Personal Health Service (By WILLIAM BRADY, M.D., Noted Physician and Author.) Absolute Rest.

Absolute Rest. A complete rest, in the vernacular, usually means getting away from a tetchy husband, nagging wife, loving friends or a bad job. I; implies a double-barreled nonentity; first, that cne's impaired health may be account-of by nerve strain or nerve break-down; second, that for purposes of re-reucention or convalserconce there is no other place quite so unsatisfactory as home. ANSWER-Yes. That is just the thing. Appendix Conjecture. Since persons who have had the appendix removed invariably suffer from constipation. is it not true that the appendix is the natural lubricator for the intestinee? (I. H.) ANSWER-Persons who have had the appendix removed are no more likely to be troubled with constipation than those who have not, as a matter of fact. I, for one, am content to do without that par-ticular mode of "lubrication." The ap-pendix is of no more value to a human being than is a wart on one's nose. Red, Rough Hands. ARE RAW ONIONS GOOD TO EAT. Besides wearing bags of noisome stuff such as asafetida, camphor or iodoform, on one's chest, almost any ignorant, su-perstitious old granny will assure you, it is a simple matter to keep off germs by eating freely of raw onions. There is usually a grain of truth underlying these ridiculous superstitions of the unedu-cated, just enough of truth to found a huge edifice of pure fancy on. Whereas an inteligent mind adds two and two to make four, an illiterate can just as well make six or nineteen of it. In a recent jssue of "Munchener Medi-zinische Wochenschrift" published in Munich, E. Wilbrand gives the results of What a rac-ing and squealing there was then for the passageway that led to the ground above; but at every passage appeared the head of a cat. It did not take the cats long to rid the earth of the rats. When it was all over there was a search for the lame puppy—but he was nowhere about? What had happened to him? Pinkey's late husband's relatives were finding it quite a problem to keep the puppy quiet. The little lame pup was not used to being so neglected, and the grey rats had carried him to a cold and dismal place. "Think we should kill him," sug-gested one of the old grey rats. "No," interrupted the oldest grey rat. "that would never do. Bad luck would come to us if we killed this little lame animal. We will just keep him here a prisoner. It will serve Pinkey right. No one can find us here." "Don't be too sure of that," cried a small grey rat in alarm, as he hurried in. "All the cats of the nuppy. A bie PILLS

1854 Waterpower

During the American Civil War the Hunt Mills, driven by water power from the old Hunt's dam, ground night and day to feed the Armies of the North.

In the great World War Hunt's Mills, modernized, operated electrically and working 24 hours a day, ground millions of bushels of Canadian wheat for the Allies.
