An informal but lively delightful little luncheon was given at the Golf Club during the week by the Misses Evelyn and Kathleen Buck, who entertained in honor of Miss Hudson of England and Miss Norma Whitelaw of New York.

From Home to the Trenches. From Punch. Sonny, it seems like twenty years. But now and then at night I've been to blame, the times it blew like guns that answered guns, you know—my job—amongst the light.

But in the morning "Dear old fool" I've seemed to hear you say: "Mother, no need to fuss, keep cool, I'll be like the chook's front from school. You was the other day."

You wasn't always quite so grand; Once you was mighty glad, I'd give you a puppy-dog, to stand behind you, hummy, slip your hand in hers, the way you had.

Small son turned big, now that you're grown And in a real war, And set to face it all alone, I'd wild to run and guard my own. Some as I did before.

You'd laugh at that; but keep your fun Till fighting's through, and then Hurry off back to where there's one All of a fuss to love her son. Say "Dear old fool" again.

Obituary

DAVID VANNATTO. David Vannatto passed away at his home, 19 Greenwich street yesterday, at the age of 68 years.

The deceased who was born in this county, was well known and for many years worked in the district as a farm laborer. He leaves a wife and family to mourn his loss.

The funeral will take place this afternoon to Mt. Hope cemetery.

No Longer Bragging of Victories

By Special Wire to the Courier. Paris, June 12—According to a letter published in the Temps describing the recent French victory on the River Aisne, the German prisoners taken there presented a vastly different appearance from those captured early in the war.

The writer says: "They wore patched cotton tunics and were helmetless and devoid of their former arrogance. Some were only 16 to 18 years old. Many were so short-sighted that we never would have accepted them for service."

One said he infinitely preferred fighting the Russians to the French. Asked if he still expected Germany to be victorious, he said dejectedly: "Who knows? We are fighting the whole of Europe."

Referring to the effects of the French artillery, the writer says: "The attacking troops did not fight for the first trench, which was simply a long grave, brimful of corpses. The barbed wire, parapet, and shelters had been obliterated."

The military authorities and the police are investigating an extraordinary affair at Dairie, Firth of Forth. While a train was passing through the station a bullet penetrated the booking office, just missing by a hair's breadth four railway officials. Shots were also fired as the train passed through other stations on the line.

"Yes, madam, this Brantford Laundry work is splendid!"

The voice of experience speaks loudly in favor of this model laundry. When mistress and housekeeper can agree on the important subject of laundry work, surely one of the big housekeeping problems is taken care of.

These bright summer days should not be spent in doing laundry work at home. Send it all to the Brantford Laundry Works where expert laundry workers and the finest of laundry machinery are employed to do it the way you want it.

Brantford Laundry Service

is the outcome of years of experience in laundry work. Every employee has a part to do in the work, and that part must be well done. We have capable and efficient supervision to take care of that part, and the ever increasing patronage indicates that the citizens of Brantford appreciate our efforts to give something better than the ordinary laundry service.

Visitors are welcome

Telephone 274, have a "White Wagon" call for your laundry work. Then come watch how we do the work. Have the various operations explained. Note the clean, bright, airy workrooms. You'll say that here at least is a model laundry, a laundry where work can be sent for perfect satisfaction.
