Report of Lord Northcliffe's Speech

At Grand Falls, Saturday, September 17th.

Mr. Beeton, Ladies and Gentlemen,—

After such an interesting and exciting but tiring day as we have spent here in Grand Falls, in witnessing the various Athletic and Horticultural contests, and exhibits, it is most gratifying to find that our Hall is packed in every inch to-night.

It would be invidious to call attention to individual performances this afternoon, but let me particularly congratulate Grand Falls and Millertown on the children and young people generally. I happen to be associated with Boys Brigades in England, so that I am acquainted with the work of these useful and inspiring associations, and I do not hesitate to say that the Boys Brigades of Grand Falls and Millertown are in every way equal to such Brigades, drawn from such larger populations in England.

The thanks of the community are greatly due to the officers who have brought these two Brigades to such a high state of perfection.

Many of us wished to see Miss Beeton's Girls' Brigade to-day, and we were glad to think that so many of them were present assisting in other directions. Lady Northcliffe inspected the drill on Thursday and told me how charming and efficient the young ladies are in their exercises.

Many English friends who have been staying with us this year have complimented the town on the large proportion of well set up, smart looking girls.

Taking the young people of Grand Falls in general it is safe to say that in no country in the world can be found so great a proportion of beautifully brought-up material for the new school which is the object of our ambition for the coming year.

I consider this vast audience one of the many evidences I have had of the interest displayed by the people of this remarkable new community. In the progress of the work in which we are all engaged here. Much has transpired since I was with you ten months ago. The Town has indeed so changed on my return here, that I must confess I could not find my way about in the streets. The houses that I was able to promise last year have been built and are still being built. I doubt whether any settlement in the world has been so carefully built and with such great speed. A splendid new road is being made on the banks of our beautiful river, and it is likely to be completed on Monday next. Church Road, with its fine view of places of worship is, I think, unique. Those of you who live here day by day perhaps fail to realise what you are doing and have done.

Grand Falls, this year, has been visited by a number of distinguished folk from the Old Country and from Canada. I will not enumerate their names, but during the year you had a very well-known Englishman, Lord Brassey, who sailed his own yacht across the Atlantic into Botwood. He was so pleased with what he saw of Grand Falls that he returned for a second visit, after which he wrote expressing his delight at what is going on here.

More recently, we had two of the most remarkable men in Canada, Earl Grey, our King's Representative, and Professor Robertson, whose work for the Agricultural development not only of Prince Edward Island, but of the whole of Canada, is such that he enormously increased the prosperity of the Dominion by his Agricultural teachings. Both these distinguished men, who are both by the way, intimately acquainted with new settlements, expressed surprise and pleasure at the good roads, the good homes, the abundant light and the beautiful scenery of Grand Falls. You had the pleasure of hearing them speak and their testimony was also borne witness to by that of the Prime Minister of the Country.

When I was here last year this community was subjected to all kinds of criticism by some ill-informed American writers, whose statements were fortunately rebutted by other American writers. They told us, in short, that it would be impossible to make paper here at all; that the population was composed of idle fishermen, that the island was very unhealthy, and much more that it would be a waste of time to repeat. As to health we have had our troubles, like all new communities, but it must not be forgotten that this island has only a very scattered population of less than a quarter of a million all told, many of them living in remote outposts, some of which are almost beyond the reach of frequent communication. Hospitals, therefore are naturally few and far between. It is no doubt true to say that in a country larger than Ireland there are only three or at least four Hospitals, including the St. John's Hospital, Dr. Grenfell's Hospital and Lady Northcliffe's Hospital here. The people, therefore, are not as educated as some others in rules of health. We have, as you know, a mild epidemic of Typhoid, very largely due to the non-observance of two or three simple rules, such as would easily be adopted if our people had been accustomed to the sanitary lessons that are usually adopted in more closely connected communities.

Dr. Meekins, who has been here for some time making bacteriological and other investigations, tells me that if the very simple rule of boiling your water and disinfecting your drains were adopted, the epidemic would pass. He tells me that he has no doubt whatever that aided by Dr. Chamberlain, Dr. Donahue, Dr. P. Seymour Price, who is also here with us from London, and Dr. Lomas, the thing will effectively and speedily be stamped out. Our thanks are also greatly due to Miss Gilmour and helpers at the Hospital for the splendid work they have done, not only on this occasion, but during the past year.

An English gentleman who has been here among us some time said to me yesterday: "The Englishman and the Newfoundlander have a great deal to learn from each other." Among the criticisms that have been levelled against this enterprise for years was the impossibility of handling the labour situation, unless we imported skilled Swedes, French Canadians or others accustomed to papermaking. There were no grounds to that criticism. Slightly over 92 per cent. of the people in the employ of this Company are Newfoundlanders, and if they lack the exactness and care of the Englishman and American, they certainly teach both those people in adaptability and willingness to learn any kind of constructive or mechanical task. They are patient, willing and ingenious. If they have a fault it is that they are inclined to be reckless and over-courageous. They carry this courage not only into their life at sea but into such an important matter as the health, in the care of which the English certainly excel.

We have two objects in view in Grand Falls. One is the making of the best paper in the world, which we are doing, and the other is to create a happy community. Everyone here is doing his best in both respects. As to the paper, its arrival in London created an immensely favourable impression. It has now been continuously used for six months, in several kinds of printing, and has proved perfect in strength, colour and consistency. Reports as to its merits have been received from leading English and American authorities, and I am able to say that I am convinced that not only here at Grand Falls and in the enterprise at Bishop's Falls, but at other places in the Island, Newfoundland will be able to produce the finest paper in the world.

I thank you for your kindness and patience in listening to this and my many other speeches in this town, and I wish to express the great pleasure my wife and I have received from our visit, and the presence of many friends from Millertown, Botwood and Bishop's Falls.

DOCTORS DIFFER.

Don't sleep on your left side, for it causes too great a pressure on the heart, some doctors advise.

Don't sleep on your right side, for it interferes with the respiration of that lung, say others.

Don't sleep on your stomach, for that interferes with the respiration of both lungs and makes breathing difficult.

Don't sleep on your back, for this method of getting rest is bad for the nervous system.

Don't sleep sitting in a chair, for your body falls into an unnatural position, and you cannot get the necessary relaxation. The only safe thing is to remain wide awake.

Died on Voyage Home.

By the mail which came here yesterday, Messrs. Baine Johnston & Co. received a letter from the captain of the brig. Attila, which arrived at Sydney, Sunday, after a run of 43 days from Pernambuco, stating that one of the seamen, Patrick Fleming, of this city, had died after the vessel left Brazil, on the 16th of August. The remains were buried at sea. Capt. Morgan, of the vessel, and his crew did everything possible for the man during his illness. Mr. Fleming was in his 50th year, and was unmarried. His brother, Mr. John Fleming, resides on Barter's Hill, and another brother, Thomas, has resided at Boston for 20 years. Fleming was a fine type of the Newfoundland seaman, and was 20 years out of the country sailing between Liverpool, London and eastern countries, and in that period only paid one short visit to his home, until September of last year when he came back to remain. During the progress of the Boer War he went to the front with a volunteer regiment from England, and was in the service to the close of hostilities. The letter does not state the nature of the disease which caused his death. In going to the seafishery in the Kite last spring he fell overboard and was a long while in the water. He contracted a severe cold which caused lung trouble of a slight nature, but his brother thinks that this later became acute and caused his death.

Bay Bulls Fishery.

All the people of Bay Bulls are still at the fishery, but only poor work is being done, fish being scarce, and the average catch is only a half quintal. Dog fish are numerous and are a great annoyance to the fishermen. These piscatorial brutes twist the hooks from the lines, and often the fishermen are compelled to leave the grounds owing to this.

Marine Notes.

The S. S. Usk left Sydney at 3 p.m. yesterday coal laden to Geo. Neal. After discharging here she will load fish for Europe. The S. S. Kamjford passed the Narrows at 6 p.m. yesterday bound to Bell Island from Sydney with a load of coal.

Obituary.

Mr. Garland Gaden, of the Anglo Office, received a cable on Wednesday afternoon announcing the death of his sister, Mrs. Annabella Rabbetts, that morning, at Philadelphia, U. S. A. The deceased lady was the eldest daughter of the late G. C. Gaden, Esq., Sheriff of the Northern District. Besides a husband and several sons and daughters in the States, she leaves behind her a brother and two sisters in this city and two brothers in Canada to mourn their loss.

Passengers Divergent Routes.

Last evening's Bruce express took out 85 passengers second class. Most of these were young people who under present conditions see little here to encourage them to remain in the country and are therefore compelled to seek their futures abroad. It looks now as if there will be quite an exodus from St. John's and other populous centres during the fall months. Those who left yesterday went to very divergent places which included Des Moines, Iowa; Cincinnati, O.; Waverly, Me.; Lawrence, Mass.; Alexandria, Boston, Montreal and Sydney.

Marriage Forbidden by Parliament.

After having shot big game in Africa, the Duchess of Aosta has now turned her attention to flying machines. Acknowledged to be the most beautiful woman in Europe, the Duchess, who was born in England, spent most of her childhood and youth in this country. The story goes that, when quite young, she met the late Duke of Clarence. They loved, and even Queen Victoria favoured the alliance, but Parliament objected to it on the ground that the Princess was a Catholic. Two years later she married the Duke of Aosta, himself a keen sportsman and soldier. The Duke is a brother of the Duke of Abruzzi, who has earned much fame as a mountaineer and explorer, while the Duchess's eldest sister is the Queen Mother of Portugal.
