Tupper relating to duties on tea, the Hon. Mr. Cartwright said he held no hope out of any alteration being made in the policy of the Government. As regarded cases of individual bardship, those must be dealt with by the Government under the existing law, according to their respective merits.

He wished to know from the first Minister if he was aware that any such change had been made in the tariff.

Hon. Mr. Mackenzie thought there must be some mistake. It must be the duty of 1½ cents per can on canned lot-sters; he was not aware that any such change as had been referred to had been made in the tariff of the United States.

Mr. Keans said, that while in accord with the principle of the Habitual Drunkard bill, he would like, like other members, to have an opportunity of looking into its details, and to that end it would be well to report progress.

Mr. Davidson said the process provided was similar to that for making disposition of the property of lunatics, although it was simpler. He believed such a law would be of very general service.

Mr. Elder said the bill was founded on the sade principle almost as the law of Ontarto and Quebec in relation to incipiates; but it is simpler. It addressed itself to a great existing want in relief of families of drunkards in misery and starvation,

The bill was 'referred to a select committee, consisting of Messrs. King, Davidson, Burns, McKay and Leighton.
