A Stander Refuted.
In the correspondence of the Dufferin Post a week or so ago an aspersion was cast, no doubt unintentionally, on the charcast in doubt unintentionally, on the charcast in determination of Caledon East, by the statement that he was mixed up in a ticket selling fraud at the London Fair some years ago. The misstatement is corrected in a letter from Treasurer Graham, of the Provincial Exhibition, who says: "Mr. Cranston, with five or six others, was engaged by me (who was and am still the gaged by me (who was and am still the Treasurer of the Agricultural and Arts Association) to sell tickets for admission to grounds. I was informed of what was going on, and went the booth-keeper and captured about 100 tickets, and had him arrested and committed for trial. He was afterwards sent six months to jail. Mr. Cranston and my other ticket-sellers were subpœnaed as witnesses at the trial, and it was by their evidence the person was convicted. As has been expected for some time past, the London Board of Trade has been successful in having established a direct mail service between London and all points in the old world. The first bag in the new service, which will be of great advantage to service, which will be of great advantage to leave the content of the conten fortunately refused to sell and would only let—like my anostors, wise men—on short leases, gradually falling into my hands, becoming my own, to be let at high and increasing rents, but I see all London toiling to make me richer and consequently more powerful and—happier. What a delightful thought it is!

"Not a merchant, who increases the wealth and trade of this great metropolis; not a workman, who adds to its industrial product; not an author, or writer, or scientific man, that adds to its reputation; not a builder, not a father of an increasing augmenting the value of my land and houses. I toil not, neither do I spin. Why should I when all the world around is toiling and spinning for me? My gifts eventhey are not great, for I invest all I can in real property, so that those who follow me may have even greater wealth and power than myseli—ean all be made to enhance my own position. If I beautify a street, or give a site upon which a handsome church or chapel can be built, or subscribe to imperial institutes or South Kensington improvements, do I not still benefit myself? Everything works for the best for me in this best of all possible worlds. The brains, sinews, energies, inventions of all mankind are mine in a peculiar sense. I not only profit by them as other people do, but they all tend to one end—the increasing value of my property.

"So that while the toilers and moilers think they are benefiting themselves, I am taking toll of every blow they strike and every work they do. Gradually this enables me to make stronger the golden chain—the strongest and perhaps—well, the cruelest—with which I and my fellow landlords and plutocrats bind society, even down to its lowest stratum; re-enforcing its links, lengthening its extent, increasing its repressive influence. For, after all, who can estimate the power of gold, in politics, in society, in religion, in administration—of gold when it consists of millions, and can be used, if need be, to hold down and fette? Yes, Jones is an ill-instructed person if he imagines I have any part or lot with him. He may be ruined, but even then he will benefit me. I cannot attend to his petition, for weakness must never be the characteristic of one for whom the world turns round."
