

UNIVERSITY OF NEW BRUNSWICK HONOR ROLL.

"Their name liveth for evermore."

Arthur Neville Vince.

LIEUT.-COLONEL A. NEVILLE VINCE was born at Grafton, N. B., July 19, 1879. He was the son of Lieutenant-Colonel D. McLeod Vince and Milicent A. Vince.

He graduated from the Woodstock High School in 1894 and entered the University of New Brunswick in the autumn of the same year. He graduated in 1898 with honors in mathematics and mathematical physics. Later he took a course at Kingston Military School. He was a veteran of the South African War, having taken part in various operations in the Transvaal from December, 1901, to May 31, 1902. He received the Queen's medal with five clasps. He continued in the Imperial Army until 1909, when he resigned. During this period of service he was stationed in Ireland, India and Burmah. He entered upon the study of law, graduating from the Boston Law School in the spring of 1911.

In August, 1914, he volunteered for active service in the European War, leaving Woodstock for Valcartier on August 20. He went across as captain of a Nova Scotia regiment and subsequently joined his old regiment, the King's Liverpools. He was rapidly promoted to the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, won the D. S. O. and was especially mentioned in despatches. During the heavy German attack near St. Quentin on March 24, 1918, he was severely wounded. He was later reported as wounded and missing and doubtless met his death at the head of his men attempting to stem the furious rush of the German masses. He was in every respect a true soldier and one of Nature's noblemen.

A. E. G. McKenzie.

LIEUT.-COLONEL A. E. G. MCKENZIE, D.S.O., was the son of Archibald and Jean Elizabeth Smith McKenzie, and was born at Campbellton, Restigouche Co., January 21, 1878. Educated at the High School of his native town, he entered the University in 1898, graduated B. A. in 1902, and M. A. 1904. He later was given the degree B. C. L. by King's College, N. S.

For some time he engaged in teaching, being principal of the Harkin's Academy, Newcastle, and the Albert School, St. John. Admitted to the bar, he practised law some years in Campbellton, and took an active part in the public affairs of the county of Restigouche.

On the formation of the 26th N. B. Regiment in November, 1914, he enlisted as major, having for many years held a captaincy in the militia and trained several summers. The 26th was located at St. John during the winter of 1914-15, went overseas in June, and took up quarters at Sandling, near Hythe. In September it went to France and to the Ypres salient, where it participated in heavy fighting and won for itself the title of the "Fighting 26th."

Lieutenant-Colonel McKenzie fought in the second battle of Ypres, at Courcellette, the Somme (1916), Vimy Ridge, Passchendaele, Amiens and Monchy. While leading his battalion, he was killed at Cherisy, August 28, 1918.

For surpassing courage and gallantry in this action, he was recommended for a V. C. by General Ross.

Few officers participated in so many fierce struggles. Brave as a lion, cool in danger, quick and decisive in action, the tall, broad-shouldered and iron-muscle athlete was admired and loved by all. When he won the D. S. O., he was spoken of by his superior officers as a noble type of soldier and one absolutely fearless in action.

He was buried in the Wan Court Cemetery not far from the scene of his last fight.

John Hales Sweet.

MAJOR JOHN HALES SWEET was born in St. Mary's Rectory, Dalhousie, October 13, 1878, the son of the Rev. J. H. and Evelina Janet Sweet, and was educated at the Harkin's Academy, Newcastle, Miramichi, where he had as a schoolfellow, Sir Max Aitken, now Baron Beaverbrook, and where he won the Governor-General's bronze medal three years in succession. He was matriculated at the University of New
