PROGRESS OF THE WAR

[April 13 to April 19]

At no time during the progress of the war has the news been so mixed as it is at present. The result of the week's hostilities, yet the result of the week's hostilities, has been most important, if not in any way decisive.

In the Western campaign the German drive towards Verdun was continued with great vigor in the early part of the week, especially in the case of the Meuse; but the result was even less satisfactory than in any preceding week since the drive began two months ago. They gained little or no ground, but suffered enormous losses. At the week's close it seemed that the attempt to reach Verdun would have to be abandoned. Further to the north-west, below Ypres, where the British troops are mostly facing the enemy, severe fighting was in progress, as is shown in the casualty lists in which Canadian figures so prominently. But the enemy made no gains, the Allies more than holding their own.

In the Russian campaign in Europe great activity prevailed in the Riga sector, in the Drinsk sector and in Galicia; and the reports indicate satisfactory results for the Russians.

In the Russian campaign in Armenia and Anatolia the Russians met with most important successes, the chief of which was the capture of the important fortified port of Trebizond on the Black Sea. They also reported successes between Trebizond and Erzurum, and at other points. These successes of the Russians will have a most important bearing on the subsequent course of the war, especially if they succeed soon, as is evidently their intention, in isolating the Turkish troops opposing the British on the Iraq front.

In the Mesopotamian campaign—the Iraq front—an important advance of Gen. Lake's relieving column was reported, as was also a short successful retirement. The situation of Gen. Townshend's forces beleaguered at Kut-el-Amara continued to be a source of very considerable anxiety. Some minor engagements were reported in Egypt in the vicinity of the Suez Canal, in which the British troops made successful attacks on Turkish positions. No news was forthcoming of the operations in German East Africa.

From the Balkan campaign reports were received of the advance of German troops across the Graco-Serbian border but details have not been given out. It was reported that the Austrians had retired from their positions about Avlona. Air raids were made by the Allies on Constantinople, and bombs dropped on the Turkish capital are said to have done great damage to military establishments and works. Trouble was anticipated by the Allies by their forcible use of Greek railways to move Serbian troops to Salonika, the Greek Government having refused to give its consent to such use of their railways.

The Austro-Italian campaign was prosecuted with more than usual vigor at all fronts, and substantial gains were claimed by the Italians.

As is shown in "News of the Sea," the activity, but no victims were reported on the last day of the week, which gives some confirmation to the Daily Mail report that the French had destroyed the submarine which torpedoed the Sussex, and had taken the crews, and merchant shipping, and diplomatic matters arising out of the conduct of the war were of absorbing interest during the week. The American Government sent an ultimatum to Germany, denouncing the latter's conduct of submarine warfare and threatening severance of diplomatic relations if such conduct was continued. President Wilson addressed both Houses of Congress in joint session, and explained what he had done and announced what course it was his intention to pursue.

In the British Parliament a crisis has been reached on the question of compulsory military service, on which the Cabinet is divided. No final decision has been made, but Premier Asquith is to make a statement next Tuesday, after the Easter recess. Should the Cabinet ultimately fail to agree on a compulsory service measure, the Coalition Government will have to retire.

In the Canadian House of Commons on Tuesday Sir Sam Hughes, Minister of Militia, who returned to Ottawa on Sunday last from England, made a long statement in regard to the charges against his Department and the Shell Committee. He announced that he wished the fullest investigation of the charges, and would give the whole of his time to their consideration; his Department, in the meantime, would be taken over by the Premier, Sir Robert Borden.

SHAKESPEARE TERCENTARY

ON Sunday, which is Easter this year, as well as St. George's Day, occurs the three-hundredth anniversary of the death of Shakespeare, who died in his native town of Stratford-on-Avon, Warwickshire, on April 23, 1616. He was born in 1564 and April 23 is usually also given as the day of his birth; but this is not definitely known, though the records show that he was christened on April 26. The name of Shakespeare is the greatest in all literature, ancient or modern; and his writings have not only served to fix the English language in its present form, but have been an inspiration to the English-speaking race for more than three centuries. As Wordsworth says: "We must be free or die, who speak the tongue That Shakespeare spoke."

And in the tercentary of our greatest national poet and writer not only England—which he so dearly loved and so eloquently described—but all the British Isles, and the Dominions beyond the seas, are fighting (along with their Allies) for freedom against the most powerful and most perfectly organized military power the world has ever known. And because of the titanic struggle now in progress the commemoration of the Great Englishman, who will be "freshly remembered" to-morrow by everyone who speaks the English tongue, will be lacking in much of the public observance that would otherwise have been given it. But his name and his works will live as long as the world lasts.

A QUESTION OF TIME

THROUGHOUT the world to-day there is an agitation for daylight saving in the summer months, to be effected by setting clocks ahead one hour. We are told that Germany, France and Holland have already adopted the scheme; and it has been decided to adopt it in several municipalities in New Brunswick. The scheme is being considered this week in the Provincial Legislature at Fredericton, and is expected a Bill will be passed to legalize it.

The Beacon sympathizes with those who wish to begin the day's business of pleasure one hour earlier in the summer, but holds that it is not necessary to tamper with the clocks in order to accomplish it. We have, locally, sufficient trouble with various times as it is. Some years ago, after continental Standard Time had been introduced, the time adopted for that of the 8th meridian west of Greenwich, and called Atlantic Standard. When this standard was adopted the Canadian Pacific Railway was using it for the running of its trains in New Brunswick, and this fact had much to do with its general adoption. But the C. P. R. must have everything its own way; and when Atlantic Standard Time came into general use the C. P. R. went back on it for the running of its trains in this Province, and adopted Eastern Standard Time (longitudinally 75 degrees west of Greenwich); and ever since we have had two times, the civil time and the railway time. Now it is proposed that the civil time for the Province, from May 1 to September 30, shall be that of longitude 65 degrees west, which will make two hours difference between it and the C. P. R. time. Why cannot the C. P. R. run its trains in New Brunswick on the legal civil time of the Province? We do not expect an answer, but we know it will not do so at an early date.

So far as Charlotte County is concerned, we can very well stick to Atlantic Standard Time, even in the summer. In the longitude of the Shire Town it is about 28 minutes much to the mean time, so we save that much of daylight without any alteration of the clock. If we set the clock ahead an hour we will save an hour and twenty-eight minutes, which is altogether more fruitless than the occasion calls for. As it is, we are an hour ahead of Calais and Eastport in the matter of daylight-saving, and we can very well let it go at that.

And speaking of time, we would point out that in the miniature Almanac we have the rising and settings of the sun are given in Atlantic Standard Time. In order to make this Almanac serve the whole County of Charlotte, from Grand Manan to the York County line, and from the St. Croix River to the St. John County line, we have adopted for our calculations Longitude 67° West and latitude 45° North. This position is approximately a central one for the County, and lies between Davidson's Head and Gardner's Point, Deer Island, about one-quarter of a mile off the shore. We make the calculations ourselves from the Greenwich Nautical Almanac, as there is no Almanac printed in Canada which shows the exact times for the position chosen.

LETTER RECEIVED BY MISS F. THOMPSON
85142 Driver E. Horne,
7th Battery
2nd Brigade, C. F. A.
1st Can. Div., B. E. F.
France.
March 1.

My Dear Friend—It gives me great pleasure to write you these few lines, to thank you for your kindness in sending this Xmas stocking full of useful articles. I was divided between 3 of us and I got your nice letter in my third, so it is not to answer it. And being a bachelor there was no one to object. I have seen pictures of St. Andrews by the sea, and from these I can imagine it is a very pretty place. I like any place that is by the water, as you guessed I am a Canadian, and how I often long for the dear old home nestled in amongst the trees. I have been months in the army and we have had a miserable wet and muddy winter, but now the weather is warmer and will soon dry things up. I will draw this my last winter letter to a close. I am quite well, and hope you are the same.

I remain,
Yours sincerely
Ernest Horne.

Ornamental Fencing that keeps its good appearance

Almost any kind of fence looks well when it's first put up. It's only first quality fence, such as the Maritime, that keeps its good looks in spite of the years. The quality is put into the fence and naturally the fence shows it in the wear. Ignoring altogether the temptation to make a few extra cents by skimping and cheapening on material, we use only large, sturdy, resilient No. 9 wire—heavily galvanized. Rare, indeed, is the exception where wire so strong, so smooth and so heavy is used for ornamental fences and gates. At the same time it's the best in the long run—for it retains its good appearance longer than the house. Maritime Ornamental fencing enhances the appearance of your home and thus adds appreciably to its value.

Our catalogue displays a wide range of beautiful designs to choose from. May we send you a copy?
