

taking sand away which was of no use for raising crops as nothing would grow on it. The top soil was left on the land they taking the sand which was under. I was informed that he could do so, by leaving value on the land' was informed so about a year ago.

Hugh McArthur

James Fry upon oath saith and an Expert of the Caradoe reservoir, heard the statement of Hugh McArthur and knows it to be true. I got 930 bricks from McArthur which are used in a well on the premises, and which well is very valuable to me and family. I used tile for ditching purpose and intended, paying for them in sand. The land from where the sand was taken was of no use to me. It was a small plot between the town line of Exira and Creek, and about four rods square.
The top soil was off and only the under sand taken. I do not think the taking away of the sand injured the land in any way.
I told McArthur to take the sand and that he was in harm in doing so.
