An Unworked Gold Mine.

By RUTH CAMERON.

When you buy an article and find a folder of printed matter enclosed, what do you do with it?

Do you automatically throw it into the waste basket or do you sit down and read it through, absorbing all the information you can?

If you are my old friend, the average man or woman, you do the first. If you are the exception that proves the rule, you do the second.

The amount of thoroughly worthwhile information which is wasted in this way is rather appalling.

Take, for instance, a certain make of toothbrush. In the little box in which it is sold is a printed folder describing the proper way to brush the teeth. In all probability, nine people out of ten throw that folder into the waste basket and go on rubbing the toothbrush horizontally across the teeth and failing to remove the bits of food between the teeth which give the dentist his occupation.

The percentage of people who read prefaces and footnotes is equally small. If we could be privileged to talk to some great author about his work and hear him tell just what he wanted to convey by some particular book, just what it meant to him, we would be flattered and pleased and would take a much greater interest in the book. Now that is just what the author is doing when he writes a preface—coming out from behind the scenes and making a little personal speech to you, the reader. Surely we should not be rude enough to stop our ears and refuse to hear him.

And now, while we are talking along these lines, I want to revert to a subject which I have touched upon before, and that is the information which the United States Government stands ready to give housewives and of which comparatively few of them take advantage.

By writing to the Department of Agriculture, Washington, D.C., any housewife may obtain bulletins on such pertinent subjects as "Meats, Composition and Cooking," "Eggs and Their Uses as Food," "Economic Use of Meats in the Home" and many similar topics.

The Bureau of Education will send her a free pamphlet on "The Daily Meals of School Children." The Bureau of Entomology will send her a free circular called "The House Fly," telling her how to circumvent that dangerous pest.

These are but a few of the helps which the United States government has prepared for the homemakers of the country. There is a veritable gold mine of domestic education waiting for every woman. It lies only with her whether she will leave it unworked or make herself and her family wealthy out of its treasures.

Swell Pictures at the Nickel To-day.

"OUT OF THE DEPTHS."
The mid-week change at the Nickel Theatre this evening is a splendid one and will surely give satisfaction to all who attend. The Nickel certainly deserves the name it has gained for giving nothing but the best in motion pictures. The Lubin artists will appear in the two reel feature film "Out of the Depths." This is a clever film, ending in a pretty love match. "The Swan Girl" is a delightful drama with Anita Stewart and E. K. Lincoln in the leading characters. "Her Legacy" is a thrilling melodrama, which is very creditably acted. "He Would a Hunting Go" is a keystone comedy riot—a continuous laugh from start to finish. There will also be a complete reel of "The Mutual Weekly" showing the latest events in foreign affairs. Mr. Arthur C. Hawkins will repeat his popular songs "Mother McInnes" and "Under the Rose" while Prof. McCarthy and Mr. Ross will give a new musical programme.

Nervous Dypepsia, Gas or Indigestion

Each "Pape's Diapepsin" digests 3000 grains food, ending all stomach misery in five minutes.

Time it! Pape's Diapepsin will digest anything you eat and overcome a sour, gassy or out-of-order stomach surely within five minutes.

If your meals don't fit comfortably or what you eat lies like a lump of lead in your stomach, or if you have heartburn, that is a sign of indigestion.

Get from your pharmacist a fifty-cent case of Pape's Diapepsin and take a dose just as soon as you can. There will be no sour risings, no belching of undigested food mixed with acid, no stomach gas or heartburn, fullness or heavy feeling in the stomach, nausea, debilitating headaches, dizziness or intestinal griping. This will all go, and, besides, there will be no sour food left over in the stomach to poison your breath with nauseous odors.

Pape's Diapepsin is certain cure for out-of-order stomachs, because it takes hold of your food and digests it just the same as if your stomach wasn't there.

Relief in five minutes from all stomach misery is waiting for you at any drug store.

These large fifty cent cases contain enough "Pape's Diapepsin" to keep the entire family free from stomach disorders and indigestion for many months. It belongs in your home.

Wedding Bells.

A very quiet wedding was solemnized at the R. C. Cathedral Monday evening, the contracting parties being Mr. Harry E. Walker and Miss Minnie J. Neville. The bride was assisted by Miss Mollie Walsh and Mr. D. Neville acted as best man. The nuptial knot was tied by Rt. Rev. Monsignor Roche, who is a life long friend of the bride. After the customary party drove to the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. F. Bambrick, Hamilton Avenue, where refreshments were partaken of. The presents were numerous and costly testifying to the esteem in which the bride is held. The bride and groom left by the Red Cross Liner Stephano for their home in Needham Heights, Mass.

Schooner Wrecked

FOUR CREWS WITH ALL THEIR FISH ON THE ROCKS.
The following wireless message was received last night by the Premier from Makovick:—
"The S. M. Lake, belonging to Bay Roberts, was lost at Ironbound Island. Four crews with all their fish are on the rocks. The fish is packed in bundles. Will you order the Kyle or Siskina to call and take it. (Signed) Eli Badcock, Thomas Kerrivan.
Arrangements have been made for the s.s. Kyle, which is now north, to proceed to Ironbound Island and take off the crews and render all assistance possible.

Fishery Reports.

Oct. 19. From G. Vez. (Fortune)—The total catch is 1,334 qtls. and for last week 27. Fifty-four dories and 1 boat are fishing. The Helen C. Mosse has arrived with 60 qtls. from the banks. Prospects at present are gloomy. A few herring may be had but not half enough for bait and there is no squid at all. The weather is fine for fishery operations.

Oct. 16. From J. Soper (Channel to Port aux Basques).—Prospects are all and there is scarcely any bait. Owing to the scarcity the larger boats did not get out during the week, hence the reason of the small catch. To date the catch is 1,944 qtls. and for last week 50. Twenty-five dories and skiffs but no boats are fishing. Operations are greatly hindered by the presence of darkness on the ground. No bankers or schooners from the grounds have arrived.

Oct. 17. From A. Hollett (Sound Island to North Hr.).—Prospects are very poor in this part of the bay, though the supply of bait is fairly good. Only 17 small boats are fishing at present. One schooner returned from the grounds with 60 qtls. The total catch is 955 qtls. and for last week 5 qtls.

There are numerous rug and carpet galleries on Atlantic City's boardwalk, where soft-voiced orientals harangue shoppers and idlers who are lured in at auction hours.

Marian Winthrop entered one of these establishments during a sale, dropped into one of the chairs, and surveyed the array of Chinese and Persian rugs which lined the walls from ceiling to floor, and lay piled in rich bales back of the auctioneer.

One, a splendid Chinese affair done in gold and blue, captured her attention. Its design was rich in exotic romance. Marian had often haunted rug establishments in her home city during those hopeless, peripatetic, unhappy days with Frank, wondering if the day would ever come when she could furnish a home the way she liked. Oriental rugs had fascinated her strangely, weirdly, for years, and in her wanderings around shops that displayed them, she had learned a good deal about their values and their varied species.

To-day and to-morrow, Mr. Knights will sing "Bring Back my Smoke Dreams to Me." This song is composed by Mr. Knights and has been sung by him with gratifying results in Chicago, New York and Boston in the musical productions with which he has been associated. Mr. Knights had several offers for publication but have not accepted any of them up to now. Mr. Knights friends in St. John's who have heard him sing this song in private, think very highly of it, and requested him to sing it at the Crescent, a request he has acceded to. The picture programme is up to the Crescent's usual standard. The two-reel imp feature "The Old Melody," featuring King Baggot, is a beautiful drama of rural life; the other picture one of the comedy class, "By the Curate's Aid," a society farce comedy, and "When Father was Kidnapped," a western comedy. Attend the Crescent for a good show all the time.

Falling Hair Means Dandruff Is Active

Save your Hair! Get a 25 cent bottle of Danderine right now—Also stops itching scalp.

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf. There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which if not remedied causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine to-night—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knewlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.

GOOD SIGN OF HERRING.—Herring have been fairly plentiful at Bay of Islands the last few days, especially at Middle Arm.

Divorced Life

The Magic Carpet

There are numerous rug and carpet galleries on Atlantic City's boardwalk, where soft-voiced orientals harangue shoppers and idlers who are lured in at auction hours.

Marian Winthrop entered one of these establishments during a sale, dropped into one of the chairs, and surveyed the array of Chinese and Persian rugs which lined the walls from ceiling to floor, and lay piled in rich bales back of the auctioneer.

One, a splendid Chinese affair done in gold and blue, captured her attention. Its design was rich in exotic romance. Marian had often haunted rug establishments in her home city during those hopeless, peripatetic, unhappy days with Frank, wondering if the day would ever come when she could furnish a home the way she liked. Oriental rugs had fascinated her strangely, weirdly, for years, and in her wanderings around shops that displayed them, she had learned a good deal about their values and their varied species.

To-day, as she gazed attentively at the Chinese affair for which the auctioneer was vainly trying to stimulate bidding, she yearned for a home of her own, with something like this underfoot in her dining room. "I am bid only two hundred and eighty dollars," the seller was complaining wistfully, with foreign accent. "Do I hear three hundred? Three hundred? Do I hear three hundred? The only way you can get it cheaper is to join the burglar's union. Do I hear three hundred?"

Marian hardly heard the haranguer's efforts to provoke a further bid. Her thoughts had trailed off into a dream home. Detail upon detail drifted into place. The carpet from far-off China had invoked a magic chain of thoughts their details coming into mental view out of the mists of dreams and yearnings.

Home, which under the belligerent misfortunes of her married life had been anything but ideal, had during the intervening months been developing into the direction of a perfect thing of dreams, subconsciously yet persistently. And now, invoked into glorious detail, under the spell of the lustrous rug before her, Marian beheld with a delicious start the completed whole.

The vision swam mystically before her. It reached out with inviting arms and drew her into its scheme. And now the figure of a man gathered form, seated opposite her at the table in the wondrous dining room. She closed her eyes, as though to shut out the picture, growing all the while in distinctness—a graphic, vivid, commanding, fascinating picture.

The man the vision had revealed to her was Charles Challoner. Marian Winthrop was conscious of the spell of his presence as though he were seated at her side, talking to her in his rough, low, familiar tones, looking deep into her eyes.

Marian pulled herself together, with a smile. "You silly thing," she said under her breath. With a last look at the remarkable rug, she rose, and made her way out among the crows on the boardwalk. The bright sunshine enveloped her. The tonic salt air swirled through her nostrils. "How ridiculously silly of me," she said again.

"Miss Winthrop! Miss Winthrop!" Marian wheeled, catching her breath as though struck by a bullet. Turning, she found herself looking into a pair of familiar commanding eyes. "You? You?" she exclaimed.

"Thank heaven I've found you," said the other.

It was Charles Challoner.
