Coats Off!

(By Harold Begbie.)

To his fellow countrymen in England, Harold Begbie makes a ringing appeal that they have done with all the plagues of the after-war period and settle themselves to the task of reconstruction in thorough earnest. It is striking that a poem addressed thus directly to one nation should be capable of such easy application to many another, our own included. In Mr. Begbie's poem in the London "Daily Chronicle" we hear again the oft repeated warning about the necessity of superproduction to make good the enormous losses involved in war.

For England's faith and future a thousand years ago Who doubts our strength to conquer, who says our heart will fail?
So far we've marched in honor, so often we've stood fast, Who says that we shall perish by our own hands at last?

Four hundred millions starving?—a world of bankrupt States?
Europe a debtors' prison?—Red ruin at the gates?
Out on your tale of terror! Strip off the coward's mask!
The more mounts English courage the harder is the task.

We'll set our engines roaring, we'll show the world again What pride is in our women, what wonder in our men; We'll pile the quays with plenty, and swing rich wealth aboard, We'll break the back of Hunger as we broke the Prussian Sword;

And break the back of traitors, with blows that save the world.
For it's England's trumpet calling, it's her flag still unfurled, It's England's fate we're handling, and hard our blows shall fall On the sweater of the poor man, and the traitor of us all.

Get hence, you bloated Spider, with profits God shall reck, Get hence, you Russ-fed Judas, the moose is at your neck; No man shall be amongst us henceforth for evermore Who does not live for England, true English to the core.

A famished world is pleading. Come, comrades, let us pull Our weight, the weight of England, till every ladder's full; No famine, and no madness shall shake the world apart If England's flag be flying from the keep of England's heart.

Now let the false man tremble, now let the tyrant quail, The World's Need come to sift us, with our Dead behind the veil; The true man, kind and selfless, the brave man, strong and just, Shall stand like rocks when treason has crumbled into dust.

We'll make a greater England is saying all the while,
her flag still unfurled, A nobler, gladder England, in body, soul, and mind; Coats off, sleeves up, and steady, for the sake of all mankind.

To Utilize Tidal Power.

In view of the shortage of British coal for export purposes it is reported that French scientists and industrialists are endeavoring to supply power by harnessing the tides. For several years French scientific men have declared that this was no fantastic dream, and already considerable data on the subject has been collected. In order to apply these theories to the test of practice, a small scientific company has been formed to carry out experiments at Ploomanach, on the Cotes du Nord.

Paderewski's Fingers.

After the signing of the Austrian Peace Treaty in Paris recently, Paderewski, who represented Poland, shook hands with the other Allied plenipotentiaries, using (so read) both hands for the operation.

He was not always so free with his magical hands. Some years ago, while shaking hands with a friend, his fingers came into contact with the lighted end of a cigar, and for a day or two he was unable to play.
Thereupon he heavily insured each of his fingers, and to reduce the chances of such a happening again he made it a rigid rule not to shake hands with anyone.

Nameless Fame.

The Pantheon, Paris, where the French Government purpose to inter one unnamed polli in memory of the millions who died in France, has had a strangely chequered career, comments a Paris correspondent.

Begun by Louis XV, as a cathedral, with the tomb of St. Genevieve as its proudest possession, it was made secular by the revolutionaries and dedicated as a Hall of Fame, the first "grands hommes" to be buried there being Mirabeau and Voltaire. In 1806 Napoleon made it a church again; in 1820 it was again secular-ized, in 1835 rededicated, and in 1835 made secular once more to receive the body of Victor Hugo.

Correspondents are requested to accompany contributions with their real names, not necessarily for publication but as a guarantee of good faith. In future no correspondence will be considered unless this rule is adhered to.

Mrs. Churchill Couldn't Hold Cup to Mouth

Was So Run-Down Her Nerves Were Completely Shattered—Entirely Relieved by Tanlac.

"I believe I am the happiest woman in the world," said Mrs. A. Churchill, of 12 Chapel Street, St. John's, Newfoundland, as she purchased her third bottle of Tanlac at Connor's drug store, recently.

In relating her remarkable experience, Mrs. Churchill stated that she could not wait without the use of crutches, that at times she could not even feed herself and that her case had been given up as hopeless three different times. But, she now says that, although she was just finished her second bottle of Tanlac, she is feeling perfectly well and has already gained ten pounds in weight.
But let Mrs. Churchill tell her own story. Here are the facts just as related by her:

"I began suffering two years ago and don't believe I drew a healthy breath from that time on until after taking Tanlac. I suffered from stomach trouble, rheumatism and other things until I got to where I couldn't hold a cup to my mouth and for a while I had to be fed. I was so weak and crippled up that I always had to use a walking stick or crutch when I went out and I couldn't walk ten minutes without being all out of breath. My stomach hurt me so bad I couldn't stand up straight and was so helpless and miserable that I would just lie down and cry. I might as well have stayed up all night as to go to bed, for I couldn't sleep. My feet and ankles would swell up more than twice their natural size with rheumatism and my nerves were completely shattered. I was under treatment several times, took every kind of medicine I heard of and spent a little fortune, but got no encouragement that I would ever get well.
In fact, I was three times given up as a hopeless case and another time was told I would be a cripple for life. I had an awful pain in my stomach and another in my back just as bad. My right wrist would swell all up with rheumatism and hurt me dreadfully and I had such fearful nervous headaches that I could hardly stand it.

"But I am just like a different person now and I wouldn't be without Tanlac if it cost ten dollars a bottle.
I am eating just anything I want, even cabbage and pork, and all kinds of fruits, and never have a particle of trouble with my stomach any more.
I never have a headache, backache nor a rheumatic pain now and my nerves have quieted down until I can sleep just like a baby all night.
Really, I haven't a pain of any kind.
I have gained ten pounds in weight and am not only able to do all my work, but I can walk as far as I like—have no more use for my crutch or walking stick—and I don't get all out of breath or feel tired like I did before. My complexion was very bad before I began taking Tanlac, but now, you can see I have a good, healthy color. If anyone had told me there was a medicine that could do me so much good in so short a time I would not have believed them. I honestly believe Tanlac has saved my life and I can hardly find words to express my gratitude."

The stomach regulates the condition of the blood and in the fountain head of health or disease as the case may be. Tanlac is intended, primarily, for the regulation of the stomach and the correction of catarrhal inflammation, but it is no uncommon thing for persons who have used it to find that it has relieved them, not only of indigestion, but also of rheumatism, kidney complaints and many other ailments not generally recognized as having their origin in stomach trouble.

Tanlac is sold in St. John's by M.
Connors, under the personal direction of a special Tanlac Representative.—

Bird With a Train Bearer.

The bird with the longest tail comes from Japan. Some of them have tails as much as twelve feet long. When they go to walk in the open air they are accompanied by special train bearers who keep the tail from touching the ground.
It is a variety of the barndoor fowl.
In the same way that pouters and fantail pigeons have been developed from the common pigeon in Europe, the long-tailed cocks are carefully reared in Shinowara, a village on the island of Skikoku.

"FIDDLE-FIT"

Keep Liver and Bowels Clean and Active with "Cascarets"

Sick headache, biliousness, coated tongue, sour, gassy stomach—always trace this to torpid liver; delayed, fermenting food in the bowels.

Poisonous matter clogged in the intestines, instead of being cast out of the system is re-absorbed into the blood. When this poison reaches the delicate brain tissue it causes congestion and that dull, throbbing, sickening headache.

Cascarets immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested food and foul gases, take the excess bile from the liver and carry out all the constipated waste matter and poisons in the bowels.

A Cascaret to-night will have you feeling clear, rosy and as fit as a fiddle by morning. They work while sleep.
