WHAT LOVE CAN DO

Little Robert had been visiting a family of cousins, and though he had been away from home some weeks, he was not anxious to leave the spot where he had been so happy. "I like to stay here," he told his sister Alice. "They have such a beautiful home." Alice was five years older than Robert, and she did not always pay much attention to what he said, but this remark seemed so odd that she closed her books and stared at him. "Did you say that Aunt Emma had a beautiful home, Rob Ryerson? What a funny idea! It's just a plain little cottage."

Rob looked puzzled and did not reply, but his sister continued, "And their furniture is old, and some of the carpets are worn out, and they haven't nice pictures like ours. What makes you think it is so beautiful there?"

Rob thought a minute before he answered: "I guess it is because everybody is so nice to everybody else, and nobody scolds or teases."

At first the older sister smiled, and then the color rose in her cheeks. She saw that her brother was nearer right than herself. A fine house and expensive furniture and pictures on the walls are not the things most important. Love and courtesy and kindness can make the plainest, poorest home beautiful, and the lack of them will spoil a palace.

HOW WOULD IT DO

- To live up. To push things. To boom your town. To advertise your business. To renew your subscription. To help your fallen brother rise. To speak kindly of all, evil of none. To wear a smile instead of a frown. To trade at home the whole year. To take advice as freely as you give it. To get good yourself and do good to others. To stand by your town and all its interests. To school your sons and daughters in our schools. To give every local enterprise your help and encouragement. To speak your appreciative words
