HE CONFESSES HIS CRIME!

St. John N. B., February 15.—The sxecution of Munros took: place at 8 o'clock this morning. At a quarter to cipit the bell commenced tolling and a black flag was holsted. The prisoner walked to the platform with a firm step. Rev. M Lathers offered a short prayer, and Rev. Mr Stew art addresses a few words.

The gallowaused was a beam poised to allow an elevation of seven fact, and load, and the seven weight while the criminal was attached to the other. When the cord was cut the miserable man jerked into the air, remaining suspended about two feet from the platform.

He struggled hard, and his sufferings appeared to be terrible. Munro made a confession to Sheriff Harding, in presence of Mesars. Stewart and Luthern, on Feb. 14th, 1870. to the following offices of Flour 4.90 (a 4.90 (base) 15th.)

When the cord was cut the miserable man jerked into the air, remaining suspended about two feet from the platform.

He struggled hard, and liis sufferings appeared to be terrible. Munre made a confession to Sheriff Harding, in presence of Messrs. Stowart and Lathern, on Feb. 14th, 1870, to the following effects:—It was during a trip to Fredericton with my wife that I first thought the good previously visited with Miss Viil, and described at the trial, was a suitable spot to commit a bad act. I went out again with Miss Vail on the Saturday following to about the same place. We went off the road a littl way together and ast down. I went into the bushes; the child cried. I came out again and was angry. I strangled the child. I do not know that it was actually dead. As she (Miss Vail) was rising up shot her in the head. I threw brush over her face, some over her hands, and left at once. I previously had some of her money perhaps half, or a little more. Cannot say that money was not one of the motives for the act. I do not any it was in self-defence I killed Miss Vail. It was the money, my anger with her at the time, and and thought on and after the trip to Freddence. defence I killed Miss Vail. It was the money, my anger with her at the time, and bad thoughts on and after the trip to Fredericton, working together, caused me to do the bad act. The letter written to Mr. Creer was written by me, and mailed in Boston by a friend of mine. t never killed any other person or child.

The curious bit of gossip to the effect that a certain dowager marchioness, the widow of a Scotch nobleman, has recently bestowed her hand upon her Italian courier, is generally supposed to refer to the Marchioness of Queensberry, whose strong Fenian proclivities are well known.

The Rev. Dr. Cumming, 'of Scotland,' as the Pope designates him, is about publishing what he considers to be his opus magnum, concentration of many years' study. This is 'The Fall of Babylon, as foreshadowed in History and Prophecy.' A deputation from the Permissive Bill Association of Scotland had an interview with the Lord Advocate on Jan. 24th, in regard to the suppression of the traffic in intoxicating liquors. His Lordship promis-ed to bring the matter before the Govern-

Death of Dr. Livingstone.

Just at the time it was believed Dr. Livingstone was safe, and would soon re-turn, having made an important addition to geographical knowledge, the news has been sent us, upon apparently reliable authority, that an African chief condemauthority, that an African chief condemned him to be burnt as a wizard. There is nothing improbable in the story; the only wonder being that he has escaped death at the hands of the black savages so long. Those who have read the history of his adventures, which he published of his adventures, which he published as the accommission to have a kleeness and has the accommission to have a kleeness and has the accommission to have a kleeness and has the accommission to have a kleeness. was therein narrated an instance, permany we should say proof, of the superstition of the natives of the interior of Africa, that since the days of Mungo Park there had mental improvement in been no moral or mental improvement in them. A letter sent to Dr. Livingstone was entombed in a rude cemetery of stones by the negroes, until, having been directed by some of them, he found the place and got it; and mest of us remember Park's touching story of being attacked by robbert, and at first denuded of every vestige of clothing with the exception of his hat, in the crown of which he kept his memoranda, and which was, in consequence, pitched back to him, before they felt compunction enough to induce them to return him another rag or two to 'shelter him from the heat of the sun. There must be something fascinating in African adventure. Poor Mungo, after undergoing more than mortal man might be supposed to be capable of enduring, and after winning a name and same whith might have satisfied an ordinary individual went to Africa onec too often, for if we remember his history fright, the natives who lined the banks of the river down which he was sailing, killed him with missiles which they hurled at him. Now in the case of Dr. Livingsiono may we not say cut bono? them. A letter sent to Dr. Livingston ed at him. Now in the case of Dr. Livingstone may we not say cui bono? Livingstone may we not say cut bono? It would be all very well to find the source of the Nile, that mysterious river, but is it right for men to peril their lives, or is it proper for even the Geographical Society to countenance or induce them to do so, merely on a matter of curiosity and which can be of no real benefit? There is a good deal of truth in what Byron says in Childe Harold, in a stanza which he writes of Napoleon, that 'tempted Fate will leave the loftiest star.' There are certain things the should leave undone, and we can scarcely help thinking—we have thought all along—that Dr. Livingstone was unnecessarily venturous when he undertook to sottle, in the wilds of Africa, a point on which two explorershand
