

‘But there’s something abroad in the air,
Perchance ’tis the spirit of spring,
That fills me with fancies
Of blue skies and pansies,
And songs that the meadow brooks sing”

—W. W. CAMPBELL.