Pleasant valley officially closed

Pleasant Valley Mobile Trailer Court officially closed down on the weekend although several mobile homeowners remain on site there.

Most of the original 120 families who settled at the Marie Curtis Park site have gone. Others are moving out this week.

A spokesman at the trailer court office said, Monday: "no-one's applying any pressure for the move. Officially I'm closed now

A lot are moving out this week, finding their own spots. There'll be about eight left."

The homeowners are leaving after two years of efforts by their association. Mississauga town council and Peel South MP Hyliard Chappell, to find them an alternative spot to live in Mississauga.

During the campaign for new quarters many families withdrew from Pleasant Valley and relocated in spots outside the town. Several went to nearby Vaughan Township.

The homeowners were presented with notices to vacate their park to make way for an apartment complex development which received the blessing of Ontario Municipal Affairs Minister Darcy McKeough, about a week ago.

DECISION
Town council decided it did not want to go into the trailer court business on its own bat, but agreed to entertain proposals from private developers to provide a new site for the trailer court people.

Several proposals were presented to council. None worked out.

The two latest proposals were one from the G.S. Shipp corporation which was vying for a site for a modern mobile home development on land at Lakeshore Rd. and Southdown, owned by CFRB.

The sale did not take place. The other was a proposal to develop a site on Lakeshore Rd., also at Clarkson, by the St. Lawrence Cement Company plant at Hazelhurst, an area zoned industrial.

Town council did not like the idea, nor did planning board and town staff.

However, after Hyliard Chappell made a strong appeal to council a week ago to take a new look at the suggestion, council directed planning board to investigate it.

Council also appealed to the Pleasant Valley site owner to extend the homeowners' leases until at least the end of the school term, in the hope that something could be worked out for the remaining people there.

This week's council meeting was postponed until next Monday.

Burlington man dies in rear-end collision

A Burlington man died in a car-truck collision on the Queen Elizabeth Way last Tuesday.

Dead is Murray Ponting, 49, of 886 Glenwood Avenue, Burlington.

Ponting was driving east on the QEW at about 1 p.m. when he pulled out to pass a transport driven by Wayne Campbell, 29, of St. Catharines.

The car struck the rear of the transport.

Campbell was uninjured. Provincial Constable John Mesich, OPP Port Credit, estimated the damage at $2250.

An inquest into the accident will be held in Toronto on June 16.

Markborough and Don Mills to meet town

The Markborough and Don Mills development companies which plan to build the new town of Erin Mills in west Mississauga, are to meet with Mississauga town council and planning board to discuss the multi-million-dollar project.

A definite date had not been set at press time.

YPES's visit with Peel MPP

Fifteen members of the Peel South Young Progressive Conservative Association visited the Ontario legislature last Thursday evening.

Led by the president of the group Kerry Montgomery, past president Roger Henry, and their wives, the young people dined with MPP Doug Kennedy and were introduced to the legislature, where they listened to a discussion of the estimates of the department of labour.

The project will require public meetings and zoning changes before it can be put into effect.

Town planning director Harry Petschar said last week there was no necessity to go over the plans at great length because of the companies' comprehensive presentation of their projects although formal acceptance and discussion on them was necessary before a public meeting could be held.

The companies are also negotiating a meeting with Streetsville town council to discuss the projects.

Ville Riders scramble Sunday

Streetsville's Ville Riders Motor-cycle Club is staging another scramble at Wildwood Park Sunday. The sport is becoming more and more popular in the area.
