London, April 23—The family of Captain Trumbull Warren, 48th Highlanders, Toronto, announce that he was killed in action near Ypres, on April 29. The official announcement is not yet made.

MARTIAL LAW PROCLAIMED IN PORTUGAL
Lisbon, April 23—Martial law was proclaimed in Portugal today following the action of five municipal chambers in refusing to accept the validity of government decrees. The chamber of Oporto has been dissolved. Similar action will be taken in Lisbon. Troops have been sent to the other towns affected.

GREEK SAILING SHIP WAS SUNK BY MINE
London, April 23—A small Greek sailing ship struck a mine during a voyage from S. mos Island to Athens and 12 persons on board—including the captain and two women—lost their lives, says the Athens correspondent of the Daily Express. The correspondent adds that the mine evidently was one which had drifted out into the Aegean Sea from the Dardanelles.

SAVE BRITISH TRAWLER WAS CAPTURED
London, April 23—According to Berlin evening newspapers, says Reuters Amsterdam correspondent, telegraphing Thursday, "a German submarine stopped the British steam trawler Glancarse off Aberdeen and took it into a German port on the North Sea."

BRITISH WARSHIPS AGAIN ATTACK DARDANELLES FORTS
Paris, April 23—A Havas despatch from Athens says that advice received from Chips states that heavy firing had been heard there since yesterday (Thursday) morning, which leads to the supposition that the bombardment of the Smyrna forts has been resumed. Four British warships entered the Dardanelles yesterday and bombarded the forts for three hours. The Turkish fortifications also were subjected to an indirect fire from the Gulf of Saros. They replied vigorously to the attack of the warships. French mine sweepers are continuing their operations actively.

BRITISH AVIATORS RUNNING WILD OVER GERMAN TRENCHES
London, April 23—British aviators are running wild over the German trenches in Belgium. Scores are passing and repassing over the German lines, some penetrating well into German territory. Railway signals have been bombarded successfully, interfering with schedule running of trains. It has been officially reported today from the front that General French mentions an attack by no less than nineteen, who dropped bombs on a great aeroplane shed designed to house two or more of the latest type of Zeppelins just outside of Ghent. He declares that a great explosion took place in the shed and this is interpreted as meaning that the dirigibles inside of it were destroyed.

AMHERST MAN IS WOUNDED IN ACTION
Ottawa, April 23—The casualty list among the Canadian Expeditionary Force issued tonight contains among the wounded the name of Private Wm. E. Evans. Next of kin, Harry Evans, Amherst, N. S.

GERMAN SUBMARINES ARE AGAIN AT WORK
London, April 23—After a lull of several days German submarines have resumed their operations in the North Sea. The trawler St. Lawrence was torpedoed Thursday in the North Sea, two men of her crew being killed.

TURKISH COMMANDER TO SHARBA COMMITTED SUICIDE
London, April 23—The Indian Office declares that the defeat of the Turks at Sharba, on the Persian Gulf, is far more complete than the earlier advances indicated. Their losses are now placed at 6,000. The Turkish commander was unable to rally his troops and is reported to have committed suicide.

RUSSIAN DIRIGIBLES BOMBARD GERMAN LINES
Petrograd, April 23—The Russian dirigibles are now being used to harass General Von Hindenberg's lines of communication. An official statement issued today says that one of them bombarded the German positions near Plock on Thursday and dropped fifteen bombs on the enemy's transports, badly damaging them.

BRITISH STEAMER SINKS A GERMAN
Lima, Peru, April 23—A despatch to La Prensa tonight states that the British steamer Orcoma has sunk a German merchant steamer near Bayovar. It is also stated that the British cruisers Kent and Orana have received coal from the British steamer Eggesford at the port of Bayovar. The last report received from the Orcoma was to the effect that she had arrived in Liverpool, February 16, from Valparaiso. It is possible that since then she has been armed and sent back to South American waters.

CANADIAN CASUALTIES WERE HEAVY AT HILL SIXTY
Ottawa, April 23—The heavy casualty lists of the last two days have confirmed the news that the Canadians were in the heart of the fighting south of Ypres for possession of Hill 60. The lists received in the past two days show twelve killed and forty-five wounded in the Canadian army divisions. Three hundred and twenty Canadians have now died for the Empire, and the list is growing fast. The seventh battalion, which was recruited in Western Canada, seems to have borne the brunt of the fighting for the Canadians. Other Canadian regiments apparently in the thick of the fight are the 8th, 10th, 13th, 14th, 15th and 16th. The Princess Pats as usual were in the contest.

Plea Endorsed For Justice to English Nation

German Organ Devotes Leading Article More or Less Favorable to View on England Given by Dr. Landauer of Vienna

The Vorwaerts recently devoted a leading article to a more or less favorable review of a pamphlet entitled "England" by Dr. George Landauer of Vienna. It is a matter for rejoicing the Vorwaerts stated, that more voices are being raised in this country against the senseless preaching of hatred against other countries, and favor a clear statement as to the motives which caused our opponents to intervene. This task, which is by no means easy or free from danger, is particularly servicable and even imperative, with regard to England, against whom certain circles are engaged in arousing, by every means in their power, an altogether incomprehensible rage. As an attempt to do justice to the English nation and to English policy, Dr. Landauer's pamphlet deserves attention and recognition, and is the more valuable in that he fully approves of the Austro-German standpoint in the present war.

If Professor Landauer, nevertheless, pleads for a better comprehension of England, the Vorwaerts continued, it is because, to quote his own words, it is in the interest of his own people, as an outbreak of hatred can only retard the progress of civilized humanity as a whole, while "the future peace cannot rest upon alterations to the map and war indemnities alone, but must open up possibilities of a new and sound understanding between nations." With this end in view, therefore, the Vorwaerts explained, the professor had endeavored to show English life and culture in its true light, and, although he was perhaps too much inclined to dwell upon the faults in the English character, it appeared clear from his treatise that "England's democratic conditions compared very well with the political conditions of continental nations, and that it was absurd to label English civilization indiscriminately as inferior."

Still more valuable the Vorwaerts proceeded, was Dr. Landauer's explanation of Anglo-German policy with regard to the war. Here he justly complained that the majority of England's accusers passed over in silence the material published on and since the outbreak of war, and also that the daily press, perhaps not always from free choice confined itself to official comments on that material. While he fully recognized the danger to the world peace of England's entente policy, his reply to the unproved allegations that English diplomacy had desired a world war, and had systematically worked for it, was to cite the fact that a whole series of crises threatening war, which had arisen under the last three ministries, had terminated peacefully, owing to English efforts. Herr von Bethmann Hollweg, the Vorwaerts remarked, also referred in the last negotiations with Sir Edward Grey to the friendly cooperation of the diplomatists of both countries.

In any case, Dr. Landauer considered that whatever English diplomacy might have on its conscience, no clotting, or desire for war could possibly be ascribed to the English people. Every one moderately acquainted with England, he had written, must admit that right up to the last few days before the outbreak of war, there was no hostile feeling among the English people toward the German. The English people, indeed, at times feared an Anglo-German war, but never desired it, and least of all at the moment it broke out, just when the fear of a German attack had diminished.

This, the Vorwaerts observed, is a very ideal standpoint to assume, but there is more truth and reason in it than in an outbreak of hate, and it is certainly more likely to bring about a lasting peace which we desire in our own interests as well. As the precursor, therefore, of the moral work of peace, which must be begun while the war is still in progress, if we do not wish to have an endless war, or a mere suspension of hostilities, we welcome Dr. Landauer's treatise, and recommend its perusal to our readers. A calm, clear comprehension of the English working classes is particularly necessary for the German working classes, who have always been averse, on policy, from any intellectual separation between two nations.

Australia's Patriotism To British Averred

Professor Kirkaldy Tells Difference in Commonwealth Now From 25 Years Ago

In the course of a lecture delivered at Birmingham university recently, on "A Trip Round the Empire in War Time," Prof. A. W. Kirkaldy, who visited Australia last summer, in connection with the meeting of the British Association, said that when they were two days out from Adelaide, they received by wireless all sorts of vague and alarming rumors, but it was not until they landed at Adelaide they had news that war had been declared.

When he was in Australia a quarter of a century ago, there was very little imperial feeling, Professor Kirkaldy continued; the Australian point of view was that so long as England was necessary to the Commonwealth, the connection would be tolerated, but separation was bound in time to come. Now that sort of feeling had ceased to exist. As soon as the war broke out, the Australians gripped what it meant, better even than those at home. They realized that it was a war waged by Germany against democracy, and probably the last and most powerful attack on the part of autocracy to crush democracy. In place of the old insipid feeling there was a fervent patriotism and a keen love of the old country.

It was found necessary, the Professor said, to give up the projected trip to New Zealand and the return voyage was made via the Suez canal. They were apparently chased by the Emden when off Bombay, their boat, a P. and O. liner, going full steam ahead and without lights.

The Koenigsberg also lay in wait for them, he added, but they escaped.

Locusts in Eastern Canada

Few people who have not experienced a plague of locusts can appreciate how terribly destructive the pest can be. In Circular No. 5, of the Entomological Branch of the Federal Department of Agriculture, Mr. Arthur Gibson, Chief Assistant Entomologist, tells something about locusts or "grasshoppers" that every tiller of the soil should know. He states that for the past three years the pest has been extremely destructive in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. In one district of Lanark County alone an estimated loss of $6,000 was caused representing 75 per cent. of the crops. In a number of instances fields of oats and barley were cut green to save for feed, while in other cases in the province of Quebec farms have been abandoned owing to the prevalence of locusts. The insects are most impartial in their attention, attacking all kinds of grain and vegetables. After describing the different species efficacious poison a bran mash that Canada, Mr. Gibson suggests as an efficacious poison a bran mash that has been well tried, consisting of and Bran 20 pounds Paris green of white arsenic 1 pound Molasses 2 quarts Oranges and lemons 3 fruits Water 3 1/2 gallons

It is said that the oranges and lemons make the bait more attractive and hence lead to the undoing of the locust. Experiments made with this mixture, which can be concocted at small cost, have proved most successful, in one case no fewer than from 900 to 1,200 dead locusts being counted to the square yard. Besides illustrating the efficiency of the poison this statement also proves the alarming and overwhelming nature of the creatures. A farmer should be prepared to protect his crops against the pest he should see to it that as soon as possible he becomes possessed of this invaluable circular, and this he can do by applying to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

GERMAN ATTEMPTED A LAND INVASION

Liverpool, April 23—F. T. Jane, the naval writer, during the course of a lecture here last night said: "It is not generally known that the Germans tried to land an expeditionary force in England and that the British navy forced them to go back to their harbor again. We were once very near to an invasion, although never a word of it in the newspapers."

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—Their Own Stories Here Told.

Edmonton, Alberta, Can.—"I think it is no more than right for me to thank you for what your kind advice and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have done for me.

"When I wrote to you some time ago I was a very sick woman suffering from female troubles. I had organic inflammation and could not stand or walk any distance. At last I was confined to my bed, and the doctor said I would have to go through an operation, but this I refused to do. A friend advised Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and now, after using three bottles of it, I feel like a new woman. I most heartily recommend your medicine to all women who suffer with female troubles. I have also taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills, and think they are fine. I will never be without the medicine in the house."—Mrs. FRANK EMBLEY, 908 Columbia Avenue, Edmonton, Alberta.

The Other Case.
Beatrice, Neb.—"Just after my marriage my left side began to pain me and the pain got so severe at times that I suffered terribly with it. I visited three doctors and each one wanted to operate on me but I would not consent to an operation. I heard of the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was doing for others and I used several bottles of it with the result that I haven't been bothered with my side since then. I am in good health and I have two little girls."—Mrs. R. B. CHILDS, Beatrice, Neb.
